

BEN HYDE TRIED TO BAR CALIFORNIA INVESTIGATION OF INTERNATIONAL CO.

Resisted Commissioner Detrick's Demand as 'Scheme to Dynamite' Insurance Company.

HE GOT BIG FEE FROM IT, EXAMINERS SAID

Inquiry That Disclosed $3,500,000 Shortage Forced Over Missouri Official's Earlier Protest.

Inquiry by the Post-Dispatch today disclosed that the examination of the affairs of the International Life Insurance Co., which revealed that $3,500,000 of its securities are missing, creating a condition that insurance commissioners pronounced "the worst ever encountered by examiners," was initiated by Charles R. Detrick, Insurance Commissioner of California, over protests of the Missouri Insurance Department, under supervision of Ben C. Hyde, brother of former Gov. Hyde.

The California Commissioner's persistent demands for the inquiry brought a telegram from the Missouri Insurance Department charging him with "unreasonable accusations, insinuations and conduct" and adding that the Missouri Department "cannot be a party to the scheme to dynamite and exploit these (Missouri) companies."

These statements were made last March 12 in a telegram from Jefferson City signed "Ben C. Hyde, Superintendent, by Robert E. Daly, secretary." To Detrick's San Francisco. The text of this telegram is published elsewhere in this edition.

Daly was engaged with Insurance Commissioners of other states today in the investigation into the International Life, and his version of the dispute with the California Insurance Department could not be obtained.

Inquiry Began in 1925.

The California Insurance Department had begun its investigation of the condition of the International Life as far back as 1925, when Prof. A. H. Mowbray of the University of California, widely known authority on life insurance business, made a study and report of the company's annual statement for the California department. At that time he recommended that Commissioner Detrick make a thorough examination for the protection of California policyholders, stating in his report there was "grave probability of insolvency."

Nov. 14, 1926, in the Billmore Hotel at Los Angeles, Cal., during a meeting of the committee on examinations at a convention of commissioners, Commissioner Detrick, in the presence of 39 commissioners and department people, confronted Commissioner Hyde of Missouri with the Mowbray report, and Hyde said he was working to improve conditions and would, if given time, to straighten out objectionable features.

That was the last California heard of the situation until Sept. 19, 1927, when Daly, secretary of insurance commissioners at Cincinnati, attended a convention of insurance commissioners at Cincinnati and announced that an examination of the International Life had been completed. A copy of this report was received in California April 18 by examiners from Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Illinois, Mississippi and Texas. California had not been invited to participate in this examination.

Complaint of Hyde's Attitude.

As early as July, 1925, examiners representing the insurance departments of other states charged that the Missouri Insurance Department, under Ben Hyde, "has made every possible effort to delay the examination (then in progress at the International Life) and protect the company in all their various deals and manipulations."

This charge was made in letters written to Insurance Commissioner Henry of Mississippi and Insurance Commissioner Baker of Kansas by three examiners, W. H. Herndon, L. C. Baker and S. F. Henry.

"Because of the desire of the Missouri department to pass the International Life by with little or no mention we do not believe you could be fully advised from that report as to the company's condition and affairs and are

Job Selling Scheme Exposed at Ford Plant

Warrant Sought for Man Who Received as High as $100 From Applicants—100 Employees Dismissed as Result of Disclosure.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 10.—With the recommendation of a warrant charging Saturday Calleya of Detroit with larceny by trick of $25, James E. Chenot, Chief Assistant Prosecutor, disclosed a job-selling scheme which has been operating in the Ford Motor Co. recently, and already has resulted in the dismissal of 100 employees.

Calleya, according to Chenot, is reported to have received as high as $100 from applicants for jobs at the Ford company's River Rouge plant. His scheme, Chenot said, was to obtain the money from applicants whose physical build was against their success in getting work. The applicants would appear at the first employment win-

PIERRE DU PONT SAYS HE WILL BACK SMITH

General Motors Chairman Is Leader in Wet Fight and Usually a Republican.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Pierre S. du Pont, chairman of the boards of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. and the General Motors Corporation, today declared he would support Gov. Smith for the presidency.

Gov. Smith has the "strength of character to correct the evils of prohibition law enforcement and make recommendations necessary for the solution of the liquor problem," du Pont said in a prepared statement explaining his action.

Du Pont's stand was anticipated. Yesterday the General Motors Corporation granted him a leave of absence during the political campaign. He is one of the leaders in the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

John J. Ragob, Democratic national chairman, is a personal friend of du Pont's. Ragob said he did not believe du Pont would become a member of the Democratic Advisory Committee.

Asked if he and du Pont regarded prohibition as the main issue, Ragob answered: "No, there are many issues."

In his statement du Pont said Smith's declaration "in favor of modification gives greater encouragement than does the non-constructive opinion of his opponent."

"I voted for President Wilson, though my other votes for President have been uniformly on the Republican side," said du Pont.

SMITH ARRIVES IN CHICAGO FOR BRENNAN FUNERAL

Nominee Reaches Station 20 Minutes Ahead of Schedule—Accompanied by Party Leaders.

THOUSANDS CHEER HIM ON STREETS

Executive Rushed to Late Committeeman's Home for Private Burial Services.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York came West today to attend the funeral of George E. Brennan, the leader of Illinois Democracy and one of the original sponsors of the campaign to have Gov. Smith chosen as the presidential nominee of his party.

Less than three hours were allowed for the Governor in Chicago between the arrival of his train at 10:25 a. m. and his start on the return trip. The time was just enough to permit him to go to the Brennan home for the short private services and then to Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church for the public services. The fact that burial will take place at Des Plaines precluded the Governor's accompanying the funeral party to the cemetery.

Gov. Smith and a party of Eastern Democratic leaders arrived 20 minutes ahead of schedule, and the party was immediately taken in automobiles to the Brennan home where a few of the most intimate friends of the dead leader were to join members of his family in private services. The public services in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church followed an hour later.

Several hundred Great Plains Democrats followed the Governor to the funeral. The party proceeded east on Jackson boulevard to Michigan boulevard and then north to Lake Shore drive, while thousands lined the curbs along the route and cheered the Governor. Showers of ticker tape and confetti were strewn from windows of buildings as the party sped past.

Gov. Smith remained only five minutes at the Brennan home, where he expressed his sympathy and his daughter Mary. He viewed the body of his friend, which lay in the center of the spacious living room, surrounded by floral offerings. The Governor then drove to the Mount Carmel Church.

Services at the Church.

Gov. Smith proceeded to the front of the church, sitting at one side while the Brennan family was seated directly opposite. The services followed strictly the rites of the Catholic church. There was no eulogy, in accordance with his, Mr. Brennan's, own request before he died, and there were no flowers in the church. Mr. Brennan and his family had alike insisted that no flowers be offered after his death, but at their home their many friends had filled the living room with floral pieces.

Immediately at the close of the solemn requiem high mass Gov. Smith departed for the railway station.

Besides Gov. Smith, there were many prominent figures in national Democratic circles here for the services. Illinois Democracy was largely represented.

The County Building was closed for the day at the order of Anton Cermak, head of the County Board and Democratic candidate for United States Senator. Offices of the sanitary district also were closed. The City Hall was closed by order of the Council, which also adopted memorial resolutions yesterday and listened to eulogies of Mr. Brennan by several Aldermen.

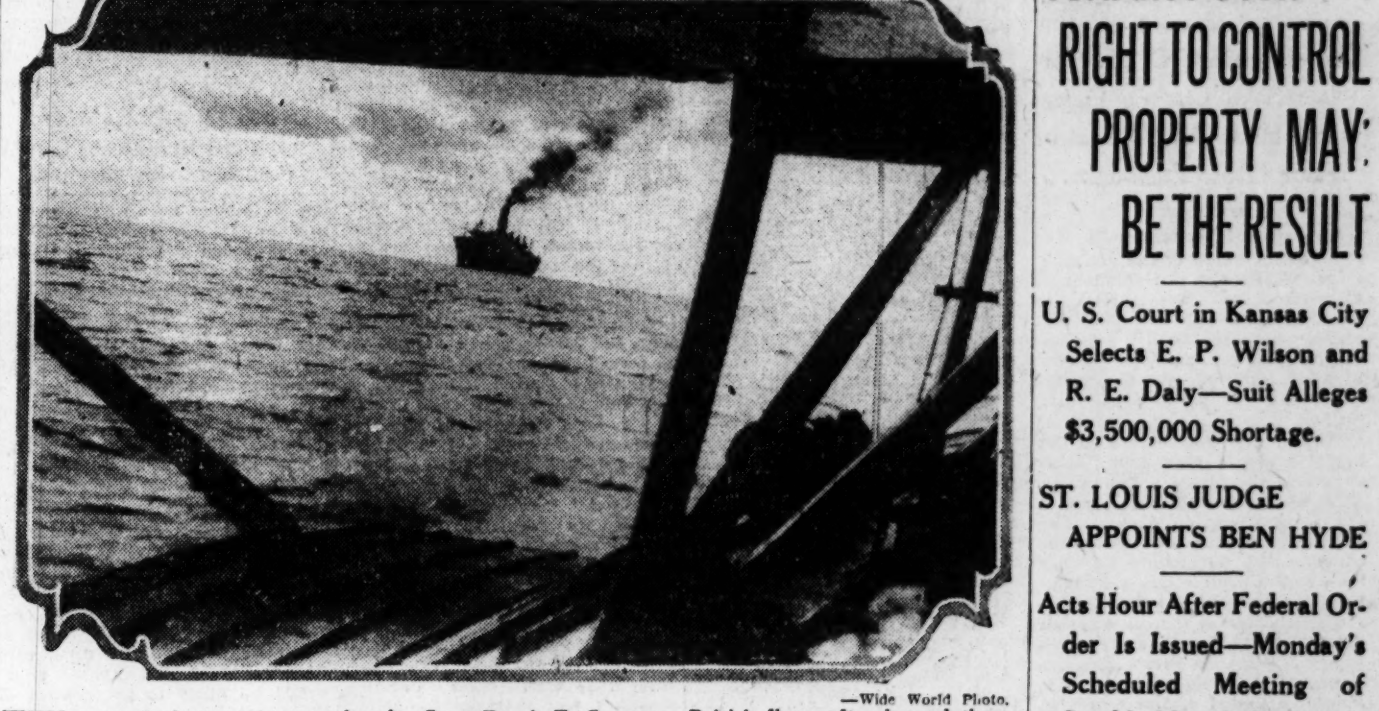

Last night as his train stopped at Syracuse, Gov. Smith was greeted by a quiet crowd of several hundred persons. The presidential nominee declined to make a speech, but shook hands with a score of admirers.

As he stepped from his private car, Smith was greeted with a demand for "three cheers for Al," and from another section of the crowd with the admonition "go after Straton in his own church."

Told by one admirer that he would carry Syracuse "by 10,000," Smith remarked, "Syracuse always was my lucky town."

Courtney Photographs His Rescue Ship

THIS unusual photograph was taken by Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British flyer, after he and three companions were forced down in mid-Atlantic when the seaplane in which they were attempting to fly from the Azores to Newfoundland caught fire. It pictures the dramatic moment when the flyers realized they were to be saved—the approach of the liner Minnewaska, which raced to the rescue in response to radio appeals for aid.

How Crew on Sunken Italian Submarine Pleaded for Haste

Messages Disclose That Death Overtook Imprisoned Men While They Still Were Trying to Communicate Their Last Thoughts.

By the Associated Press.

POLA, Italy, Aug. 10.—The dramatic messages exchanged between the men imprisoned in the submarine F-14 and the rescuers were made public late yesterday. Both by the submarine telegraph and in notes they showed that death overtook the imprisoned men while they still were trying to communicate their last thoughts.

The first message received from the submarine, immediately after the sinking, said:

"We have six dead in stern. We are standing with the stern sunk in the mud. The position of the submarine is almost vertical."

After the vessel was raised it was found that only four had died from drowning, the difference being explained by the fact that two other men were imprisoned in the last compartment of the stern, while the captain and others of the crew were in the prow.

Imprisoned Men Pleaded for Haste.

Search began immediately but it was unsuccessful until scaphanders were lowered. The rescuers immediately sent this message:

"Be of good cheer. We have found you. Divers are descending."

To this the submarine replied:

"Morale on board is highest, but poison gases are beginning to form. We plead for haste."

The destroyer Aquila then steamed over the wreck, dragging a heavy anchor hawser. This brought the following message from below:

"We feel a heavy body passing over the hull."

Divers immediately descended and in a few minutes had fixed an air tube through which fresh air was started into the submarine. The rescuers then messaged:

"Courage. We are sending you air. How are you feeling?"

The reply was that poison gases still were being felt and that no benefit had resulted from the air tube. This message ended: "Be quick."

At 11 p. m. Monday night the submarine said:

"We are lost."

A few minutes later its sounder was again heard, saying:

"Gas is advancing inexorably. We are dying. Long live —"

The message was unfinished and the explanation came when the operator was discovered with his hand still on the key of his instrument.

Capt. Well of the F-14, it was found, had scribbled a few words with pencil in a note book. They read:

"We are waiting. We hope."

Poor down on the page were the words:

"Love mother. Be strong like mothers of —"

This sentence also was unfinished, death having overtaken the Captain before he could complete it.

Entry on Log Tells of Remains.

The last entry on the log of the ill-fated submarine reads:

"Hour, eight forty-five, morning. We are rammed. We are sinking."

It was in the handwriting of Commander Pasulo and investigators today said it indicated that the victims had been able to keep the electric light going for some time as did an entry in Capt. Well's notebook. Well, who evidently was unable to reach the log, told of the submarine striking the destroyer during a naval maneuver in this manner:

"After having sighted the enemy's ships, I was about to emerge when through the periscope I saw at the poop the outline of a ship too near to be avoided. It was the question of an instant and the shock occurred. The submarine sank to a depth of over 140 feet."

It was learned today that eight of the men who died aboard the F-14 were victims of a tragic mistake. They were apprentice motorists and had been ordered to board the F-15, but by an error went aboard the F-14 to their deaths.

Capt. Well's orderly, on the other hand, had a narrow escape. He had been sent ashore on an errand and was delayed until after the ship left the dock.

Funeral of 27 Victims.

"Requiescat in Pace" was the last prayer of Mons. Federzoli, Bishop of Parenzo, when he gave absolution today to the 27 victims of the F-14. Thousands of persons participated in the solemn funeral rites, crowding the route from the main entrance of the hospital to where the bodies had been taken, to the square before the Church of the Madonna of the Sea, where the cortege assumed a most imposing aspect. Bells tolled and flowers poured from windows, balconies and roofs, covering the automobiles carrying the coffins. The families of the victims followed the bodies. Some scarcely could walk, being helped along by friends. Admiral Monaco, representing King Victor Emmanuel, and other officials followed in full dress uniform. All the sailors in the squadron anchored near Pola marched.

A long line of automobiles transported hundreds of wreaths and great masses of flowers.

CONFLICT OVER RIGHT TO CONTROL PROPERTY MAY BE THE RESULT

U. S. Court in Kansas City Selects E. P. Wilson and R. E. Daly—Suit Alleges $3,500,000 Shortage.

ST. LOUIS JUDGE APPOINTS BEN HYDE

Acts Hour After Federal Order Is Issued—Monday's Scheduled Meeting of Stockholders Is Enjoined.

Two receiverships for the International Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis were decreed today, one in the Federal District Court at Kansas City, the other by Circuit Judge Hamilton here. A conflict for control of the company, thrown into the courts by the disappearance of $3,500,000 in bonds from its assets, is in prospect.

Federal Judge Reeves, at Kansas City, appointed Robert E. Daly, attorney of the Missouri Insurance Department and acting head of the department, and Edward P. Wilson, attorney and brother of Massey Wilson, one of the founders of the International Life, as receivers. He acted on a petition filed by C. F. Long of Tupelo, Miss., a stockholder and policyholder, and James Junius C. Dale of Alabama, a policyholder. Long and Massey Wilson were plaintiffs in a similar suit filed in Federal Court here yesterday afternoon, charging Roy C. Toombs, president of the company, with having removed and converted to his own use $3,500,000 of missing bonds.

Massey Wilson in Charge.

It was announced in court that the receivers would not operate the insurance company directly, but would place Massey Wilson, former president in charge.

Judge Reeves' decree enjoined the stockholders of the insurance company against holding a meeting scheduled to be held in St. Louis Monday, at which meeting President Toombs has been expected to appear. Judge Reeves named E. P. Wilson and R. E. Daly as receivers for the International Life, the holding concern for the life insurance company, as well as for the company itself. William L. Mason of St. Louis was appointed attorney for the receivers.

About an hour after the action in the Kansas City Federal Court, a petition drawn in the name of Ben C. Hyde, state superintendent of insurance of Missouri, was presented to Circuit Judge Hamilton here. It stated that Hyde has learned, through examination by his representatives, that the insurance company's capital stock was impaired, and that the company was insolvent, having $1,300,000 liabilities and only about $35,000,000 assets available.

It was further alleged that the receivers required by law were impaired to the extent of about $2,000,000, and that the company was without surplus, and therefore its continuance in business was attended by danger to policyholders and the public. It was stated that the combined capital and surplus of last Dec. 31 was $2,358,240, and that "$3,500,000 cash and securities have been removed, abstracted or made away with, and that on the request of representatives of the State Superintendent of Insurance, they have not been, and apparently cannot be, replaced or restored." The company has other assets, it is charged, which are not legal investments for a life insurance company, and still others which are carried on the book at figures in excess of their actual value.

Charles G. Reville and Emil Brill, as counsel for the International Life Insurance Co., appeared in court and admitted the impairment of capital stock "to such an extent and in such manner as to authorize and warrant the appointment of the state superintendent of insurance as receiver."

Hyde Not Formally Named.

Judge Hamilton thereupon entered the decree, not naming Hyde formally as receiver, but having that effect. The decree appoints the allegations of the petition.

James G. Cox, Painter, Defeats Three Other Candidates, Including His Printer.

James G. Cox, nominated on the Democratic ticket for Treasurer of St. Louis County Tuesday, filed for that office because he was out of a job and did not have anything else to do.

It was Cox's first venture in politics. He made two speeches, in one of which he merely introduced himself. In the second, he said, "Silence is golden," and sat down.

Cox defeated three other candidates, including O. E. Morton, Democratic newspaper editor, who printed 500 campaign cards for Cox on credit.

Monster Caught in Canadian Lake.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 10.—A nameless marine creature about six feet long, having an eel-like body and a head resembling that of a sheep, was on display at provincial police headquarters here today as evidence of the existence of a monster which many people have reported seeing in Lake Okanagan, in the interior of British Columbia. The strange creature was caught by the young son of Harry Alexander, Vancouver Magistrate, while trolling on the lake. Tales of the appearance of a monster in the lake have been coming from there for two years.

PRISON BOARD WILL INVESTIGATE WEBBE 'VACATION'

Chairman Does Not Approve Reformatory Head's Letting Murder Convict Loose in St. Louis.

'CRIMINALS SHOULD NOT BE OUT AT ALL'

Superintendent C. M. Harrison Says Cuckoo Gangster Had Three or Four Other Furloughs.

Immediate investigation by the State Penal Board of the action of C. M. Harrison, superintendent of the Boonville Reformatory, in granting "vacations" to Gus Webbe, murder convict and notorious Cuckoo gangster, has been ordered by A. H. Harrison, chairman of the board and director of penal institutions.

Webbe, who participated in two brutal murders the night of June 10, 1923, was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary on each of two pleas of guilty, the sentences to run concurrently, but before he had been in the penitentiary very long, he was transferred to Boonville on the solicitation of Circuit Attorney Sidener of St. Louis and Adam Henry Jones, then prosecuting attorney of St. Louis County.

Murderer Found at Large in City. The present investigation was brought about when Webbe, supposed to be in the reformatory, was found by detectives at 2:30 o'clock last Monday morning, riding about the streets of St. Louis in an automobile with his brother, Tony, also a Cuckoo gangster. Questioned at police headquarters as to why he was not at Boonville, he announced he was here for a "few days' vacation" with the consent of Supt. Harrison, and that for some time he had been acting as Harrison's personal chauffeur.

He spent the remainder of his "vacation" in Central District hold-over and was taken back to Boonville yesterday, handcuffed and guarded by three city detectives.

Supt. Harrison gave his version of the situation today. Webbe, he said, had a good record at the reformatory and had been rewarded with the job of chauffeur. Last week Harrison drove to Southern Missouri, with Webbe at the wheel, to get two boys for the reformatory. Returning through St. Louis, he said, Webbe asked for permission to stay and this was granted. He promised to return to the reformatory Friday (today).

Harrison declared he had confidence in Webbe's promise because he had taken three or four similar "vacation" trips to St. Louis and always returned on time.

Penal Board Head Disapproves. "The board will take action on this matter as soon as possible," Director A. H. Harrison said. "I will take it up with the board myself as soon as I receive a reply to my letter to Chief Clerk, with Webbe's police record."

"My personal opinion is that Webbe, or men of his type, should not be granted a leave. I don't approve of the action of Superintendent Harrison. That type of criminal should not be allowed to make trips away from the reformatory or prison at all. The board does not approve of any convict's being allowed to run around loose, or go away from the institutions without a guard. I don't believe in any convict's being out of the institutions unguarded."

Although gangsters' ages usually vary each time they are arrested, Webbe is at least 23 years old. Five years ago, after being arrested 65 times, he said he was 13 when arrested for murder.

Griffin-Surgant Murders. With four other Cuckoo gangsters on a "shooting spree," Webbe visited the Telegraph Inn, St. Louis County, the night of June 10, 1923. Patrolman William E. Griffin, off duty though in uniform, entered the roadhouse. The gangsters surrounded him. While Daniel and Oliver Hamilton stood in front of the policeman and pressed revolvers against him, it was charged, another gangster slugged the helpless man from behind. Seven shots were fired into Griffin's body.

To escape, the gangsters held up John L. Surgant, Carondelet merchant, who was in the place, and forced him to drive them into St. Louis. On Michigan avenue, near Iron street, according to the evidence, Daniels ordered the driver to stop and shot him in the head as he waited for instructions. Surgant's body was found in the street.

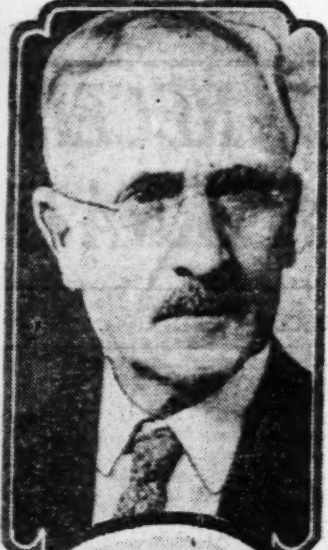

Daniels and Hamilton got the sentences. Layman Burleson, who turned State's evidence, was freed, as was Leo Cronin, who, according to Burleson, had protested against the murders.

Webbe pleaded guilty. He served nine months in the penitentiary, then was transferred to the reformatory where he served a year before parole. Ostensibly he has been an inmate of the institution for 20 months since his parole was revoked.

Webbe entered the penitentiary on April 12, 1924. On Jan. 9, 1925, he was transferred to the reformatory.

FACING INQUIRY

C. M. HARRISON,
Boonville Reformatory Superintendent.

GUS WEBBE,
Cuckoo Gangster, Murder Convict.

at the recommendation of Sidener, who had prosecuted the Surgant case, and Jones, who had prosecuted the Griffin case.

"Webbe was least guilty of all convicted in the case," Sidener wrote, "and because of his youth, he being only 13 years of age at the time of the commission of the offense, and in view of the further fact that the prosecuting attorney of St. Louis County has recommended that he be transferred to the Reformatory at Boonville, where he may be given a real employment and be accorded the advantages of an education, I hereby make the same recommendation."

Jones gave substantially the same reasons for Webbe's transfer, pointing out, in addition, that there was no evidence that Webbe had fired any shots, although he was in company with the murderers.

Merit System at Boonville. At the time of the transfer, the reformatory had a merit system which enabled inmates to obtain speedy releases by earning up to 1000 credit marks for good behavior and compliance with various rules. Under some circumstances the 1000 credits could be earned in a year or less. Under the "seven-twelfths" rule which prevails in the penitentiary, had Webbe been remained in that institution he could have effected his release on Feb. 12, 1930, at the earliest.

In the reformatory, it took Webbe 12 months to earn his 1000 credit marks, and in February, 1928, he was paroled by Superintendent Harrison to a relative in Boston with the express understanding that he stay away from St. Louis a few weeks later. Harrison has explained, he returned to a relative, and asked for permission to remain in St. Louis. Harrison said he told Webbe he would take the matter up with the Penal Board.

Meanwhile, St. Louis police had no official notice of Webbe's parole or presence in this city, although underworld gossip had informed them of the fact. While Harrison was conferring with the Penal Board, a party of tourists was held up near Collinsville. Two men were ruthlessly beaten and their wives were robbed of $354 cash. At headquarters they identified photographs of Webbe and Michael Jones. The two men were arrested together in an automobile.

Webbe was allowed to walk out on bond pending trial. His parole from the reformatory was revoked in December, 1926, but he was not returned to the reformatory until December, 1926, Harrison explains that Webbe went to Boston and avoided reformatory officers until December when he returned for a setting of the robbery case, which was dropped after his return to the reformatory.

In recent months, Harrison said, State Senator Michael Kinney of St. Louis had been urging that Webbe be paroled again because of the dismissal of the charge on which the first parole was revoked, and because of good conduct. Harrison said he was willing to take action if the St. Louis Police Department approved a parole recommendation.

Shortly after Webbe was transferred to Boonville the parole system was changed so that inmates were subject to the "seven-twelfths" rule. In reckoning Webbe's sentence as almost completed at this time, Harrison has given him the benefit of several liberal allowances, including the 10 months he was on parole and nine months

RAISES DOUBT OF GENUINENESS OF SANDINO LETTER

People's Lobby Asks Kellogg About Nicaraguan's Reputed Note in Department's 'Pink Pamphlet.'

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 301-295 Kellogg Bldg.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The People's Lobby, a liberal organization of which Prof. John Dewey of Columbia University is president, has challenged the authenticity of a letter alleged to have been written by Gen. Sandino, the Nicaraguan revolutionary, to Gen. Moncada, offering to lay down his arms, which is included in the State Department's "pink pamphlet" on the Marine occupation of Nicaragua.

In a letter to Secretary of State Kellogg today the lobby asked that neutral handwriting experts be employed to compare the letter with the known genuine signature of Gen. Sandino. The lobby challenged the alleged letter after it had received a report from Dr. G. G. Taylor, a handwriting expert of Chicago.

The alleged letter to Gen. Moncada as quoted in the "pink pamphlet," follows: "I take pleasure in informing you that having arrived at this place I have found myself in a difficult position due to the fact that all of my followers have not joined me since I have found but a few chiefs, the rest of my troops having gone to Jinotega, the place from whence they came. For this reason I feel that remaining at this place will avail me nothing. All of my followers have disbanded. I have decided to go to Jinotega to assemble my men in order to collect all the arms in the area. I shall remain there awaiting your orders. I likewise delegate my rights in order that you may arrange the matter as you see fit. Informing me of the results at Jinotega, which shall occupy with my troops. The disbanding of my men is due to their not finding anything to eat and for this reason they have left. However, I assure you that as soon as I arrive there I shall collect all the arms."

In the pamphlet the letter is signed "A. C. Sandino," apparently a typographical error for Sandino.

Pointed Questions Asked. The lobby asked the Secretary whether the letter was genuine, and whether the Marines would be withdrawn after the election in Nicaragua, and if not, why not. The lobby called attention to the grammatical mistakes, which it said Sandino would not be likely to make and noted that the department's own report on the same page stated that Sandino had promised to lay down his arms, and that he refused to accept the Stimson agreement, conflicting statements according to the lobby. The letter also asked Secretary Kellogg why the report on the financial status of Nicaragua made to the State Department in April by Dr. W. W. Cummings had not been published. According to the pamphlet, Cumberland was designated last Nov. 29 by the State Department as the suggestion of the Nicaraguan Government to meet to discuss an economic survey of Nicaragua in order that the State Department and the Nicaraguan Government might be advised regarding the advisability of an American loan.

The pamphlet indicated that the proposed loan would be used for payment of claims arising from the recent revolution, for establishing and maintaining an efficient national school, for the purpose of holding the 1928 presidential election and for the construction of the long-contemplated railroad between the capital and the Atlantic Coast.

Of course, the authenticity of the alleged Sandino letter of May 1, 1927, is not the vital question in connection with our record in Nicaragua," the People's Lobby letter concluded.

Women Send Protest. Another protest against the Marines in Nicaragua was sent to the State Department today by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. A letter to Secretary Kellogg signed by Dorothy Datzler, executive secretary of the league, said, in part: "You have commanded the respect, Mr. Secretary, and the gratitude of all peace-minded people everywhere by your initiation of the multilateral treaties. The Women's International League hailed this great step from the day of its birth not only in the United States but in all its 24 other national sections. ## CITY BORROWS $1,800,000 TO MEET PAYROLLS AND BILLS

Note Obtains at 5 Per Cent Only Part of $4,000,000 Loan He Is Authorized to Make. Comptroller Noite today borrowed for the city $1,800,000 to meet payroll and bills until taxes begin to come in late in the fall. The loan was arranged through John G. Lonsdale, president of the Clearing House Association, each of 12 banks advancing $150,000 to the city at 5 per cent interest. This is the rate, Lonsdale said, now being paid the Federal Reserve Bank on loans.

Comptroller Noite was authorized last week by a resolution of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to borrow $4,000,000, but decided $1,800,000 would be enough at this time. There is now about $2,200,000 in the city treasury, and the monthly expenditures of the city are close to $2,000,000. It is likely that more money will be borrowed later.

tion as having been admitted, and then enjoin the company and its officers from proceeding with its business.

"The Superintendent of Insurance," the decrees stated, "is investigating the company, and as such officer, with all the assets of the company. The plaintiff (Supt. Hyde) or his successors is ordered to proceed with the settlement and winding up of the affairs of the company, under direction of a St. Louis lawyer, familiar with receivership proceedings, who was in the courtroom at the time, said that 'whoever gets there first' would be likely to get control of the assets."

As Insurance Superintendent Hyde is incapacitated by illness, and Daly is the acting head of the department, it is thought that Daly will serve in Hyde's place in the Circuit Court receivership. This may not prevent conflict between the two receiverships. Daly being one of the latter as well.

The group of eight state insurance commissioners, headed by Charles R. Detrick of California, who have been examining the International Life's affairs, met today in the company's office. The meeting adjourned for luncheon about 12:30, and no statement as to its conclusions was given out.

Attorney Wilson, one of the Federal receivers, went to the meeting, where his co-receiver, Daly, was present, and sought to take over the company's assets. It was said that Wilson's answer was given to him by the commissioners.

Toombs, who has been in Chicago for more than a week, and who had been notified by the State Commission of the receivership, was not likely to make and noted that the department's own report on the same page stated that Sandino had promised to lay down his arms, and that he refused to accept the Stimson agreement, conflicting statements according to the lobby. The letter also asked Secretary Kellogg why the report on the financial status of Nicaragua made to the State Department in April by Dr. W. W. Cummings had not been published. According to the pamphlet, Cumberland was designated last Nov. 29 by the State Department as the suggestion of the Nicaraguan Government to meet to discuss an economic survey of Nicaragua in order that the State Department and the Nicaraguan Government might be advised regarding the advisability of an American loan.

The pamphlet indicated that the proposed loan would be used for payment of claims arising from the recent revolution, for establishing and maintaining an efficient national school, for the purpose of holding the 1928 presidential election and for the construction of the long-contemplated railroad between the capital and the Atlantic Coast.

Women Send Protest. Another protest against the Marines in Nicaragua was sent to the State Department today by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. A letter to Secretary Kellogg signed by Dorothy Datzler, executive secretary of the league, said, in part: "You have commanded the respect, Mr. Secretary, and the gratitude of all peace-minded people everywhere by your initiation of the multilateral treaties. The Women's International League hailed this great step from the day of its birth not only in the United States but in all its 24 other national sections. spent in jail waiting for trial for murder. Calculating from the date of Webbe's original sentence, Harrison holds that he is eligible to parole this month. Under the present system, paroles must be approved by Parole Commissioner T. S. Mosby of the Penal Board.

After Toombs acquired control of the company, he was said to have converted and disposed of to his own use, a large portion of the remaining assets of the International Life Insurance Co., and has rendered no consideration or value to the International Co. for his disposition of its property.

NEW YORK BANK OFFICER'S WIFE HANGS HERSELF

He Finds Her Body and Note of Farewell in Their Exclusive Riverside Drive Apartment.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Helen Marshall, wife of Minlan Marshall, vice president of the National City Bank, ended her life by hanging in a bedroom of their nine-room apartment on Riverside Drive, police reported yesterday. Marshall found the body suspended by a cord for an electric iron from a door in the bedroom.

Marshall refused to see newspapermen or issue a statement. It was not known whether there had been any servants in the apartment during the day, or how long Mrs. Marshall had been dead before her husband returned home. Her director's apartment is on the seventh floor of an exclusive apartment building. Mrs. Marshall left a note, addressed to her husband, in which she was said to have declared she was sorry for what she was about to do. Ill health and melancholia were given in the note as the reasons for the act. It also stated that her husband was "the best man in the world," and asked his forgiveness.

Mrs. Marshall had suffered from headaches for two months and had been attended by the family physician.

and up to this date, he has proceeded and is proceeding, continuously, fraudulently and unlawfully, and with the consent, connivance and permission of officers of the International Life Insurance Co., to convert to his own use, and to sell, pledge and hypothecate for his own purposes, at least 12,000 shares of the said life insurance company, which is the principal asset of the said company."

As to the purpose of the stockholders' meeting, the petition alleges that "Toombs and the International Life Insurance Co. are co-operating with the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. to stampede and hurry the stockholders of the International Life Insurance Co. to consenting to the proposed reinsurance contract and transfer of assets."

Stockholders of Toombs & Daly, which is the Chicago brokerage firm controlled by Toombs, are in St. Louis looking after its interests as related to the crisis in the International Life's affairs.

In Chicago last night Toombs was quoted as promising to issue a statement which would "clear up everything." An official of the Toombs & Daly Co. said Toombs expected to receive a statement of the State officials, and after time for analysis of the situation, would make a public statement.

Commissioner Detrick of California, and others of the investigating group of State officials, have announced that any plan of reorganization proposed for the International Life must eliminate Toombs from control of the company. R. E. Daly represented the Missouri insurance department in the conference.

The State officials heretofore have opposed a receivership, and have favored reinsurance of the International Life by some other company, the Missouri State Life having been most discussed in this connection.

Missouri Commissioner's Telegram Objecting to Inquiry

Text of the telegram sent by the Missouri Insurance Department to the California Insurance Department last March, refusing to permit the California department to examine the International Life Co. and calling the California commissioner's efforts a "scheme to dynamite and exploit" Missouri companies, follows:

Jefferson City, Mo.,
March 12, 1928.
Hon. Charles R. Detrick, Insurance Commissioner,
612 State Bldg.

Your letter re examination of Continental and International Life, with copies of your letters to these companies received. We are today advising these two Missouri companies not to forward the money which you demand on to permit your examiners to enter their offices.

We advised you in convention session in the New York meeting of insurance commissioners that until you had fully explained your unreasonable accusations, insinuations and conduct that you would not be permitted to examine any Missouri company and you have not done so.

We are advising Col. Burton of Virginia, chairman Examination Committee, to call a committee examination. If he feels the facts warrant and any State department, as I have repeatedly explained to you will be welcome except California department.

We object to your participation because of situation herein stated. It seems a pity that your shortsightedness, to express it charitably, would lead you to involve the States of Missouri and California in a controversy.

100 shares of its stock. We do not believe that it is possible to have a fair and impartial examination under such conditions."

Fees for Hyde Mentioned. In conclusion, these examiners wrote:

"It is our opinion that the affairs of this company are in an unsound condition, and that it is hazardous to the public to permit a continuance of business in its present condition."

"We believe this to be an excellent example of how a life insurance company should not be managed."

Little or no help in straightening out the affairs of this company can be expected from the Missouri department as the Superintendent (Ben Hyde) has collected large fees from the company for services rendered, and his close personal friends have been paid large retainer fees during the past year."

These examiners, in their report, stated that Insurance Commissioner Hyde of Missouri and the insurance commissioners of Illinois, Arkansas and Alabama had received $2500 each for coming here on Nov. 20-21, 1924, to approve a contract whereby the International Life re-insured the business of the Standard Life of Decatur, Ill. Officers of both insurance companies were practically all close personal friends of Ben Hyde, who had bought control of the International Life from Massey Wilson, Jacob L. Babier and associates in 1924, being in control of the International Life from the foregoing reports were made by examiners representing other states. Roy C. Toombs, the Chicago promoter, bought control of the company from the Whitfield syndicate last year.

Ben Hyde was appointed Insurance Commissioner by his brother, Gov. Hyde, and was reappointed by Gov. Baker. Supt. Hyde suffered a stroke of apoplexy 3 months ago and since has not been able to attend to the duties of his office.

A complaint as to the fees above mentioned was lodged with a committee of the Missouri Legislature at its last session. No investigation was made, however. The facts were published in the Post-Dispatch at that time, Hyde and the others who received fees

You may depend on it that we shall take such action as is good and proper to protect the interests of Missouri institutions against your unwarranted attack. We are advising Commissioner Burton that the Missouri department and the Missouri insurance companies referred to desire to have a convention examination by such commissioners as he may designate.

We cannot be a party to the scheme to dynamite and exploit these companies, whether known to you or not. BEN C. HYDE, Superintendent.

By Robert Daily, actuary. Detrick's request for an examination of the International Life followed the receipt on March 7 of the company's 1927 statement, showing that last Dec. 31 it had purchased $3,000,000 of securities from the Chicago firm of Toombs & Daly, also controlled by President Toombs of the International Life. Suspicious of this unusual circumstance, Detrick forced the examination which has disclosed $3,500,000 of the insurance company's securities are missing, and charging President Toombs with responsibility.

The money referred to in Daly's telegram, and which the companies were advised by the Missouri department not to forward, was for expenses of the examination sought by Commissioner Detrick.

declared they were not unusual in amount, or at all irregular. Salaries Go Up. The recent examination that disclosed a shortage of $3,500,000 in the company's assets also developed that big increases had been made in the salaries of officials of the company close to Toombs. Cash sent by the company to Toombs was on checks countersigned by other officers, among them W. O. Hampton, vice president; S. J. Kennedy, comptroller, and W. F. Granger, vice president of agencies. The examiners found that Hampton's salary was raised by Toombs from $6000 to $12,000 a year; Kennedy's from $6000 to $10,000, and Granger's from $10,000 to $15,000. The salary of Dr. George Rendelman, medical examiner, was raised from $3000 to $12,000. Toombs was down for a Manager of Contracting Firm Offices Arrested on Charge of Embezzlement.

Leo C. Hamm, 615 North Broadway, St. Louis County, manager of the Bituminous Contracting Co., with offices in the Waterway Building, was arrested yesterday afternoon at the request of Blount (Ill.) police, who said he was wanted there on a charge of embezzling $5000 in a real estate transaction.

Hamm refused to waive extradition and was released on $1000 bond. He said there was no ground for the charge against him, but he refused to discuss the details.

His attorney indicated the charge grew out of the dissolution of years ago of a real estate business in which Hamm was a partner. Disputes against Hamm were made by George P. Kellum, a retired farmer, who says he trusted $5000 to Hamm to buy a tract of land in Missouri, and that the land has not been bought or the money returned.

The national increase in salaries was noted in the examiner's report. Discussing the reported shortage in the International, Actuary Daily of Missouri said upon arrival, Wednesday that there should be more stringent regulation of insurance companies in Missouri the passage of new laws. He would not comment beyond that statement, except to remark that his first duty will be to conserve the interest of policyholders.

The officers named on the annual statement of the International Life are: Roy C. Toombs, president; W. F. Granger, vice president and general manager; E. F. Morgenstern, T. J. McKeen, W. J. Hampton and J. A. Youngman, vice presidents; W. G. Darst, secretary; George E. Toombs, brother of President Toombs, treasurer; Charles G. Reville, general counsel; S. J. Kennedy, comptroller; T. C. The board of directors is composed of Toombs and his brother, Darst, Granger, Hampton, Kennedy, McKeen, Morgenstern, Rendelman, Reville and Youngman.

LACLEDE VALUED $8,366,000 TOO HIGH, CITY SAYS

Valuation Attacked as Excessive in Brief Opposing Proposed Rate Increase Before State Commission

OVERCHARGE FALLS ON CONSUMERS

Many Expenses of Gas Concern Term Unlawful—Board Set Valuation at $45,600,000 in 1926.

In a brief filed with the State Public Service Commission today, opposing the Laclede Gas Light Co.'s application to increase gas rates to domestic consumers by more than $1,400,000 annually, the city contends that claimed value of the company's property is excessive and should be reduced at least $3,366,768. The commission had fixed the value of the gas department property in November, 1926, at $45,600,000.

The commission's allowance of $5,318,000 for going value included in the fair value is excessive by at least $2,966,000. It is argued in the brief, prepared by City Counselor Muench and Associate Counselor Ferris.

A large part of the operating expenses upon which the company predicated its claim for the increase rates "are excessive and increased rates" are excessive and abnormal and furnish no guide for reasonable expenses for the future. The brief goes on, and the company has completely changed its operating methods by a new practice of purchasing gas.

$200,000 for Managerial Services. Included in the operating expenses is a $200,000 annual payment for "alleged supervisory and managerial services" to the holding corporation, the Laclede Gas and Electric Co., which the city contends is "unjustified and unlawful."

The company, in its own brief, also filed with the commission today, admitted that about $200,000 which it had paid in this way to the holding corporation in 1924-27 should not be charged to operating expenses in determining whether a rate increase should be granted. However, the company added, even deducting this sum from expenses and adding it to the fund available for return, the return still would fall below the minimum of 7 per cent upon valuation fixed by the commission.

Other grounds of attack by the city against the rate increase are summarized as follows: The company failed to allow for normal increases in revenue to be expected from a growing business, and from the reduction in rates proposed for home-heating and industrial consumers as a means of promoting business.

Reserve Charges Excessive. Company charges against the reserve are excessive and erroneous, in that they are based on value and not original cost of retired property.

A credit balance in the depreciation reserve is incorrect and should be increased by $501,000.

"The company's estimated revenue requirements are based upon an 8 per cent return upon its actual value. It has been clearly established that 6 per cent constitutes a reasonable rate of return at this time."

Expert evidence has shown, for the city, that the form of the present rate schedule is more equitable for consumers and more applicable to company needs than the proposed one.

The proposed rates would exceed those voluntarily established by the St. Louis County Gas Co., a small utility operating under less favorable circumstances in adjacent territory.

Contracts for purchase of gas from interrelated companies call for excessive payments, the cost being greater than the company's own manufacturing cost. These purchases are charged to consumers as "unearned and unwarranted profit" for the holding corporation.

The company, it is claimed, is charging "excessive and extravagant amounts" for operating expenses as the result of expenditures in seeking increases in rates and valuation from the commission. Methods followed by the company have all the earmarks of exploitation and, the city contends, are designed, not to give the consumer the best service possible at a reasonable rate, but to give the owners of the controlling interest in the

LAKE VALUED $8,366,000 TOO HIGH, CITY SAYS

Valuation Attacked as Excessive in Brief Opposing Proposed Rate Increase
Before State Commission

OVERCHARGE FALLS ON CONSUMERS

Many Expenses of Gas Concern Termed Unlawful—Board Set Valuation at $45,600,000 in 1926.

In a brief filed with the State Public Service Commission today, opposing the Lake City Gas Light Co.'s application to increase gas rates to domestic consumers by more than $1,400,000 annually, the city contends that claimed value of the company's property is excessive and should be reduced at least $8,366,788. The commission had fixed fair value of the gas department property in November, 1926, at $45,600,000.

The commission's allowance of $5,118,000 for going value included in the fair value is excessive by at least $3,968,000, it is argued in the city brief, prepared by City Counsel Muench and Associate Counsel Ferris.

A large part of the operating expenses upon which the company predicates its claim for the increased rates "are excessive and unlawful," the brief contends, and measuring or determining the reasonable expenses for the future," the brief goes on, and the company has completely changed its operating methods by a new practice of purchasing gas.

The company, in its own brief, admitted that about $200,000 which it had paid in this way to the holding corporation in 1926-27 should not be charged to operating expenses in determining whether a rate increase should be granted.

However, the company added, even deducting this sum from expenses and adding it to the fund available for return, the return still would fall below the minimum of 7 per cent upon valuation fixed by the commission.

Other grounds of attack by the city against the rate increase are summarized as follows:
The company failed to allow for normal increases in revenue to be expected from a growing business, and from the reduction in rates proposed for house-heating and industrial consumers as a means of promoting business.

Actual retirement expenses and the claimed annual depreciation allowance are excessive.

Reserve Charges Excessive.
Company charges against the reserve are excessive and erroneous, in that they are based on value and not original cost of retired property.

The credit balance in the depreciation reserve is incorrect and should be increased by $501,000.

The company's estimated revenue requirements are based upon an annual profit return upon an excessive value. It has been clearly established that 6 per cent constitutes a reasonable rate of return at this time.

Expert evidence has shown, for the city, that the form of the resultant rate schedule is more equitable for consumers and more applicable to company needs than the proposed one.

The proposed rates would exceed those voluntarily established by the St. Louis County Gas Co., a small utility operating under less favorable circumstances in adjacent territory.

Contracts for purchase of gas from interrelated companies call for excessive payments, the cost being greater than the company's own manufacturing cost. These purchases are charged to consumers as operating expenses, but provide an "unearned and unwarranted profit" for the holding corporation.

The company, it is claimed, is charging "excessive and extravagant amounts" to operating expenses as the result of expenditures in seeking increases in rates and valuation from the commission.

Methods followed by the company have all the earmarks of plottings and the city concluded
"are designed, not to give the consumer the best service possible at a reasonable rate, but to give the owners of the controlling interest in the company directly, through unwarranted charges to operating expenses and indirectly through contracts with affiliated companies, an excessive return on their investment."

Necessity of the increase in depreciation allowance from 1 to 3.1 per cent annually is attacked by the city in its brief. With this allowance increased, the company estimates, the new rates would provide a 7.31 per cent return on the valuation by the commission, but if the depreciation fund is not increased the return will be 8.6 per cent.

THIRTY SHOTS FIRED IN AUTO CHASE OF THIEF THREE IN FAMILY DIE OF POISON; THREE ILL

Pedestrians Scatter as Police Capture Confessed Robber
After Running Fight.

While pedestrians scattered for cover, two detectives in a police car and an automobile thief engaged in a pistol fight about 9:10
a. m. today, while their machines sped along for several blocks.
The stolen car, which the police were chasing, finally was shot against a telephone pole and detectives caught the driver after a race on foot. He said he was William Hamilton, 26 years old, of Evansville, Ind., and admitted turning highwayman here after spending his vacation money. He said he had been a salesman and had come to St. Louis July 29.

Detectives Wendt and Washburn, cruising in a department car, noticed a stolen license plate on a Dodge sedan at Jefferson and Gravois avenue. They hailed the driver who put on speed and streaked away.

Washburn fired a shot at the gas tank of the fugitive car and the youth at the wheel, turning for a second, returned the fire. Women screamed and passersby jumped for hallways.

After several blocks, the driver turned suddenly into Dolman street, side-swiped a fence, and got back into the street as the detectives' car turned the corner. Two patrolmen, taking up the chase, also began to shoot. At Dolman street and Shennandoah, the driver wrecked his car. More than 30 shots were fired in the chase.

Hamilton admitted taking the automobile from Thomas J. Blest of 508 Gifford street, St. Louis County, last Saturday at pistol point near Thirteenth and Chestnut streets, police said.

He also admitted, according to police, holding up a drug store this morning at 3161 Spring avenue, taking $7; robbing the grocery store at 3458 Illinois street last Tuesday of $24, and taking store at 1218 Pestalozzi street Monday.

ing flown a plane over the Teterboro Airport July 26 without displaying the proper identification marks. The airplane designer will have an opportunity to present his case to the Secretary of Com-

UNION ELECTRIC MAN KILLED. TOUCHED HIGH TENSION WIRE

Everett Robinson, 37, Flung from Pole in Front of 426 South
Seventh Street.

Everett Robinson, 34 years old,
a foreman for the Union Electric Co., was killed early this afternoon when in repairing a transformer on a telegraph pole in front of 426 South Seventh street, he touched a high tension wire.

His body was flung out from the pole and fell a distance of 10 feet to the ground. Fellow workmen gave him first aid and within a few minutes a rescue crew arrived with inhalators. Forty-five minutes of effort to restore life was without result.

He lived at 1417 Hills Terrace.

MAN KILLED WHEN AUTO AND TRUCK COLLIDE IN COUNTY

John McDonnell, 4156 Natural Bridge, Fatally, and August Debrecht Seriously Hurt on Gravois Road.

John E. McDonnell, 34 years old, 4156 Natural Bridge avenue, was killed, and his companion, August Debrecht, 39 years old, 1734 Pennsylvania avenue, was seriously injured early today when Debrecht's automobile collided with a truck on Gravois road, near Busch's farm.
Debrecht is unconscious at St. Anthony's Hospital.

The men were taken to St.
Anthony's Hospital at 2:30 o'clock by motorists, who found Debrecht seated in his wrecked machine and McDonnell lying in the roadway.
McDonnell died a short time later of a fractured skull. Debrecht was found to have suffered a fractured skull.

Police later learned that Debrecht's car had collided with a truck of the Hartman Produce Co., 1121 North Third street, driven by Cleo Collins, residing in Wester Groves. Collins is at the Jewish Hospital suffering from lacerations of the limbs and body.

Driver of Auto Flees After Running Down Butcher.

Arthur Evans, 20, a butcher, 718A North Eighteenth street, suffered a fractured skull at 7 o'clock last night when struck by an automobile, the driver of which fled, while attempting to cross the street at Cass avenue and Ninth street. Police later found a car answering the description of the machine striking Evans parked in front of 653 Biddle street. License plates on the car, a Buick, had been issued for a Ford and police are searching for the owner.

Miss Stella Hayes, 24, 2505 South
Broadway, suffered head injuries, and John Brandt, 58, 5351 Arsenal street, a roofing contractor, was cut and bruised at 11 p. m. when Brandt lost control of his Packard sedan in the 3500 block of South Kingshighway and the machine struck two street light poles.

Lindest Clayton, 5522 Odell avenue, was injured internally at 7
p. m. when he was swept from the top of a boiler, which was being moved by motor truck, by trolley wires at Seventh street, near Clea-vland avenue, George Johnson, driver of the truck, lost control of the machine following the accident to Clayton and the truck collided with a street light standard.

Stevens Schmidt, 44, 320 Carroll street, a roofing contractor, was killed and suffered a fractured spine and internal injuries early today when the small truck he was driving was crowded off the Florissant road, near Ferguson St., St. Louis County, by an automobile.
The truck was driven by George

HELD FOR TRIAL FOR KILLING STEPFATHER WITH A HAMMER

Charles Durbin, 17, Fails to Obtain Dismissal at Preliminary Hearing Before Gayer.

Charles Durbin, 17 years old, 933 Arsenal street, who killed his stepfather, Joseph F. Meyer, with a hammer June 21, was held for trial at a preliminary hearing
today before Judge Gayer in the Court of Criminal Correction. He is charged with manslaughter.

Testimony was that Durbin accompanied his mother, Mrs. Mattie Meyer, on June 21, was held for trial at a preliminary hearing
today before Judge Gayer in the Court of Criminal Correction. He
is charged with manslaughter.

Durbin did not testify although his attorney pleaded for his release, arguing he had done what any other young man would have done in the circumstances. Judge Gayer said he preferred that a jury decide the case. Durbin was released under $2500 bond.

Last of Mitzi Shop Fixtures Auctioned Off

Elaborate Furnishings Said to Be Worth $50,000, Bring About 10 Per Cent at Forced Sale.

The exclusive Mitzi shop, at 392-94 North Euclid avenue, where Mrs. Nellie T. Muench, a physician's wife, sold ultramodern dresses to a wealthy clientele up to last April, when she went bankrupt, was denuded of its last gold-framed mirrors and gilded clocks yesterday following a forced auction.

Women fanned themselves on the pink and gold Louis Seize chairs before these were sold, and bid half-heartily for elaborately framed mirrors and console tables. R. M.
Zerppenfeld, Mrs. Muench's attorney, and also attorney for several creditors, bought up most of the rugs, mirrors, cabinets, screens, andirons, lamps, chairs, sofas and iron grill work put on the block.

The amount of money realized was approximately $5500. The fixtures had been sold before, but legal action by a creditor nullified the first auction. The money from yesterday's sale will be put in escrow until the court orders disposition of it. Frocks and ready-to-wear garments owned by the shop brought $4000 at another auction sale several weeks ago.

Several rather small Persian rugs went under the hammer yesterday at prices ranging from $1.50 to $165. One was said to be worth $1000. A Louis XVI table brought $300. Several huge ballroom mirrors were sold for from $250 to $300. Showcases, fashion dummies, electric light fixtures, steel filing cabinets, were sold along with boudoir hand mirrors and dainty screens.

The proceedings were interrupted but once when Mrs. Muench, present in a striking red hat and coat, called out to the auctioneer:
"Here, you can't sell that. It's a family heirloom."

The auctioneer bowed and said:
"Madame, I have orders to sell everything. A nice little antique chair, my good people!"

"I tell you it can't be sold," Mrs. Muench shouted. "Call Mr.
Bayer."

E. L. Bayer, trustee in bankruptcy of Mrs. Muench's concern, talked at length with the former shop mistress. A few minutes later the auctioneer announced regretfully: "I can't sell you that chair right now, good people, but don't go home. I may sell it later."

The chair was not sold and is likely to be the result of additional litigation. Mrs. Muench said it belonged to her father.

The Mitzi shop was said to be worth at least $50,000 in decorations and fixtures, exclusive of garments. If so, the sale netted an approximate 10 per cent of the full value.

The shop was in financial difficulties for several months before creditors threw it into bankruptcy. Mrs. Muench's debts are said to total about $60,000, with the number of creditors about 80.

Bayer, when he investigated the shop as receiver, said he thought it could be run at a profit, and its obligations in this way discharged. Mrs. Muench was sent to New York to buy new dresses, and the saleswomen, the bookieoper, the secretary and the Negro maid were retained. Three creditors did not approve of the arrangement, however, and forced the auctions of stock and fixtures to satisfy debts. The auctions were ordered by Referee in Bankruptcy Coles.

The assets had been estimated at more than $60,000, but the two sales have netted an aggregate of slightly more than $9000. Ben J.
Kirk & Sons conducted the auction.

Mrs. Muench's husband is Dr.
Ludwig P. Muench of 4736 Westminster place.

ing for Los Angeles. She said she had traveled 52,000 miles in three years by hitch-hiking, riding freights or stowing away on ships.
"I've seen every State in Union and Canada and Germany and Mexico, and I'm going to see South America, South Africa, China, Paris, Russia, England and Italy," she said. "All I do is sell photographs. Jack Dempsey gave me $25 for one, and if I'd only had more pictures when I went to Germany I could have made a fortune."

"Hobo" Simpson, as she called herself at that time, had just returned from an ocean journey after being caught as a stowaway on board a German boat and shipped back to America.

GLIDERS BEAT OWN MARKS

One German Flies 44.6 Miles and Another, Ascends 2542 Feet.
By the Associated Press.

RIESEN AIRDROME, Germany,
Aug. 10.—Two German glider flyers who set world's records Wednesday, today bettered those marks.

Nehring flew 72 kilometers (44.6 miles) bettering his former mark of 43.4 miles. Dittmar raised the altitude record from 652 meters to 775 meters (2542.5 feet).

FOURTH WIFE DIVORCES CHRISTIAN PEPPER BELL

She Gets Decree at Reno, Nev., on Ground of Cruelty.

Christian Pepper Bell, son of Nicholas M. Bell, veteran Democratic politician and one-time party leader, was divorced yesterday at Reno, Nev., by his fourth wife, Mrs. Daphne Doyle Bell. She charged extreme cruelty. The hearing was brief. Bell did not contest the action.

Mrs. Bell charged that her husband drank habitually and when intoxicated was abusive to her and her friends. On one occasion, she declared, he tore a new dress from her back and on another occasion at the Windsor Hotel in St. Louis he threatened her.

Bell, who inherited $200,000 from his grandfather, Christian Pepper, a tobacco manufacturer, is 35 years old. His first wife divorced him in April, 1918, and five days later he married Mrs.
Helen E. Bell, who divorced him in February, 1925.

In August, 1926, he married Miss Hattie Geers at Topeka, Kan., and in 1923 he was sentenced to the workhouse for non-support, but was paroled on his promise to pay $40 a month. The third wife divorced him in July, 1927, but in the meantime, on Sept. 23, 1924, Bell had married Miss Doyle at Texarkana, Ark. They repeated the ceremony at St. Charles, Mo., in August, 1927.

Bell's relations with his father, who resides at 4442 West Pine boulevard, were broken up in 1925 when the fourth wife sued the elder Bell for $100,000, charging alienation of affections. Bell charged that his son had promoted the suit which was subsequently dropped. Besides the inheritance from his grandfather, much of which has been tied up by litigation, young Bell has received substantial sums from the estates of his mother and an uncle.

FRUIT COMBINATIONS FOR SUMMER MEALS

Many Ways of Using Fruit in Appetizing and Delicious Dishes.

There are many ways in which fruit can be used to advantage in the summer diet. An acid fruit for breakfast starts the day well as it stimulates the intestinal juices and increases the appetite. For luncheon, a fruit salad may form the main course, or a fruit cup may be served as an appetizer or a fruit dessert used instead of either. In desserts the fruits are often stewed or cooked in combination with other foods. Fruit is good in any way in which it is used.

Variety in flavor, so far as French dressing is concerned, can easily be obtained by using lemon or fresh lime juice instead of vinegar or using any of the fresh fruit jellies, such as pineapple, strawberry, raspberry, etc., when serving the dressing with a fruit salad. Fruit beverages are valuable for their cooling effect on the system and should be used often. Fresh limes may be added to iced tea or any other fruit juices instead of lemon juice for variety in flavor. Lime juice is, perhaps, one of the most refreshing of any of the fruit juices and is especially valuable for its antiscorbutic properties.

There are a few simple rules to follow in caring for the summer fruits in order to prevent them from spoiling. Fresh fruit should always be kept cold, but it must also be kept dry. Therefore, the refrigerator is not always the best place for storage. Turn berries out of their boxes on to a shallow plate in order to prevent them molding. Peaches and pears should be separated from each other by being wrapped in soft paper, otherwise, they are apt to rot on the spots where they touch. It is best to pick over fruit and remove any that has started to decay, otherwise, the decay will spread rapidly. Do not put melons or pineapples near other foods as they have a tendency to impart their flavor in a way that is not always agreeable.

THERE is no finer tea grown than India Tea. Its refreshing fragrance and flavor have made it world-famous. There is no better tea for iced tea than India tea, because chilling does not weaken its rich flavor. You can enjoy the rich, refreshing flavor of India Tea if the package of tea you buy bears the map of India.

HOSTESS CAN DEPEND ON PEACH DESSERTS

This Most Delicious of Fruits Has Numerous Culinary Uses.

The hostess entertaining this month can make a wise use of that most delicious of fruits—the peach. It is perhaps at its best when its flavor is unimpaired by the addition of other foods. There are, however, times when it is necessary to use it in other ways and the following recipes offer a few delicious desserts in which fresh peaches form the main ingredient.

Shortcake Is Popular. Peach shortcake is another popular dessert and one that admits many variations. Like its friendly rival, the strawberry shortcake, it may be made with unsweetened or slightly sweetened biscuit dough or a sponge cake mixture, depending on individual preference. A good sponge cake variation of this shortcake is a peach cream roll which calls for three eggs, three tablespoons of sugar, three tablespoons of flour and one-half teaspoon of baking powder. Two cups of crushed peaches and one cup of cream whipped stiff.

Beat the egg yolks and the sugar together until light and add the flour that has been sifted with the baking powder. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and spread the mixture in a lightly greased large shallow pan. Bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for eight minutes. Turn the pan upside down and let stand until cool. When cold loosen the cake from the pan. Sweeten the mashed peaches and mix with the whipped cream. Spread a thick layer over the cake and roll up like a jelly roll. Spread the rest of the cream over the top and serve very cold.

Peach Salad. Fresh peach salad is another very good company dish which may be served either as a luncheon salad or for the afternoon or evening bridge. Use the large ripe

ICED COCOA AND CHOCOLATE ARE HOT WEATHER DRINKS

Iced drinks are the order of the day. Though comparatively few housewives serve iced chocolate and iced cocoa, both are delicious hot weather drinks, being especially suitable for children's luncheons and afternoon refreshments.

To make iced cocoa take three tablespoons of cocoa, four tablespoons sugar, one cup boiling water and one quart scalded milk. The milk should be scalded in the top of a double boiler. While it is heating, the sugar, cocoa and water mixed may be cooked for five or ten minutes with occasional stirring. The scalded milk is then added and the whole beaten with a Dover egg beater until a foam is formed over the top. When served cold, a glass should be filled two-thirds full of cracked ice and the cocoa poured on the ice. One tablespoon of sweetened whipped cream is added.

Iced Chocolate. Iced chocolate is made with two squares of chocolate, two to four tablespoons sugar, few grains of salt, one cup cold water and three cups milk. Place chocolate, sugar and salt in saucepan and add water and boil one minute, stirring until the chocolate melts. Add the milk and reheat but do not boil. Then remove from stove and beat with egg beater until light and foamy. Cool and hot chocolate and pour over cracked ice in tall glasses. Serve with whipped cream or with a spoonful of ice cream on top.

To Keep Cut Ham. In slicing from a large ham, rub the cut side and bone with salt. This will keep the ham wholesome.

yellow peaches. Scald and pour boiling water over them and slip of the skins. Roll the peaches in orange or lemon juice to prevent discoloring and chill them thoroughly. Then cut them in half and remove the seeds. Arrange on lettuce. Fill the center with cream cheese that has been seasoned with salt and a little sugar and mixed with as much grated coconut as it will take up. Garnish the cheese with a narrow strip of candied ginger or a piece of preserved fig and serve with cream mayonnaise.

WALDORF—Soft and absorbent, yet inexpensive. Any family can afford it.

SCOTT TISSUE—Pure white, delightfully fine and soft—like "old linen."

Now on all sides careful housewives are heeding the physician's warning: "For your family's sake, buy only specially made tissues for bathroom use."

580 doctors, recently questioned, are on record: "Inferior toilet papers are injurious."

Doctor J. F. Montague, a famous specialist, of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College Clinic, speaks forcefully in his recent book, Troubles We Don't Talk About:

"By the use of too coarse a toilet tissue, much harm may be done. We can... adopt for bathroom use a tissue, such as Scott Tissue, which is soft and free from alkali bleaching material. By its gentle use we can accomplish cleansing without damage to the skin."

Insist on Absorbency Softness - Purity

Many so-called toilet tissues sold today are simply ordinary tissue paper in rolls. They may be glazed, abrasive, impure.

Scott tissues are specially made—to meet the strictest medical requirements. Note how absorbent Scott Tissue and Waldorf are. They sink in water almost instantly.

How soft and fine-textured! You can feel no harsh edges. They are bland, cloth-like. And they are chemically and mechanically safe. You need never ask for toilet paper. Ask for Scott Tissue or Waldorf. They fit all standard-size recess fixtures.

VALUE OF ORANGE JUICE

Recent Research Has Developed Knowledge on This Subject. The value of orange juice in the baby's diet has been known for some time and is well established, but recent experiments have proved conclusively that the addition of a small amount of orange juice to cow's milk aids in the digestion of the milk mixture. An addition of the fruit juice to the milk causes the formation of very fine curds which are more easily digested than the use of plain cow's milk. The use of orange juice may be started at birth and it helps in the development of the digestive system. Most of the bulky food of some infants is due to the fact that the milk is not properly digested.

COLD REFRESHMENTS FOR PORCH PARTIES

Afternoon and Evening Parties Planned With Cold Delicacies.

The most informal of entertaining is all that is expected of the August hostess. When the weather is too uncomfortable to allow of much "fuss and feathers" guests are most comfortable when little is required of them in the way of social effort. So far as food is concerned—and, after all, even for us grownups, food very often makes the party—choose that which is cooling and as simple as possible.

If you have a wide porch, use it instead of your living room or dining room, even for the serving of refreshments. Informal suppers or luncheons can attractively be served on a porch. One clever hostess made use of a novel idea which I am passing on to you. Her porch is a wide one and is equipped with several electric outlets for lamps and has, in addition, two wall brackets for additional lights. She made use of the floor outlets for an electric waffle iron and percolator, and the guests were delighted to be served with waffles hot from the iron.

A bowl of cracked ice supplied the necessary requisite for the making of iced coffee for those who preferred it served in that way. A bowl of crushed fruit—raspberries, crushed, sweetened and flavored with a little red currant juice—was used as a sauce for the waffles.

A cool salad of jellied cucumber, shredded cabbage and diced pineapple with dairy cream dressing sandwiches formed the first course with the waffles for dessert. There were only six people, which made it possible to do with one waffle iron, and not much delay in the cooking. However, if more guests are to be served, it would be perhaps better to plan a waffle iron for each four people. Borrow them from your neighbors and have a sort of community supper affair.

For afternoon gatherings make use of your porch again and serve refreshments from a tea wagon or a small table. Usually it is lots more comfortable so far as the guests are concerned either to serve them around card tables or to use the nests of tables that were so popular a year or so ago, placing one between each two or three people to hold glasses or coffee cups. It is quite a difficult feat to balance a cup on one's knee and eat from a plate at the same time. When iced drinks are served, it is even more uncomfortable than with hot ones.

Afternoon refreshments of well-chilled fruit salads, making use of the summer fruits in such combination, for instance, as diced cantaloupe or honeydew melon, slices of seedless orange, cubes of fresh pineapple that have been sprinkled with powdered sugar and let stand for an hour to develop flavor, with a few large cherries cut in half for color and served with a honey dressing or with a cream-mayonnaise and crisp white lettuce is sure to be favorably received.

Some people prefer hot drinks, while others feel that a cold one is the only thing possible. The carbonated beverages offer many possibilities in the line of providing novel cold drink mixtures. Ginger ale served with a ball of orange ice or vanilla ice cream in a tall glass makes a good home-made soda mixture. Sarsaparilla and ice cream is equally popular. Grape juice diluted with plain soda and served with a ball of orange ice or pineapple ice is another enticing possibility.

Because these are a little bit different from the usual run of beverages served, they are sure to be received with appreciation and the August hostess will do well to use her inventive imagination in producing others.

USEFUL BANANAS ARE AN ALL-SEASON FRUIT
In its ripened stage or when cooked in an unripe condition, the banana is easily assimilated by old and young. Doctors and dietetic experts have convinced the public of its therapeutic as well as nourishing qualities. As it is chiefly a carbohydrate food, it is one of the most important energy-giving fruits available.
When combined with milk it makes an ideal ration, supplying the body with all that it needs. The banana has an appreciable quantity of mineral salts and protein, essential to our health and well-being, and is not lacking in vitamins.
For a few cents you can get this fruit, 245 days in the year. Especially now in the summer season it is plentiful and an ideal summer fruit. It is germ-proof, sealed by nature, and is, therefore, free from contamination of any kind whatever.
Since cold prevents it from ripening properly, it should never be kept in an ice chest. The normal room temperature is what it requires. As soon as the skin is a deep yellow, flecked with brown, and every trace of green is gone, then it is ready to be eaten by small children as well as grown-ups. It is an ideal supplement to the child's daily diet, supplying it with the nourishment that its restless little body needs.
When making banana salad it is always a good idea to sprinkle a few drops of lemon juice on the slices of bananas so as to keep them from turning brown. If the salad is prepared well in advance of the meal.

Now—Comes Soap in Condensed Form and Like Condensed Foods, Saves You Money

FROM the laboratories of the Palmolive-Peet Company, one of the world's largest soap-makers, comes this new invention... soap in condensed form.

Knowing the savings made by condensing milk, vegetables and other food products, our chemists strove to apply these same economy principles to soap.

Kwiksol is the result. This is a unique new-type soap from which have been removed 57% air and 20% moisture.

Our laboratory tests show that Kwiksol will go farther and wash quicker than any soap we know. A package contains two and one-third times as much as it would if Kwiksol were of ordinary density. That's vital. Think of the saving! This new condensed soap has tremendous detergent power. An automatic water-softening agent greatly hastens its cleaning action. Stained and grimy clothes—the soiled line of cuffs and collars—Kwiksol cleanses these with a speed and thoroughness new in your experience.

Kwiksol will not hurt your hands, powerful detergent though it is. Use this condensed soap just as you would any other. For dishes, washing fine things, cleaning, laundry.

By simply lifting the package when you buy this condensed soap, you can see how much more you get for your money. Kwiksol weighs over 1½ pounds. Probably never have you bought a package of soap so heavy for its price, 25 cents.

We invite you to try Kwiksol. One package will enable you to see how much longer this new kind of soap lasts, how much

CRABMEAT MAIN DISHES FIT INTO THE MENU NICELY

A Change of Menu Is One of the Vexing Problems of the Day.

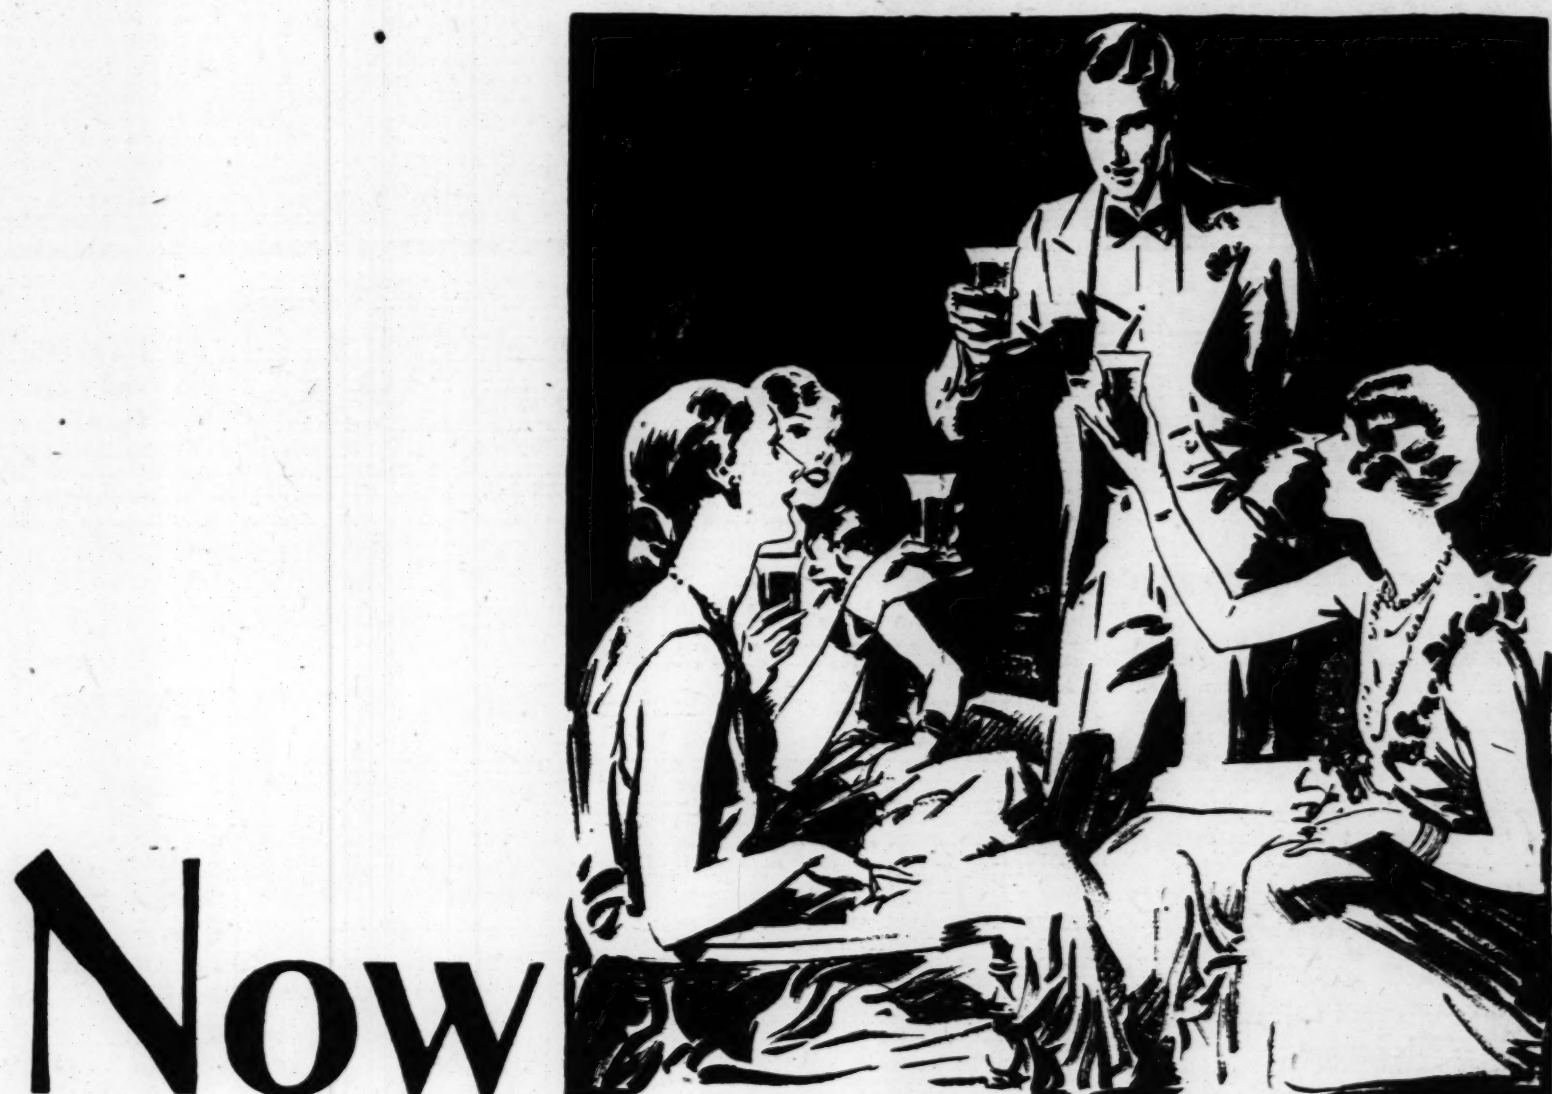

For crab a la Newburg put two tablespoons butter in a saucepan.

When melted remove from fire and add two tablespoons flour; stir until smooth; then add two cups of cold milk slowly; salt and pepper and mace to taste, and boil three minutes, stirring constantly until smooth and creamy. Then add a can of crabmeat from which bones have been removed, and cook three or four minutes. For crab au gratin make a cream sauce of one pint milk, pepper, a little salt, lump butter, one tablespoon flour and grated cheese. cook until smooth. Add one small can crabmeat that has been shredded, mix and put in dish that will stand oven heat, sprinkle of mixture with a little cracker crumbs, grated cheese and a few bits of butter and bake to a golden brown. A Sunday Chicken Dinner. Sprinkle young chicken with salt and pepper and brown delicately with two sliced onions in hot fat. Remove chicken and add one-fourth cup flour. Blend well and add one cup each white stock and strained tomato pulp and simmer gently until tender. Remove chicken to serving dish, and in well-seasoned gravy reheat one-fourth pound cooked and drained macaroni and serve immediately with crisp parsley.

Why don't you eat y to slimmess? by Mary Blake

Are you one of those feminine persons who, over your French pastry and hot chocolate, sigh for a sylphlike figure? Overweight usually comes from over-eating. Yet a radically restricted diet is dangerous, and difficult to maintain, because of our natural craving for a variety of foods. The way to reduce is not by eliminating anything from the diet, but by cutting down the quantity of everything, making the sharpest cuts in concentrated foods, which are particularly fattening—sugar, cakes and candy, cream, pie and such slenderness-reckling delicacies. Eat lean meats. Use mineral oil in salad dressings. Mineral oil, not being assimilated, adds no calories to the diet. Your meals should consist largely of vegetables, fruits and milk. They supply important food values—and no diet is safe which ignores this necessity—but they are not fattening. Of these milk is the most important, because it supplies as no other single food does, everything needed for bodily health, growth and activity. You can include it in your diet in various ways. A cream soup gives you a comfortable feeling of having lunched well, supplying essential food values without impeding your weight. Milk should be used in the preparation of simple desserts to replace rich pie and cake. Custards, blanc manges and other milk puddings are nourishing, and do not threaten increased poundage. ### CEREALS AND SUMMER MEALS

Cereals should be used even in warm weather and any left over may be poured into very small molds or into after-dinner coffee cups and put aside to chill. Served the next morning with crushed fresh fruit and cream they seem like an entirely different dish. The family will enjoy like them even better served the second morning than the first. They are also especially good for supper dishes for small children.

RECIPES FOR DISHES

IN WEEK'S MENUS

Tested Recipes Are One of the Efficient Aids to Menu Building.

Roast duck makes a welcome change in the family meat supply and is one that is well adapted to the summer menu. Ducks are comparatively inexpensive at this time of year, are excellent in flavor and are easy to cook. They are best when roasted and may be stuffed if desired. Main poultry stuffing made of bread and raisins, pine nuts, or a mixture of bread crumbs, chopped celery, chopped apple with a little onion and poultry seasoning for added flavor are all good.

If a baked stuffing is used, allow one-quarter cup of raisins with an equal amount of water until they have absorbed the water. Then add them to two cups of bread crumbs. Mix in one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of onion, one tablespoon of melted fat, a teaspoon of minced onion and enough boiling water to hold the mixture together. In serving the duck, remember that the bread will swell, so do not stuff it too full. Duck is quite fat so that only a very small amount of shortening is required.

Sprinkle the duck with flour and a little salt and roast in a covered pan, allowing one-half hour for each pound.

Scalloped Vegetables.
Any mixture of vegetables may be useful in making the scalloped dish that is served on Thursday for lunch. Add enough cream sauce to the vegetables to moisten them, put them in a greased shallow baking dish, spread with buttered bread crumbs and brown in a hot oven.

Blueberry Muffins.
Sift together two cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, three teaspoons of baking powder and two tablespoons of sugar. Beat one egg, add two-thirds cup of milk, two tablespoons of melted shortening. Stir the liquid into the dry mixture and beat until smooth. Then add one and one-half cups of ripe blueberries that have been picked over, washed and thoroughly drained. Pour into well greased muffin pans and make in a hot oven—400 degrees—for 20 minutes or until brown. This makes nine large or 12 small muffins.

Casserole of Lamb.
Cut two or three pounds lamb into pieces, roll in flour and brown delicately with one-fourth cup sliced onions in two tablespoons butter or drippings. Add two cups strained stewed tomatoes, one and a half teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika and one-half teaspoon sugar. Arrange alternate layers of the lamb and brown rice in a casserole dish, using in all about one-fourth cup rice. Barely cover with boiling water, cover and bake in a slow oven two or three hours.

MELONS AND CANTALOUPES HAVE GREAT FOOD VALUE

Cantaloupes, especially, repairs damage brought about by acid-forming foods. The grinning pickaninny who has become a standardized illustration of any story that has to do with watermelon knows what he is about: When he sees his white shining teeth into the pink and juicy flesh he is, of course, not bothering his head about it, but that same watermelon is doing a lot for him. It is giving him phosphorus so that he can clatter and play and study without any thought of the intricate going on inside of his little body. It gives him lime so that those aforementioned teeth will remain hard and white. It even gives him some body building food, although, like under drink this is furnished in comparatively small portions. Not being a student of dietetics, however, our little pickaninny does not use the very best judgment at the choice of melons. Were he to transfer his allegiance to cantaloupe, he would be getting considerable more. First of all, cantaloupe would go almost twice as far in keeping his blood alkaline, although it will probably be many years before he is conscious of acidity. Even so, however, there is nothing like prevention. This is the chief advantage of cantaloupe over watermelon, for the two are practically the same so far as lime and phosphorus are concerned. The other advantage that the cantaloupe has over the watermelon is the fact that it contains a decided trace of iron and iron which watermelon lacks.

ATTRACTIVE MENUS FOR PLATE MEALS

These Suggestions Will Be Found Most Helpful for Porch Meals.

Cold plate meals lend themselves readily and appetizingly to the summer hostess' plans. They may be composed of meat, fish, vegetables or even fruit, depending on the type of meal that is to be served.

A summer luncheon might, for instance, be made up entirely of a cold fruit plate. We are accustomed to vegetable plates, but a fruit plate will be a novelty to many people.

This would make a splendid porch meal and the idea might be carried out as it was in the one I have in mind, when flat woven baskets covered with paper doilies were used instead of plates. These may be bought inexpensively in most of the Japanese or Chinese shops, or large flat plates covered with fresh grape or strawberry leaves will present a refreshing and rather unusual appearance.

So far as the arrangement of food is concerned, place in the center of a crisp lettuce leaf or a leaf of romaine half of a ripe banana which has been split lengthwise into two pieces, rolled in mayonnaise and then in finely chopped nuts or shredded coconut. On one side of the banana put a selected bunch of little white seedless grapes that have been washed and chilled.
 Next to the grapes place a slice of ripe sugared pineapple, divided into segments so that it can be easily eaten with a fork. Next to the pineapple might be a little mound of raspberries, blackberries or ripe perfect strawberries. Then a small mound of salt almonds or a few cracked walnuts in the shells. And last, a pear, a peach or a Japanese persimmon, a ripe nectarine or any fruit desired.

Pass with this thin sandwiches made of whole wheat bread, spread with a well-seasoned cream cheese.
 Serve as a beverage buttermilk, tall glass of malted milk shake or the more conventional hot coffee or tea. Hot chocolate even might be used, unless most of your guests are on too strenuous a reducing diet.

Vegetable plates and cold dishes made of meat and fish are not so unusual, but if they are carefully selected and if the combinations are well planned, they are extremely appetizing, refreshing and wholesome. Try a salad of boiled kohlrabi cut in small dice and rolled in lemon juice and finely minced parsley to be served with mayonnaise as an accompaniment to thin baked ham and sliced tomatoes.

WAYS TO USE COOKED CORN

Tasty Corn Cookery Includes Many Appealing Combination Dishes.
 While corn on the cob is the ideal way of serving sugar corn there are many other ways of preparing corn for the table. Corn loaf for instance is a delicious way of using leftover mashed potatoes and leftover cooked corn.

To one quart of hot mashed potatoes add two cups of cooked corn, two tablespoons of butter, or drippings, two teaspoons of salt, a dash of pepper and one teaspoon of grated onion. Beat two eggs until light and add them to the above mixture, with the exception of a teaspoonful to brush over the top. Bake in moderate oven 30 minutes.

Another popular dish is fried corn with bacon. This is a good breakfast dish. Cook a dozen slices of bacon until crisp; pour off all the fat, after removing the bacon, with the exception of three tablespoons, and put into this the corn cut from seven ears and cook until a delicate brown, turning frequently. Serve with the bacon.

Easily Made Cup Cakes.
 One cup sugar (white), one-half cup butter, one cup milk, two eggs, leave white of one for frosting, two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon cinnamon. Bake in gem pans.

 appearing in this paper. All recipes have been tested in our experimental kitchen by

Tempting ways to use left-over pastry

When I have odds and ends of pastry left over from pies, I make them into various kinds of tarts.
 Some members of my family prefer them to the pies.

Cinnamon Tarts are simply squares or rounds of pastry sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon.

Sometimes I roll out the pastry, cut it into rounds, and turn up the edges. Then, either before or after baking I fill the shells with preserves or jelly and serve topped with a spoonful of whipped evaporated milk.

Marshmallow Tarts are made by pressing two marshmallows in a square of pastry, covering with another square, and baking.

I hope when you try these tartlets your family will be as appreciative as mine. I'm always so glad to hear that the recipes and suggestions of these Friday columns have been enjoyed. Mary Hale

For thrifty housewives

—savory main dishes that are well within the budget

PLANNING a delicious meal with no regard for expense is a good deal like playing a hand of bridge when you hold all the cards
 —there's no sport in it. But you can savor the full pride of achievement when you serve something unusually good that really helps balance the budget.

You'll find the dishes described below are that kind. A little meat is made to go a long way in combinations that both look and taste unusually good. As you see, I've been careful to choose meats that are tempting as well as reasonable.

Little, savory Vienna Sausages, the spicy, tender kind put up in the Libby's kitchens. Libby's Dried Beef —leafy thin slices with that nut-sweet flavor given by long, careful smoking. And Corned Beef, finegrained and mild, cooked by the Libby's chefs in the world's meat center.

These delicious, inexpensive dishes will help keep your balance on the right side of the ledger. If your grocer does not carry Libby's Foods, please send us his name and address.

This Swedish delicacy can be made with left-over fruit syrups

Not far from where I live is a little Swedish restaurant, famous for its relishes and appetizers. Particularly inviting on a hot night is a chilled, fruit soup they serve. From frequent sampling I have puzzled out the recipe which I am printing here for you. The soup will taste especially good if made with the rich syrup saved from Libby's Pineapple and Peaches. Like the fruits, the syrups have the full, natural flavor that is so tempting.

Libby's Vienna Sausage with Corn Cakes

3 ears
 2 cups corn (fresh or canned)
 2 No. 1/2 cans Libby's Vienna Sausage Best eggs slightly. Add salt and corn. Mix well and bake like pancakes on well greased griddle. Have Vienna Sausage very hot and serve with Corn Cakes. A sweet syrup is very delicious with Corn Cakes and Vienna Sausage. (Serves six)

Dried Beef en Casserole

1/4 lb. macaroni
 2 cups white sauce (unsalted)
 1 1/2 oz. jar Libby's Dried Beef
 2 tbs. grated cheese

Break the macaroni into short lengths and cook in boiling salted water until tender.
 Drain, cover with cold water and allow to stand for five minutes. Make a white sauce using equal parts of macaroni water and Evaporated Milk. Combine the cooked macaroni, white sauce and Dried Beef.
 Turn into a buttered baking dish, top with grated cheese, and bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) for 25 minutes. (Serves six)

SAVE FOOD SPOILAGE BY CAREFUL STORING

Modern Housewives Should Use Judgment in Refrigerating Family Foods.

If food spoils today, something is wrong with the housewife, who has not taken the trouble to understand either her refrigerator or the principles of refrigeration. Yet they may be quickly mastered, assuming that the housewife has used ordinary care in selecting her refrigerator, has looked into the matter of location, seen that there are no parts to get out of order, and considered size and number of shelves as well as cost of operation.

Here are a few points to remember: The degree of cold varies in the different types of refrigerators. In some the lower shelf is the coolest; in others it is the top, next to the freezing unit.

The housewife should test the various parts of her refrigerator with a thermometer and place her food accordingly. If the lower shelf is coolest, use it for the storing of milk for the children (be sure it is covered), and for meat, butter, and all creamy desserts and other highly perishable foods that are apt to absorb odors.

Select the Proper Shelf.

On the next shelf, where the temperature may be one-half to one degree higher, cooked foods and the less perishable desserts and beverages may be stored. Eggs, salad dressings, lettuce and celery wrapped in cheesecloth, au gratin dishes ready for the oven, and fruit will keep delightfully fresh on the third shelf, while the stronger flavored foods, cheese, onions, fish and the like may be placed on the upper shelf with no

SAVORY VEGETABLE BALLS ARE AN ENTIRELY NEW DISH

The Clever Housewife Welcomes
The New Things in the Realm of Cookery.

Fried vegetable balls are a bit different. Try this recipe for making them. Two cups cooked vegetables, chopped, two tablespoons shortening, two tablespoons grated onion, three-fourths cup dried bread crumbs, one egg yolk, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons grated cheese and one teaspoon of allspice.

Additional breadcrumbs and an additional egg will be needed for breadening the balls. The vegetables may include cooked spinach, cabbage, parsnips, turnips, carrots, plain or with green peas, chopped celery, cooked of raw, and uncooked green peppers. Combine the ingredients and let stand 10 minutes to swell crumbs. Shape the mixture into balls. If not stiff enough to handle, add more bread crumbs. Beat up the egg in three-fourths cup water until well mixed. Roll the balls in crumbs and then in the egg and water and in crumbs again.

Cook in deep hot fat until brown. Drain on soft paper and serve. These vegetable balls are delicious when served with cold meat. They may be served in a cream sauce as a luncheon dish. If any of the balls remain after the meal, put them in the ice box and reheat them the next day—they will be as fresh and tasty as when first made.

Place delicate fruits like berries in the colander or other open container, keep milk, butter, waffle or cake batter and cream closely covered and wrap pastry for your next pie in wax paper.

Don't forget that even in the most efficient refrigerators, it is necessary to leave a space between food containers so that the cold, dry air may circulate freely. This is an important matter.

HOW TO PLAN MENUS FOR A SMALL FAMILY

First Make a List of the Materials
You Have to Work With.

"Can you send me a simple menu?" asks a friend in Illinois. "For a family of four—father, mother, girl of 14 and boy of 4? I should like to have this menu plan include all the elements necessary in the day's ration. My income is $1800 a year; I do my own work and prefer simple dishes which do not require too many pots and pans in preparation. The color combinations are to be relied upon as a decorative feature, especially of the dinner."

This is a very interesting letter and one which may be made the basis for a considerable fund of practical information. I think perhaps the best way to help my correspondent is to begin by outlining the type and quantity of foods required to a day. Any skillful housekeeper will be able to evolve her own recipes and menus if she knows what materials she has to work with.

Furthermore, I am going to give what might be known as a maximum allowance of food. For example, the daily ration that I shall outline will provide food for a man, woman and three children between 3 and 12 years of age. In the family of my correspondent there are only two children, but as the young daughter of the house is practically in the grown-up class, so far as her food requirements are concerned, the following ration will be satisfactory and provide reasonable leeway.

The foods then should be as follows:

Cereal foods, four and one-half pounds. If the family is not in the habit of eating much bread, the equivalent food value may be secured in two and one-half pounds of cereals and five or six medium-sized potatoes. Of butter oil and cooking fat there should be three-quarters of a cup daily or an allowance of two and one-half to three pounds. One cup of sugar daily, four pounds in all of fresh fruits and fresh or root vegetables, three quarts of milk and a pound of meat or meat substitute foods.

If my friend will start with this list as the basis for her planning, I suggest that she make other lists of foods that will provide variety under each of the various heads.

For example, the cereal list would give her a good starting point for planning variety in the breakfast foods. The bread list would make it possible to vary the breakfast breads, and those served throughout the day and so on. The next step would be to consult these lists and plan a day's meals for a week at a time.

This seems to me, the rational method of helping anyone to plan a daily menu. Meals planned by someone at a distance are, if true, frequently suggestive and helpful. On the other hand, they can seldom be followed absolutely in detail. Markets and localities vary and this will make a certain amount of changes necessary in the most scientifically planned menus in the world.

FUDGE SAUCE FOR ICE CREAM

Easily Made in Quantity and Can Be Kept in the Refrigerator.

A good hot fudge sauce is made as follows:
Melt one tablespoon of butter and add two squares of unsweetened chocolate cut in small pieces. Stir over a slow fire until the chocolate is melted. Then add one cup of sugar, two tablespoons of corn syrup and three-quarters of a cup of milk. Stir the mixture constantly until it begins to boil. Then boil for eight minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from the fire. Cool slightly and beat until it begins to thicken. Add a teaspoon of vanilla and keep warm over hot water until ready to serve. This may be made up in quantity and reheated in a double boiler when needed.

WHAT.. Play too hard?

Never.. Mother.. if you select proper food!

Only when wrong foods have been provided is the over-tired child a genuine cause for worry

IN the notorious lack of calories in many present-day menus dietitians foresee a serious danger. Unless proper energy food is provided, children become literally starved. They grow cross . . . listless . . . mentally sluggish. They look pale. They lose weight. Thus mothers are strongly urged to select foods for their dietetic worth. Serve delicious foods, of course. But first make sure they "pay their way" in the vital energy-building elements.

It is for open-minded women anxious to follow such advice that we bake Baby Label Bread.

It is a bread remarkably rich in calories. Packed with nourishment. And yet widely famous for its delicate flavor.

Prominent cooking experts helped us make it

You see, we set our years ago to make Baby Label an energy food. We knew both grown-ups and children needed such a bread. And we wanted to be the first to offer it to mothers.

So we consulted cooking experts and dietitians . . . tried recipe after recipe . . . and finally created a bread with 114 calories in every half-inch slice.

This bread is a muscle- and bone-builder too. It is rich in protein . . . calcium . . . phosphates. Just the elements needed if "balanced" diet is your aim.

ALETTA SMITH looks as though she were enjoying her ride on the merry-go-round horse. She's as sturdy as many boys her age. One way to get energy . . . build a healthy body . . . eat Baby Label Bread.

It puts solid flesh on growing little bodies . . . hardens teeth . . . builds strong, sturdy bones and active minds.

You see, we select our ingredients with infinite care. Highest quality flour. Rich, wholesome milk . . . double the amount used in many breads. Pure cane sugar.

That's why Baby Label is so widely endorsed by dietitians everywhere. That's why it is so delicate and delicious, too.

Children, you'll find, never seem to get enough. They'll eat all you give them. And that goes for the grown-ups too!

Just this one word of warning

At times you may be urged to accept some ordinary bread. Think, please, before you do. When health is at stake, a really careful mother will insist on getting the best every time.

Let your grocer distinctly understand that no bread but Baby Label will satisfy. Do not trust your family's precious health to ordinary, untried brands.

WHO'S GOT THAT BALL? Joseph Balthasar, Leroy Blacketer, Philip Cratty and George Wagner are all in a mad scramble for it. They're a healthy lot of youngsters. . . as the photo shows. Carefully selected diet, with plenty of energy-building food, is one of the reasons. Sensible mothers by the thousands insist on Baby Label, for its great nutritious value.

U. S. BOXER GETS DECISION AFTER CROWD PROTESTS

By the Associated Press.
AMSTERDAM, Holland, Aug. 10.—John L. Daley of Waltham, Mass., reached the final round of the bantamweight competition in the Olympic championships today with the aid of the loud voices of the spectators, many of them Americans. The spectators roared so loudly when the verdict was given to his rival, Isaac of South Africa, in the semifinal, that the decision was reversed.

Police Quell Riot.
When the decision was announced against Daley, the first American to reach the final round, such an uproar was created that the police were called to quell the excited Americans, who hissed and booed and shouted in the gallery.

When comparative quiet was restored officials announced that he had made a mistake and the decision at the close of three rounds bout went to the New England boy, Dutch diplomacy thereby saving a situation that was assuming dangerous proportions.

Daley won all three rounds easily, checking Isaac's wild swings with hard left and right hooks to the head. In the final round the American drove his rival all over the ring with head punches. Isaac was unable to land effectively, most of his blows being delivered with an open glove.

Holanko Also in Final.
Stephen Holanko, of Auburn, N. Y., took his place beside Daley in the final round when he defeated Bergeran of Sweden in three rounds in the semi-final round of the lightweight class.

Harry Devine of Worcester, Mass., United States featherweight boxer, was defeated today in the semifinals by Vanklaveren of Holland. The Dutchman won by decision.

In the other featherweight semi-final, Peralta of Argentina defeated Biquet of Belgium by decision. The second Argentine to win his way into the final round was Landini, conqueror of the American favorite, Tommy Lown, who won a three-round decision over Ray Smille, last of the Canadian survivors in the tourney.

The South American will meet Morgan of New Zealand for the welterweight championship tomorrow. Argentina placed her third man in the finals when Avendano won the decision over McCormick of South Africa, in the semifinals of the light-heavyweight division. Both fighters scarcely could stand at the close of the battling.

In a final desperate sortie, McCormick's drive the Argentine almost through the ropes twice in the third round but could not overcome the large margin piled up by Avendano in the first two sessions.

Match Is Hard Fought.
The Devine-Vanklaveren match was hard fought but the Holland hit harder and oftener throughout. He won the first and third rounds. The second was a draw. Devine fanned his opponent in the second session with a hard left to the jaw but the Dutch boy kept coming back for more and handing out accurate long-range rights, which eventually gave him the decision.

Peralta Meets Vanklaveren
The Peralta-Biquet match consisted chiefly of infighting with the Argentine getting the better of most of the exchanges. Both bled profusely.

Peralta now will meet Vanklaveren for the championship in the featherweight class. America's last hope for that particular title vanished with Devine's defeat.

The International Amateur Boxing Federation voted today to have a referee in the ring in future Olympics as proposed by Jacob W. Stumpf, manager of the American team.

They Defeated England for Olympic Title

The California University eight-oared crew.

California Eight Beats English Crew, Wins Olympic Title

By the Associated Press.
SLOVEN, Holland, Aug. 10.—Capped by a sensational three-quarters length triumph for California's famous crew over the British Thames Rowing Club in the eight-oared finals, America scored a smashing victory in the Olympic regatta today. The Californians, completing an unbroken season of success, gave the United States the premier laurels of the day and also sufficient points to beat out the nearest rival, Britain.

The United States was the only nation to take two firsts in the seven finals. Americans also captured two seconds and one third. Paul Costello, figuring in a double sculling Olympic championship victory for the third straight time, paired with his partner, Charley McIlvaine, to defeat Canada by five lengths in the final which preceded the California victory, thus making a grand climax for Uncle Sam.

The Danton-stroked eight smartly handled by Coxswain Blessing jumped the British in the first half of the race then withstood a great challenge in the last half of the 2000-meter course to hold the margin in an exciting battle to the finish.

Canadians Exhausted.
The double sculling final in which the Americans were arrayed against Joe Wright Jr. and Guest was a surprise largely because of the decisive fashion in which it was won. The Canadians were rowed out completely after the race. Wright said he had rowed his hardest but could not get any speed out of the boat. Near the half-way mark the Canadian shell seemed to lose life while the Americans were sculling in great style.

In the eight-oared race British oars were in the water, but the Americans settled into their racing stride more quickly and had what slight advantage there was over the first part of the course. The Britons hung on gamely, but the more powerful Americans, hitting 26 strokes to the minute, had a three-quarters length lead after 1000 meters.

Shortly after passing this half-way point, the Yankees met the first British spurt. Coxswain Blessing pounded on the shell's side and yelled for a higher beat. The oarsmen responded, lifting it to 40 and then to 42.

"Come on Don, come on Pete," the Americans yelled to their stroke, Pete Donlon. The Yankee collegians were unable to show open water, but they withstood a great British challenge through the last 500 meters.

In the other semi-final match Lester Stoecken advanced through the default of Ralph Rice, Chicago, at the end of the third set. Rice elected to save himself for the men's doubles semi-final. The Chicago player won the first set 7-5, but Stoecken came back and won second set 7-5, and the third set 6-0.

HAFFEY DOUBLES AND SCORES ON WILSON'S SINGLE IN TWELFTH

By Herman Wecke.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.
PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 10.—The Cardinals broke their losing streak by beating the Pirates in the second and last game of the series this afternoon.

The score was 2 to 1.
Twelve innings were played.

Hafey's double, Blades' safe bunt and Wilson's single gave the Cardinals their winning run in the twelfth inning.

The victory enabled the Red Birds to retain their four-game lead over the New York Giants. Before the game Hal Hald was presented with a wrist watch and bouquet by his admirers from Newcastle, Pa.

LILLIAN CANNON CUTS 4 HOURS OFF RECORD FOR CHESAPEAKE BAY

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 10.—Mrs. Edwin M. Day, known in swimming circles as Lillian Cannon, lopped more than four hours from the record for swimming across Chesapeake Bay by winning a race with Clyde Brown in which she made the 12 miles in five hours and 25 minutes. Brown, a swimming instructor here, finished six minutes later.

The start was made from Tolchester at 5:05 a. m. The former record was made two years ago by Laura Louise Calligan, who covered the distance in 9 hours and 40 minutes to beat the time established by Mrs. Day when she was the first woman to swim the bay. Mrs. Day in 1926 made her unsuccessful attempt to swim the English Channel.

DREWES LOSES IN SEMIFINAL OF NET TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, Aug. 10.—A new national public parks singles tennis champion will be crowned as the result of the defeat of Theodore R. Drewes, St. Louis, the title holder, by George Jennings, Chicago southpaw, in one semi-final match here today. Jennings surprised the large gallery by winning from Drewes in straight sets, 6-3 6-4 6-2.

In the other semi-final match Lester Stoecken advanced through the default of Ralph Rice, Chicago, at the end of the third set. Rice elected to save himself for the men's doubles semi-final. The Chicago player won the first set 7-5, but Stoecken came back and won second set 7-5, and the third set 6-0.

CALIFORNIA EIGHT DEFEATS ENGLAND FOR OLYMPIC ROWING TITLE

UNITED STATES ALSO WINS IN DOUBLE SCULLS, BUT LOSES IN TWO OTHER REGATTA FINALS

American Oarsmen Win Two Of Seven Olympic Finals

SLOTEN, Holland, Aug. 10.—America, represented in four of the seven Olympic rowing finals over the 2000-meter course here today, won two championships. Results of the seven events follow:

Four-oared shells without coxswain—Great Britain defeated the United States.
Paired oared shells without coxswain—Germany defeated Great Britain.
Single sculls—Pearce, Australia, defeated Myers, United States.
Pair oared shells with coxswain—Switzerland defeated France.
Four-oared shells with coxswain—Italy defeated Switzerland.
Double sculls—United States defeated Canada.

max to one of the most remarkable rowing campaigns any crew ever waged, as it means the completion of California's season without a single defeat, although opposed by the greatest aggregations of America and Europe. It left them supreme and unquestioned as the rowing champions of the world in their class, and kept the Yankee string of eight-oared victories in the Olympics unbroken. The Naval Academy crew won for Uncle Sam in 1920 at Antwerp and Yale at Paris in 1924, but neither more impressively than California did today.
California's time of 6:03.1-5 for the 2000 meters was faster than either of the previous American eight-oared standard bearers made in winning their races, although not quite so fast as the 5:59 made by California two days ago in a semi-final race against the Canadians.

Australian Wins Easily.
Bob Pearce, Australian oarsman, won the singles sculls championship, defeating Kenneth Myers of Philadelphia.

The Australian star won by five lengths, appearing more exhausted at the finish than Myers, but quickly recovered.

Pearce out-rowed Myers from the start, jumping into a length lead in the first 150 meters with long, sweeping strokes and adding steadily to his advantage.

Myers fought gamely to hang on during the first half of the race, but at the 1000-meter mark was already trailing by a length and a half.

Pearce's more powerful strokes quickly settled the outcome during the last half, the Australian doubling his advantage within the next 500 meters.

The bespectacled stocky American who took shorter strokes, did have a spurt left for the last 500 meters and Pearce rowed in the finish line fully five lengths ahead.

The times were seven minutes, 11 seconds for Pearce and 7:20.4-5 for Myers.

Italy won the first of the seven Olympic rowing championships today, defeating Switzerland by seven lengths in the four-oared shells with coxswain, while Germany took the second championship in the pair-oared shells without coxswain.

ST. LOUIS TYPO BASEBALL CLUB OFF TO BOSTON

The St. Louis Typos, members of the Empire League of the Municipal Baseball Association, departed this morning for Boston, where the printers' nine will participate in the annual International Union Printers' Baseball League tournament, which opens Sunday. This is the eighteenth year of this tournament, and last year at Cincinnati, St. Louis was the runner-up, losing a double-header to Chicago in the final.

The tournament will be conducted under the two out system inaugurated at Cincinnati last year, through which all teams will be required to play at least two games before elimination.

On the opening day of the tournament, games will be played at Fenway Park, home of the Red Sox and at Braves Field, playing field of Boston's National League entry. The balance of the games will be contested at Braves Field.

Team Has Hard Season.
Although the Typos have won only seven games while losing eight in the Empire League thus far this season, due to sickness and injuries to members of the team, Manager Tony Stockman, reports his squad in good shape again, and expects St. Louis to again furnish the competition in the final game for the Garry Hermann trophy, emblematic of the championship.

The members of the local team who departed this morning were: Larry Roberts, first base; Charley Reis, second base; Joe Shapiro, shortstop; Richard Keeney, third base; Earl Millican, utility infielder; Ben Mertens, left field; Gage Roberts, center field; Walter

Undeatable in Checker Play

CEAR POINT, O., Aug. 10.—Sam Gonotsky, New York, the only undefeated master in the Cedar Point checker tourney, today met Mike Lieber, Detroit, as the fifth day of play opened. Nate Rubin, Detroit, was matched against H. B. Reynolds, Buffalo, drawing a bye. These are the only five survivors of tournament.

Wins Polo Title

TOLEDO, Aug. 10.—Chaslin Valley, Jr., of Cleveland, added the Central Circuit polo championship to its national inter-circuit crown by defeating the Onondaga Country Club of Chicago 10 to 5 yesterday.

Kling, right field; Allan Horn, utility outfielder; Tony Stockman, outfielder and manager; Eddie Albrecht and Tommy Kichham, catchers; Harvey Zimmer and Milton Jones, right-hand pitchers; and Francis Hines, southpaw pitcher, and Rogers Geary, local Typo commissioner.

A party of 50 baseball rosters departed yesterday to attend the Boston event.

In connection with the annual baseball event, the printers will also hold the Fifth Annual Golf Tournament, at Franklin Park in Boston, starting on Sunday morning. St. Louis' one entry in the golf play is Hart Hood, who made a good showing last season.

To Play Game at Night

An innovation in the printers' tournaments this year will be the playing of a game of ball at night at the General Electric Co. plant at Lynn, Mass., next Friday night, starting at 10 p. m. The contest will be between two picked teams from the East and the West, participating in the tourney.

The cities which have teams entered in the tourney are: Boston, New York, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, Indianapolis, St. Paul, Detroit, Toronto and St. Louis.

WEISSMULLER BREAKS RECORD IN 100 METERS

By the Associated Press.
AMSTERDAM, Holland, Aug. 10.—The United States placed all three of her swimmers in the 100 meters free style finals today. Johnny Weissmuller, Chicago speedster and defending champion, and George Kojac, New York schoolboy, won their heats impressively while Walter Lauffer of Chicago finished second to Takashi of Japan in his heat.

Weissmuller set a new Olympic record of 53.3-5 seconds in defeating Barany of Hungary.

Three U. S. Women in Backstroke.
Although three American girls qualified for the 100 meters backstroke, their showing was much less impressive than the men's.

Miss Lisa Lindstrom of New York finished second to Marie Braun of Holland, in a heat in which the Dutch girl set a new world record of 1:21.3-5 for the distance.

Miss Georgia Coleman of the Los Angeles A. C. and Mrs. Betty Becker Pinkston of Detroit qualified for the finals in the high diving trials.

The official high diving figures gave Mrs. Pinkston first place among the qualifiers with 32.5 points. Miss Coleman was second with 31.40 and Miss Onneila of Finland third with 28 points.

In the second elimination series, Miss Clara Hunt of Los Angeles was eliminated when she finished last. The qualifiers were Bjorkvist of Sweden, 29.20 points; Baron, Holland, 24.40 points; and Rehorn, Germany, 23.20.

Borg Withdraws.
Arne Borg, Swedish champion who came to grief yesterday, losing to Zorilla of Argentina and Charlton of Australia in the 400 meters final, was scratched from a quarter-final heat in which he was scheduled to start. The official reason given was that he was over-trained and stale.

POLICEMAN WHO KILLED PAYMASTER EXECUTED

Murdered Man He Was Assigned to Guard—Two Others Electrocuted.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Three men were put to death at Sing Sing last night. They were Daniel Graham, former New York policeman, George Appel, who was convicted of the killing of a New York police lieutenant and Alexander Kalinowski, principal keeper at Auburn prison.

Kalinowski was the first to pay the death penalty. He almost ran to the death chamber and guards had to restrain him. Graham was executed for the murder of Judson Pratt, a paymaster, whom Graham, while a New York City policeman, was assigned to guard. Pratt was shot to death in his automobile and a $4700 payroll stolen. Graham was arrested early the next day when he returned with a new automobile.

Recently Appel confessed to the crime, absolving Graham, but his statement was looked on merely as an attempt by Appel to delay his own execution. Appel, who was 26, was accused of shooting to death Lieut. Charles Kemmer of the Glendale Station, (New York) during an attempted holdup at a restaurant within a few blocks of the police station.

Kalinowski, in a fit of rage, because he did not like the prison rations at Auburn, stabbed Durning to death. Kalinowski, previously had been convicted of burglary, manslaughter, assault and jail breaking.

JOBLESS LABORER ENDS LIFE

Succumbs at Hospital of Self-Inflicted Bullet Wound. Joseph Moskavich, 42 years old, a laborer, died at city hospital today of a self-inflicted bullet wound of the abdomen. Moskavich shot himself last night at the Gault House, 1234 North Fourteenth street, where he resided.

He told police he had been out of work and was despondent.

THE REV.

Accepts Offer to Deb Governor's Record Of Scriptura

Pastor Suggests Madison S Meeting Place — Dissec by Nominee.

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. J. Aug. 10.—The Rev. John Roach Straton last night made public a letter to Governor Smith in which he formally accepted the Governor's challenge that he repeat in Smith's presence and offer proof of his assertion that the Governor "as a public man" is "the deadliest foe in America today of the forces of moral progress and true political wisdom."

But Dr. Straton's letter urged that the Governor appear with him not in Calvary Baptist Church, of which he is pastor, but in Madison Square Garden. He suggested that 2000 tickets be distributed among the Calvary congregation and an equal number among the parishioners of St. Patrick's Cathedral, and the rest of the tickets between the Republican and Democratic National committees.

Dr. Straton objected to the use of his church because he doubts it will accommodate the crowd that is expected. He indicated, however, that he would appear anywhere else the Governor preferred.

The letter rejected Gov. Smith's offer to answer any questions Straton might ask, and suggested instead that the customary rules governing joint debate prevail. Dr. Straton named Charles E. Townsend of White Plains, as his representative and suggested that Gov. Smith, name a second, and that these two name a third man to agree on the terms of their meeting.

Dr. Straton's Letter.

The text of Dr. Straton's letter follows:

Dear Gov. Smith: Your letter of Aug. 7 just forwarded to me here. I definitely accept your challenge, and will certainly meet you, God willing, face to face. As stated previously to the press, however, I deem it exceedingly impracticable to have this meeting in Calvary Baptist Church. Only a fraction of those who will desire to hear this discussion could possibly get in.

If I understand you right, what you desire is an opportunity to publicly argue the charges against you. The place where this is done is quite immaterial, as it is vindication before the whole nation that you need and not the opportunity to establish an alibi merely before the Calvary congregation.

Accepts Challenge.

Let the meeting be held, therefore, in Madison Square Garden or another suitable, very large hall, with a division of the seating, say, to the number of 2000 for our Calvary members and friends, and the same number for, say, the St. Patrick's Cathedral congregation and your friends—the other 20,000 seats to be equally divided between Democratic and Republican headquarters for distribution.

Rest assured, however, that I will certainly meet you, as I judge you to be a reasonable man, so even if it has to be in Central Park I shall give you an example of that "American fair play" that you request. Though I am not even yet up to my usual summer vacation, I will nevertheless adapt myself to the time you suggest, namely, some evening of the week of Sept. 2. I would hope that it might be Sept. 1 or 4.

I am asking one of the trustees of Calvary Church and the superintendent of our Sunday school, Mr. Charles H. Towson, president of the Silver Bay School and summer assembly, to represent me in the further arrangements. I suggest that you appoint a friend to represent you, and these two can select a third.

"Not Yet President." Before closing, there are two or three other matters in your letter on which I ask the privilege of a few words of comment. You say in one place, "In order that you may not be embarrassed, I will permit you, if you choose, to conduct the meeting by question and answer."

It is very generous of you, my dear Governor, to thus offer to "permit" me to take that line to the meeting, but I assure you that I have not heretofore been "embarrassed" on meeting you, and do not think that I will suffer then when we are face to face with this discussion, though I well know your great prowess in debate, and am also aware of my own limitations and defects. However, my sole desire is for a fairly conducted meeting, under the usual customs, relating to such joint dis-

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. J., Aug. 10.—The Rev. John Roach Straton last night made public a letter to Governor Smith in which he formally accepted the Governor's challenge that he repeat in Smith's presence and offer proof of his assertion that the Governor "as a public man" is "the deadliest foe in America today of the forces of moral progress and true political wisdom."

Towns, of White Plains, as his representative and suggested that Gov. Smith, name a second, and that these two name a third man to agree on the terms of their meeting.

Dr. Straton's letter. The text of Dr. Straton's letter follows:

Dear Gov. Smith:

Your letter of Aug. 7 just forwarded to me here, definitely accept your challenge, and will certainly meet you, God willing, face to face. As stated previously to the press, however, I deem it exceedingly impracticable to have this meeting in Calvary Baptist Church. If I understand you right, what you desire is an opportunity to publicly argue the charges against you. The place where this is done is quite immaterial, as it is vindication before the whole nation that you need and not the opportunity to establish an altar recently before the Calvary congregation.

Accepts Challenge.

Let the meeting be held, therefore, in Madison Square Garden or another suitable, very large hall, with a division of the seating, say to the number of 5000 for our Calvary members and friends, and the same number for, say, the St. Patrick's Cathedral congregation and your friends—the other 20,000 seats to be equally divided between Democratic and Republican headquarters for distribution.

Rest assured, however, that I will certainly meet you, as I judge you to be a reasonable man, so even if it has to be in Central Park. I think give you an example of that "American fair play" that you request.

Though I am not even yet up to my usual summer vacation, I will nevertheless adapt myself to the time you suggest, namely, some evening of the week of Sept. 2. I would hope that it might be Sept. 7 or 8.

I am asking one of the trustees of Calvary Church and the superintendent of our Sunday school, Mr. Charles R. Towns, president of the Silver Bay School and summer assembly, to represent me in the further arrangements. I suggest that you appoint a friend to represent you, and these two can select a third.

"Not Yet President."

Before closing, there are two or three other matters in your letter on which I ask the privilege of a few words of comment. You say in one place, "In order that you may not be embarrassed, I will permit you, if you choose, to conduct the meeting by question and answer."

It is very generous of you, my dear Governor, to thus offer to "permit" me to take that line in the meeting, but I assure you that I have not heretofore been "embarrassed" on meeting with you. I think give you, and do not think that I will suffer thus when we are face to face with this discussion, though I well know your great prowess in debate, and am also aware of my own limitations and defects. However, my sole desire is for a fairly conducted meeting, under the usual customs, relating to such joint discussions, without fear or favor on either side and with the whole meeting cast upon the high plane of strength and dignity which these matters to be discussed well deserve. As to the "embarrassment," I venture to remind you that you are not yet President.

A Slip in Scripture.

2. At another point in your letter you essay a subtle little lecture to me on ethics, in which you quote Scripture. You say: "I do not feel that I should charge you with making this statement for any political purpose, as it was made in a church devoted to the teachings of Christ, one of which was, 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.'"

As to this, my dear Governor, I express to you the sincere hope that during our debate you will quote your own "record" more accurately than you quote Scripture. The quotation you give, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," was not a part of "the teachings of Christ," as you say, but one of the Ten Commandments revealed to us through Moses. It is in Exodus, twentieth chapter, sixteenth verse. Jesus' teaching was yet higher. He taught that love is the fulfilling of the law, and therefore the true basis of fellowship. The New Testament throughout teaches that we are "to seek the truth in love" (Eph. 4:15) and that is precisely what I did last Sunday night in speaking of yourself and your most unhappy record.

You must remember, my dear Governor, that the first of that "record" under the red-hot grid you are dancing on is of your own kindling, and your quarrel is really with your own "record" and not with those of us who, for the sake of the republic we love, have dared to warn the people about it, as an indication of the type of President we may expect if you should by any unhappy chance be sent to the White House.

Since you have lectured me and quoted Holy Writ for the good of my soul, I reciprocate in the spirit of a sincere desire to help you by suggesting that you recede to the core Ten Commandments, as those Heavenly-given precepts have been vastly useful in the past in creating and preserving good order in civil society. I have seen with a considerable degree of satisfaction your vigorous action against the gamblers and their camp followers, the prostitutes and bootleggers up Saratoga way, since some of us began prodding into your "record," though I regret that some of this hot zeal and energy has not been expended heretofore in our own beautiful city, and before you became a candidate for President of the United States.

Suggests a Few Tests.

In addition to these verses you quote, your record shows you could find other timely verses as, for example, this:

"The powers that be (the Constitution of the United States) are ordained by God."

and however therefore resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God; and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation." (Romans, 13:1-2)

And also this: "Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood and establisheth a city by iniquity."

"Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that putteth the bottle to him and maketh him drunken also." (Habakkuk, 2:12-15)

And also this: "Have no fellowship with the untruthful works of darkness, but rather prove them, for it is a shame, even to speak of those things which are done of them in secret." (Eph. 5:11-12)

It seems, too, to me that Isaiah: 1-20, from which I preached the sermon that you object to is particularly applicable to our times, and especially to the Democratic party, as is also the Twelfth Psalm. I have thought that it would be a most salutary thing if all America should read those great Scriptures of truth in the present crisis.

May I assure you, in closing, that I am absolutely no personal feeling of unkindness toward you, and shall discuss your record and the methods and ideals of the political school in which you were brought up entirely apart from your personality as a man, a father and a follower of Christ.

Awaiting, therefore, your fur-cussions, without fear or favor on either side and with the whole meeting cast upon the high plane of strength and dignity which these matters to be discussed well deserve. As to the "embarrassment," I venture to remind you that you are not yet President.

their advice and with the best wishes, under the circumstances, I am, Very sincerely yours, JOHN ROACH STRATON.

Straton's Condition for Holding Debate in Own Church.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, last night said he would debate the integrity of the New York Governor's legislative record in Calvary Baptist Church only if Gov. Smith will promise a return engagement at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

"I make this suggestion," he explained, "because I do not like to have my Catholic friends suppose that I believe a Baptist Church is more holy ground than their Cathedral."

While Gov. Smith withheld comment, it was none the less assured he would not be diverted from his original plan—that the debate be held in Dr. Straton's own church, that it be broadcast over the same radio system through which the original charges passed and that it take place the week of Sept. 2. Catholics permit their churches to be used only for religious services.

NEW ERUPTIONS REPORTED FROM CRATER OF VESUVIUS

NAPLES, Italy, Aug. 10.—The observatory on Vesuvius announced a new and sudden activity of the volcano, last night. It was most pronounced in the southwest quarter of the crater, as was Tuesday's eruption.

A high mound was built up on the bottom of the crater filling a quarter part of the hollow. The flaming summit raised itself above the original level of the summit. From this three lava currents, highly lifted, poured out, and also the little cone in a series of not violent explosions threw flaming material high up in the air.

Inside the cone the incandescent clinkers and ash accumulated until the rising lava forced them out. The clouds that enveloped the disturbance will continue for several days.

GOVERNMENT PAYS RANSOM

Greece Advances Money for Release of Kidnaped Candidate.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Aug. 10.—Yielding to insistent demands from relatives of Constantino Melas, the Parliamentary candidate who was kidnapped several days ago by bandits in Epirus, Premier Venizelos has given a Government guarantee his ransom of 7,000,000 drachmas (about $27,500).

The National Bank advanced the money to the Melas family and his liberation is expected. The family has agreed to refund the ransom in 30 days. Melas was taken captive while he and Milonas, a former Under Secretary of Finance, were electioneering. Premier Venizelos was also making speeches in the district at the time. The original ransom demanded was 5,000,000 drachmas, but their families were worried that if the authorities were notified the ransom would be doubled. Milonas was released without ransom two days ago.

Complains of U. S. Movie Agents.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 10.—The managing director of the Hoyt group of theaters said today that efforts had been made by certain American motion picture agents to cut off United States movies from his chain. He said he obtained the needed pictures by purchasing direct from New York instead of through Australian representatives of the American companies. The director charged that the Australian agents of American pictures had attempted to monopolize the market by signing a $500,000 contract to exhibit British films in Australia.

KELLOGG TREATY OUTLAWING WAR BEFORE LEAGUE

Pact Officially Brought to the Attention of Geneva in a Communication by Great Britain.

DISCUSSION LIKELY IN SEPTEMBER

Paris Doubts Whether British Premier and German Foreign Minister Will Attend Signing Ceremonies.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Aug. 10.—The Kellogg treaty outlawing war is likely to be discussed by the League of Nations Assembly in September. The pact was officially brought to the attention of the League by Great Britain as a "matter which is evidently one of general interest to all League members."

This makes it possible for the league to discuss the document, which will be signed late this month, and it is regarded as certain that it will be debated.

Discussion, it was thought, will cover the significance of the pact to the maintenance of international peace and as an encouragement to the reduction of armaments.

The British communication did not include the text of the Kellogg pact, but merely the text of British notes interpreting the proposals. In a covering note Great Britain said that in considering the American proposal the Government had been at great pains to assure itself that acceptance "would not solve any international problem with obligations resulting from the league covenant."

Britain, remarked that communications to Washington make clear that there is no such conflict. The request was made that the British communication be sent to all members of the league because "the matter is evidently one of general interest to all league members."

There is speculation in Paris, where the pact will be signed, and whether Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, and Gustav Stresemann, German Foreign Minister, will attend. Sir Austen has been ordered to take a complete rest and Lord Cusheuden has been appointed Acting Foreign Secretary and may replace Sir Austen at the signing. It is unlikely that Stresemann will attend, but he has been ordered to take a complete rest and Lord Cusheuden has been appointed Acting Foreign Secretary and may replace Sir Austen at the signing.

Details for Notification.

The program for the notification ceremonies received final approval last night by Hoover. The gates of the State were to be opened at 10 p. m. and between 1 p. m. and 2:30 p. m. private airplanes that are to be gathered here from nearby sections of the state, will be put through a number of stunts for the entertainment of the party.

This will be followed by an aerial display of varicolored bombs. At 2:30 o'clock the Stanford University band will march into the bowl and around the field to its place.

The Municipal San Francisco band, the Olympic Club band from San Francisco, the Boys' Band from San Leandro and the American Legion Pipe and Drum Corps from Fuisdema will follow at 15 minute intervals.

Motoring from his home on San Juan Hill, Hoover, accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, will arrive at the stadium, preceding cars carrying Gov. and Mrs. Young, and Senator and Mrs. Moses.

Speech 8500 Words Long.

Senator Moses will consume 10 minutes in notifying Hoover, after the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner." Hoover will read his 8500-word acceptance address.

More changes in, and additions to, Hoover's itinerary on the return trip to Washington have been announced tentatively, with rear platform speeches scheduled at Albuquerque, N. M., Hutchinson and Topeka, Kan., and other places.

Nominee, 54 Years Old Today, Spends Time Discussing Policy and Strategy and Writing Speech.

TOMORROW IS NOTIFICATION DAY

First Set Talk of Candidate 8500 Words Long—Changes in Itinerary for Trip to Washington.

By the Associated Press.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 10.—Herbert Hoover is 54 years old today.

The birthday found the Republican presidential nominee fit and eager for the pre-election campaign and he celebrated it by discussing policy and strategy with his chief political lieutenants, and receiving reports as to the progress in perfecting the nationwide organization which will be thrown into action soon in his behalf.

These lieutenants include Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican National Committee; Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the Notification Committee; Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania, former Gov. Percival P. Baxter of Maine, and Senator Frederick C. Walcott of Connecticut.

Dr. Work and Gov. Fisher arrived here late last night and are house guests at Hoover's home. Senator Moses, Baxter and Walcott came on from San Francisco, where they arrived yesterday, along with a number of other party leaders who are gathering for the notification ceremonies tomorrow in the university stadium.

Work and Moses Face Each Other.

The conference with the nominees brought face to face around the table Dr. Work and Senator Moses, who long have been regional correspondents and news photographers who accompanied him across the continent, and who had arranged a birthday surprise for him.

Dr. Work made an early presentation of a birthday card, which he brought with him from the East. It measured three by four feet, and in one corner was a design of poppies, which concealed the names of the friends who thus sent their greetings.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Three more villages on the coast of Flores Island have been devastated as a result of the eruption of Rokatinda volcano which yesterday caused the deaths of several persons on Faloewek Island.

Ten persons were killed and a number injured.

Five native vessels were driven ashore, but the crews were saved. The volcano was still belching smoke today.

NEW YORK POWER SERVICE VIRTUALLY UNIFIED BY MERGER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The largest gas and electric company in the country has been created through a merger of the Consolidated Gas Co. and the Brooklyn Edison Co.

The merger, which received the unanimous approval of the Public Service Commission yesterday, brings virtually the entire city's light and power supply under unified control. The combined companies and their subsidiaries will serve approximately 800,000 customers.

The merger was voted without any action being taken on the request of Gov. Smith that the public hearings be reopened to permit Morris L. Ernst, attorney for the Public Committee on Power, to be heard.

ENGINEERS STUDY FLOOD RECORDS BACK TO 1000 B. C.

Data Being Checked for Guidance in Control of Rivers of United States.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Records of floods and rains at Rome, Italy, dating back to 1000 B. C., are to be studied by army engineers in connection with flood control on the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers for the protection of Pittsburgh as well as work on the Mississippi.

Major-General Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers, has just returned from an inspection trip in the Pittsburgh and Buffalo districts, where he visited some of the sites proposed for reservoirs. He said he was much impressed with the improvements he found in some of these sites.

The possibility of turning the water of the upper Allegheny into Lake Erie instead of letting it flow down the Ohio is considered by the engineers.

WAR THREATENED BETWEEN HEDJAZ AND GREAT BRITAIN

British Emissary's Conference With Ibn Saud at Jeddah Admitted to Have Broken-Down.

By JOHN L. BALDERSON, London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—War between Britain and Ibn Saud, King of the Hedjaz and Sultan of Nejd, now is a strong probability. This was admitted last night in official quarters, where advisors have been received from Sir Gilbert Clayton, British emissary, whose conference at Jeddah on the Red Sea with Ibn Saud has broken down.

A laconic remark in a censored British dispatch that "preliminary talks are being taken on the Iraq frontier," it is admitted here, must be taken seriously. Four bombing squadrons and one fighting squadron of airplanes, under Air Vice Marshal Sir Edward Ellington, and seven armored car sections will be used if necessary to repel incursions by fanatical tribesmen into King Feisal's British-protected Kingdom of Mesopotamia.

There are three battalions of British troops from the Indian army in Iraq and more could be sent from India in five weeks.

The quarrel is partly a religious one and partly a political. Ibn Saud, an ancient enemy of Feisal and Abdullah, drove their father, King Hussein, out of his Hedjaz kingdom, capturing Mecca and Medina and usurping his throne.

Since then the British have kept peace between Ibn Saud and their protégés, Feisal and Abdullah. Ibn Saud now asserts that Feisal has provoked hostilities by fortifying the frontier contrary to the existing treaties. Sir John Philby, authority on Arabia, has endorsed this view.

For some time it has not been clear whether the raids of the tribesmen on Iraq were isolated attacks delivered in defiance of the authority of Ibn Saud or were the commencement of a general war under his authority.

When the British Cabinet sent Sir Gilbert Clayton from London to start negotiations with Ibn Saud, these attacks ceased, which convinced the authorities here that Wahabi tribes were acting under their King's orders. Ibn Saud is said to have recently threatened war at a gathering of the chiefs of half of Arabia, saying: "My hopes of bringing back to Islam the infidels of Koweit (on the Persian Gulf), Iraq and Transjordan, by peaceful means are shattered. The sword is the only means."

Whatever the merits of the issues under dispute, Britain is prepared to fight for its two vassal kingdoms. If war comes it will be a new kind of war, fought by the British with planes and armored cars almost exclusively, as no troops can be sent into the illimitable deserts against the tribesmen, who use swift camels.

Ibn Saud has been arming his tribes for 10 years, and it is said they now amount to about 200,000 fighting men, although the British have been checking the arms traffic as much as possible.

JAPAN MODIFIES ATTITUDE ON CHINA

Premier Says Government Will Not Oppose Nanking-Mukden Agreement if Rights Are Not Endangered.

POSITIVE MEASURES NOT CONTEMPLATED

Manchurian Leaders Said to Be United in Favor of a Compromise With Nationalists.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Aug. 10.—In the face of evidence that Manchurian leaders were united in favor of a compromise with the Nanking nationalists against Japanese "advice," the government of Premier Tanaka has assumed a less positive attitude regarding the situation.

The Premier in addressing a meeting of the Seiyukai (government) members of Parliament today declared that Japan would not necessarily oppose an agreement between Nanking and Mukden provided Japan's rights and interests in Manchuria were not endangered. Protection of these, he said, was the only point. He added that Japan did not contemplate any positive measures in Manchuria.

The Premier's speech followed the receipt of news from Mukden that Chang Hsueh-liang, military Governor of Manchuria, had informed Baron Hayashi, Japanese envoy, yesterday that he must yield to popular demand and compromise with the Nationalists or resign all his offices.

Chang's attitude was stiffened by a resolution passed by the Manchurian peace preservation commission, which is tantamount to a Federal union in Manchuria, calling for agreement with Nanking and opposing Japanese influence. Other Manchurian public bodies passed similar resolutions.

Anglo-Chinese Settlement Reached on Nanking Incident.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, Aug. 10.—An Anglo-Chinese agreement for settlement of the so-called Nanking incident was signed last night by C. T. Wang, Nationalist Foreign Minister, Sir Sir James H. D. Morrison, British Consul-General at Shanghai, and Consul-General Hewlett of Nanking.

Simultaneously, another agreement was signed whereby Great Britain pledged herself to enter into negotiations with China on the subject of treaty revisions.

The British and Chinese representatives left Shanghai yesterday morning and went to Nanking where final touches were put to the agreement. The formal ceremony of signing took place at 7:30 last night after which the British representatives returned to Shanghai.

The terms of the settlement were not announced. It was understood, however, that they followed approximately along the lines of the settlement with the United States last April.

The negotiations arose out of the Communist outrages in Nanking during the Nationalist occupation in March, 1927, when foreign property was damaged. Dr. J. E. Williams, an American educator, was killed and Socony Hill fired on.

The United States was the first country to reach a settlement of the incident with the Nationalists, agreement being reached last April. In this agreement Nanking stated that it was not responsible for the acts of the Communists but was willing to accept responsibility as far as a settlement was concerned. Provision was made for the appointment of a commission to fix the amount to be paid and Nanking announced that all persons responsible had already been punished.

Under dispute, Britain is prepared to fight for its two vassal kingdoms. If war comes it will be a new kind of war, fought by the British with planes and armored cars almost exclusively, as no troops can be sent into the illimitable deserts against the tribesmen, who use swift camels.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

In Defense of Italy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The letter appearing in your column of Aug. 7, under the heading, "Italy's Egotism," is an insult to an entire nation and an offense to a noble race that glories in a glorious past of more than 20 centuries, a race that can point with justifiable pride to its contributions, both artistically and scientifically, to the entire world.

The letter, aside from its attack on Italy in general, casts discredit upon the statement of the heroic Swedish aviator, Lieut. Lundborg, who rescued Gen. Nobile and brought him to safety.

Lieut. Lundborg, upon his arrival in Sweden, sent the following letter to Nobile:

DEAR GENERAL—
Upon my arrival home I learned with profound regret of the untimely death of the great hero of the Italian air force, Gen. Umberto Nobile. I feel it my duty to express my sincere sympathy to the family and to the nation. I am sure that the heroic deed of the rescue of Gen. Nobile will be remembered by all who read of it. I am sure that the heroic deed of the rescue of Gen. Nobile will be remembered by all who read of it.

In his closing paragraph Mr. Johnson says: "Italy is riding for a fall." Luckily he is neither a prophet nor a soothsayer. We hope that such a probability will not cause Mr. Johnson too much worry. Italy has at last placed her feet upon the right road and, supremely confident of her every right, she marches proudly forward toward the brilliant destiny outlined for her. Italy has at last assumed the place in the sun that was formerly hers, and we will wager to say that there is no nation on earth that would not think twice before trying upon her the head of Mr. Johnson's statement that "sooner or later some other nation will administer to her a much-needed spanking."

G. M. PELLETIER.

Green Iceland, Ivy Greenland.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your editorial, "Geysers," you refer to Iceland as "one of the coldest of inhabited countries" and "a land of ice and snow." If you will take the trouble to look up your files of the National Geographic Magazine for four or five months ago you will find a very interesting and enlightening account of "A Walking Tour Across Iceland" by a woman explorer, whose name I do not recall at present.

However, I remember from the article in question that Iceland has quite a few pleasant months in the year, due no doubt to the beneficent effects of the gulf stream, and that there is quite a bit of vegetation there, considering its latitude.

Whoever named Iceland and Greenland was either an arm chair geographer or given to gentle irony. The latter island is by far the most bleak and desolate of the two—it is approximately 95 per cent covered with a polar icecap.

What's in a name?

Harsh Words From Hoosierdom.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SUPPOSE now that St. Louis has nominated Mr. Stidner again and murderers can go free for a small fine, you can turn your attention to Indiana and throw a smoke screen around St. Louis so the public will not see what is going on in a city where editorial writers live who see all, know all and are never mistaken.

In Indiana we punish our crooks. In St. Louis you put them back into office. If St. Louis and Chicago had any newspapers that the people had any confidence in, they might get somewhere.

So come on with your stuff about Indiana. We don't care. We are prosperous, have good roads, good schools. State is out of debt after 12 years of Republican rule and we will keep on attending to our own business, regardless of St. Louis and Chicago.

Yours for the Watson organization in good old Indiana.

The Textile Workers' Plight.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR cartoon on the textile workers' plight was very good and I recommend it to the attention of the so-called 100 per cent patriots and Fourth of July orators who are preaching about equality and democracy in America.

It is not the ideals and the Constitution but money that has the greatest respect at the present time in our country. It is not equal justice but the word of the money barons that is obeyed by courts, pulpits, schools and the Government.

Prosperity? Certainly not for the Massachusetts textile workers who are beaten and imprisoned because they want decent wages, because they refuse to hunger in order that the stockholders of the textile companies might receive fatter dividends.

JESSE HOUSER.

NO I. T. S. REFERENDUM.

Opponents of the I. T. S. franchise have decided against an appeal to the community by means of the referendum. Such an appeal would have to be set on foot instantly at a time when many leaders of the opposition to the franchise are out of the city, and there is the additional matter of financing circulation of the necessary petitions. Nevertheless, the people who have fought this unwarranted invasion of the rights of North St. Louis formally protest, in a public statement, against the haste with which the franchise was put through the Board of Aldermen and the flimsiness of all safeguards to the city. They condemn:

1. Establishment of the Cass avenue grade crossing, where thousands of automobiles cross at all hours of the day and night, particularly after the 17-year struggle to eliminate the Delmar grade crossing.

2. Violation of the city's pledges to eliminate rather than to create new grade crossings.

3. Conversion of important public streets and highways into dangerous switching yards, a direct reversal of the position taken by the city before the Public Service Commission in the Brecht case.

4. Granting a 50-year franchise to any railroad to haul freight through the streets of St. Louis and into the heart of the city at Twelfth street and Washington boulevard.

5. Establishment at this important corner of a freight terminal and depot to become a public nuisance.

6. Cluttering up the northern entrance to the Municipal Plaza with a railroad freight depot, a desecration of the plaza and a civic crime.

7. The indecent haste with which the franchise was rushed through, and for which there was no public justification.

8. Granting such a franchise without reference to the City Plan Commission, which was thus deprived of any opportunity to say whether it would or would not deface the plaza or interfere with traffic.

9. Rushing the franchise through without reference to the new Transit Commission, thus ignored at the outset in the most important transportation problem with which the city has had to deal in years.

That fairly states the objections to the franchise. It was a bad bargain for St. Louis, and unless we are mistaken it will remain to plague us long after the unthinking city administration which for some strange reason preferred the wishes of the company to the welfare of the community. The administration is the chosen advocate of the people of St. Louis. It is recent to its trust when it lends its aid to those who would exploit the city, and that is what the Miller administration did in this case. The Mayor, after wavering between the city and the company for several months, finally forced the franchise through the Board of Aldermen, signed it, and delivered it.

The people of North St. Louis are justified in crying out. It is an outrage.

A REAL MIRACLE MAN.

He was the snappiest dresser of his day, and legend still accounts him the symbol of sartorial excellence.

When it came to promending the paths of asphalt through the beguiling field of romance he was a glorified, magnified, multiplied Don Juan.

With the years came wisdom, which he has bequeathed to the ages in perhaps the meatiest paragraphs ever written.

Posterity thus accredits him, which, by and large, is a handsome judgment.

And now the archeologists prying into the buried annals of history find that he was a sportsman of royal stripe, operator of a more sumptuous stock farm than Harry Sinclair's unfulfilled dream at Three Rivers, breeder of those pure Arabian steeds that thrilled the partisans and plebeians in the Kentucky Derbys of long ago.

We present to the convention the name of Solomon in all his recorded glory, and then some.

McLEMORE'S CANDIDACY.

One of the illusions with which Democratic politicians are wont to tickle their fanes from time to time is that they have devised a way to lure the Negro vote from the Republicans. Never is an important election held in a city with a large Negro population but that some Democrats are certain that they will poll a large proportion of the Negro vote. The theory is 99 per cent unsound. Experience has shown that Negroes resist nearly every lure that is held out to them to abandon the party of Lincoln.

We will witness in November a fresh effort to upset the dope. Joseph L. McLemore, a Negro, is running for Congress in the Twelfth District against the veteran Republican Congressman, L. C. Dyer. McLemore is running as a Democrat. He claims the district has a 65 per cent Negro vote, and he believes he will get three-fourths of it. He may be right. If he is, it will constitute a political phenomenon of more than passing interest. For any considerable body of Negroes to desert the Republican party even to boost into office one of their own race would astonish and encourage those who have been urging Negroes to vote discriminatively.

SAVE THE COUNTY'S BEAUTY.

In another column on this page the Post-Dispatch publishes excerpts from an article of peculiar interest to St. Louis. It deals with the problems created by the growth of large cities beyond their political limits. It is true of nearly every large city in the country that there is little relation between its legal boundaries and its actual ones. St. Louis' western boundary, for example, is at Skinner road, but the city has grown beyond that imaginary line established more than 50 years ago. Indeed, a large part of St. Louis County is urban in fact, though it is governed by a hodgepodge of town and county government.

As elsewhere in the United States, the environs show little desire to be part of the city. Many of the people who live in them left the city to live in country or the semi-country and resent any effort at annexation. This, however, is a shortsighted view to take and one which some day will have to be abandoned. Far from destroying the natural beauty of the county, annexation would aid in preserving it. If the county were annexed, it would be possible to formulate plans for the future in the matter of such things as parks and boulevards, for water supply, sewage systems and other needs of a large community.

The greatest criticism of American cities is that—with the exception of Washington—they have been built without plan. We have just been put to great expense to widen Olive street. If St. Louis had been built according to plan, Olive street would already have been a roomy thoroughfare. St. Louis County, which is in the process of great population growth, shows the effects of the helter-skelter method of building. Some parts of it are naturally exceedingly beautiful, but the beauty is being destroyed by catch-as-catch-can development.

We have seen older parts of the city ruined for lack of forethought; we should have learned to make provisions for the newer portions of the community.

JAPANESE IMPERIALISM.

The Japanese Government is playing a desperate game in China. It is a game which deserves to fail, and the Japanese press is almost unanimous in the opinion that it will fail—perhaps with disastrous consequences. Responsibility for this policy rests upon Premier Tanaka and the militarist party which is supporting him.

Nationalist leaders have succeeded in unifying virtually all of China except Manchuria, stronghold of the late Chang Tso-lin. Apparently that province was on the verge of entering the fold, and thus affording the comforting spectacle of a united nation, when Japan intervened. Premier Tanaka sent a note to Chang's son and successor, warning him that Manchuria must not be permitted to come under the domination of the Nanking Government.

This is precisely as if the President of Mexico should send a note to the Governor of Texas, warning him that Texas "must not be permitted to come under the domination of the Government at Washington." Manchuria is as much a part of China as Texas is a part of the United States. It is true that Japanese citizens have large property interests in Manchuria, but so have Canadian citizens large property interests in New England. Property interests justify no such political intervention as Japan is attempting in Manchuria.

Japanese editors and the enlightened section of Japanese public sentiment believe that Japan's whole future depends on good relations with the awakening Chinese giant. Common sense and common decency support that view. The military clique behind Premier Tanaka believes that this is an opportune time to seize the rich province of Manchuria. That, of course, is sheer imperialism—frank, brutal and unashamed.

That China at last is surely on the road to national unity and national consciousness must be obvious. The program of the Nationalist Government is intelligent, broad and progressive. Moreover, its leaders have shown their ability to crush opposition and establish order. Will the present Japanese Government be so blinded by greed as to give China, with her 400,000,000 population, a "lost province" for which to fight at some future date? That is the inevitable end of its present policy.

BOSS ESSEN PICKS A WINNER.

One of the most interesting aspects of the primary in St. Louis County was Boss Essen's support of the successful reform ticket. Not long ago Boss Essen was aligned with Tony Foley and represented the worst elements in the county. As Foley's gambling business ramified and his power became greater, he offered a threat to Essen's political leadership. When the County Taxpayers' League initiated the movement to drive the gamblers and crooks out of the county, Essen hopped on the bandwagon. It turned out that he picked the winner. He is still Boss Essen because he is willing to play in any orchestra where he can play first fiddle.

GENE TUNNEY'S ENGAGEMENT.

The announcement of Gene Tunney's engagement to a young woman of wealth and culture supplies another explanation of his retirement from the ring. It also affords another occasion to congratulate him upon his sound judgment and good taste.

Dispatches represent him as being angered by the persistence of reporters and photographers who invaded the precincts of his fiancée's home. He pointed out that he is a private citizen, and hence entitled to privacy, especially in connection with an affair which is of a peculiarly private nature. With this view we are in hearty accord. Moreover, we feel constrained to remind the daring reporters and cameramen that the champion's retirement is of very recent date, and that it might be unsafe to press him too far.

This said, we wish the happy couple good luck.

MISSOURI'S POLITICAL LOWLANDS.

Whether Missouri is dry is in dispute. However, there is no dispute about the region east of the Meramec River. That belongs to the wets, and no dry candidate successfully rides the camel across the Meramec River.

Let us take the case of the Democratic candidate, Mr. Hay. A St. Louisan, and far from unpopular among Democrats except for his insistence upon being a sodapopper, he had reasonable expectations that he would carry St. Louis and St. Louis County. His opponent, Mr. Collet, was weak. He seemed to have been merely thrust into the race by Senator Reed. Moreover, the Senator was conducting a campaign of vituperation against Mr. Hay which Democrats very much disliked. The good nature of the former whip in the Missouri Legislature, and his broad tolerance of the Democratic presidential candidate, who is as wet as St. Swithin's Day, helped him in St. Louis.

Yet Mr. Hay lost the city by some 15,000 votes, and he also lost St. Louis County. Meanwhile, Mr. Frank, a Republican candidate, whose sole appeal was to wets, was making off with almost the entire Republican vote for Senator in both city and county, which he carried by some 50,000. All this while dries, near-dries, pussfooters, in-and-outers, sodapoppers, coccolers, gingeralers, etc., etc., looked on from the highlands beyond the Meramec as Noah and his family looked down on another flood from Mount Ararat.

Such is the region east of the Meramec River—the political lowlands of Missouri.

KANSAS CITY DID IT, TOO.

Kansas City, like St. Louis, voted on an airport bond issue in Tuesday's primary election and, like St. Louis, ratified the proposal. Kansas City will invest $1,000,000 in this municipal enterprise.

The more airports the better. It seems certain now that, within five years, every city in the United States will have a municipal airport. Indeed, most of the smaller towns will be so equipped. This is, of course, the necessary foundation for an efficient, dependable system of air transportation. The day must come, and it seems to be speeding higher, when the aviator can in emergency find a reasonably safe landing anywhere in the country.

This is a development which, soon or late, was bound to come, but the genius of Lindbergh has marvelously accelerated it.

What a stellar part is his—that of shoving the clock of destiny ahead, say, a quarter of a century!

"MAY HEAVEN DEFEND US, IT IS THE CRY OF THE TALKIES."

Our Great Metropolitan Areas

Population of large cities is spilling into suburbs and nearby towns, and little is being done to co-ordinate the needs of large areas which, in the case of New York, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities, constitute or will soon constitute single communities. Annexation proposals have failed and metropolitan areas are now a crazy quilt of conflicting and non-co-operating governments.

ALBERT W. ATWOOD in the Saturday Evening Post.

DETROIT claims a population within its metropolitan area of 1,519,570, and there are many large separate places such as Hamtramck, Highland Park, Fordson and River Rouge which obviously cannot be considered apart from the central city. In addition there is a considerable population across the Canadian border which properly comes within the designation of a metropolitan district as applied to Detroit, but has to be excluded on account of being in foreign territory.

In the Philadelphia metropolitan region growth has been much greater outside the city limits for 15 or 20 years, although it has been accelerated very recently by the opening of the Camden Bridge. However, from 1870 to 1910 the movement was all inward.

A picturesque way of stating the situation is to say that probably not ten homes costing $100,000 or more have been built in the old Philadelphia, between the rivers, since 1910. Quite otherwise in the suburbs!

Then there is Cleveland, with Lakewood and East Cleveland, large places in themselves and close to the central city, but politically separate. Here again the census figures do not tell the whole story, and the outside population has been increasing much more rapidly than that inside. In St. Louis there has been a rapid expansion in the country outside city limits, until one-sixth of the total urban population of Missouri metropolis live in places like University City, Webster Groves, Kirkwood, Maplewood, Brentwood and the like.

No scheme of outright annexation will go over. Around each great city is an iron ring of small places with a spirit of their own. They will not give up, they will not surrender. Nor should they be sacrificed, especially at a time like this, when democracy itself rests in the balance. People are more interested in getting out of the city than they are in getting in. They are indifferent to the great city. Political bunk and ballyhoo have far less effect in the small place.

In any case the suburbs of Boston will not come in and cannot be forced in. The same seems to be true of these around St. Louis and Cleveland. Highland Park will not join Detroit, nor will Evanston join Chicago. Boston is Democratic and the surrounding towns and cities Republican. There are differences also, it may be suspected, of national stock, religion and social standards. Then, too, outlying areas always fear increased taxation, which is a marked factor in preventing the growth of St. Louis by annexation. Moreover, people who have left these cities because of their size and noise have no liking for reabsorption into an even greater mass.

Possibly the way out lies in urban federalism, patterned after the United States. Greater New York is in a slight sense an example of this, but it was not followed by other cities because of the exceedingly small powers left to the boroughs. The most important effort now being made to establish a federal city is in Pittsburgh, Montreal, Cleveland and Newark are watching this project closely.

It requires years to establish a federal city, such as that proposed in Pittsburgh. But very real progress has been made. The outlying communities have approved the idea and the State Legislature has arranged for a constitutional amendment. If this carries at the next election, a charter will then be submitted to the people. The idea is to substitute for the present county government of Allegheny, which contains more than 150 cities, townships and boroughs, a metropolitan government.

We must, of course, bring some order out of the present dismemberment of the metropolis.

Allegheny. Los Angeles is ridiculed for its annexations, but the result has been to keep within the voting fold the more sober, responsible citizenry. Cities suffer terribly because so large a percentage of the best citizens live outside, while doing business within, and the city's political destinies are left in the hands of the gas-house-district type of voter.

Then, too, so much of the opposition to annexation from outside comes from officeholders, big frogs in small puddles. Local suburban patriotism seems to beat more strongly in the heart of the local politician than in that of the ordinary citizen. Prof. Thomas H. Reed, an authority on metropolitan government, quotes a Belgian politician and scholar as saying that the ambition of the politician "adjusts itself well to the multiplication of offices," which indicates that this situation is not confined to any one country. But Professor Reed deprecates the loss of local pride and self-government which vast programs of metropolitan annexation threaten.

No scheme of outright annexation will go over. Around each great city is an iron ring of small places with a spirit of their own. They will not give up, they will not surrender. Nor should they be sacrificed, especially at a time like this, when democracy itself rests in the balance. People are more interested in getting out of the city than they are in getting in. They are indifferent to the great city. Political bunk and ballyhoo have far less effect in the small place.

"By the Light of the Silvery Moon."

Those who think that professors are as dumb must reverse that opinion. Recently many a professional bosom beats a heart that is lyric in its rapture. A professor at a summer school in Cambridge deplores the apt love-making. It is about time some one came out strongly against the mean, onerous, stereotyped music with which men have ever sought clumsily to woo the feminine heart. Frankly, we do not see how the ladies stand for it. But hear the professor. "We should not dare to play the violin at a concert without knowing anything about it, and yet we don't seem to think it necessary to learn this important art of love-making." Bravo, professor! Maybe the girl really does not care about his chances of getting a raise. She only wants to be told her eyes are liquid pools of filtered star-light, her cheeks make the rose to blush and her lips might stir the dusty glory that is Helen to trouble, jealous slumber. She realizes she never will be told that, so she listens to the story of "Ramon" on the radio. A girl in love, something in a tweed suit is a knight in shining armor, the second-hand car, a golden chariot with wheels of fire, and then the knight's soul is awakened to no greater deed of high enterprise than listening to "Ramon" on the radio. Illusions are not shattered in marriage; they are trodden in the dust when he keeps his eye on the meter in a taxicab. The maiden dreamed a dream of a tall knight riding a majestic steed down the road of romance to the charmed land that never was yet always to be, and—Inept love-making? Bah! It is not even that. It's "And I said to the boss."

What with William Allen White and Doctor Work, there seems to be no danger that this will be mistaken for a whispering campaign.

What puzzles us more or less now and then is why some politicians "threaten" to bolt the ticket.

Another big advantage to a close personal race is that when a tail-end team takes three in a row from one of the contenders that also gets its need of praise.

The only way we have of determining that some people have been on a vacation is that they have a nice coat of tan when they return.

During our more suspicious moments we incline to believe that whoever first discovered that honesty is the best policy had tried all the others.

"Omnibus quiet" refers to either the Balkans or the nursery, or, considering Michael of Rumania, both.

We do not know if it is a commentary on civilization or not, but about the only time people buy a clothes line is when they want to tie some rope around a hat.

Prohibition is a big success, but we can remember when nobody thought of buying ginger ale by the case.

Freight rates on checkers and checkerboards have been reduced, but at last reports, Senator Smoot's attitude on his issue was unchanged.

RETAILERS ATTEND BANQUET AND OPERA

Association Reports Increase of 838 Members and Prizes Are Awarded.

Eleven directors were elected at the semiannual banquet of the American Retailers' Association at Hotel Statler last night. There are 22 members on the board.

After the banquet, which was attended by about 700 persons, the delegates were guests of the association at the Municipal Opera.

The board met today to elect officers.

Four new names were added to the board: Didier Ardoin, Eunice, La. C. R. Braman, Mitchell, Ind.; Robert B. Meentemeyer, Gideon, Mo. and Clement J. Zerr, Fort Madison, Ia. Seven directors re-elected are: Frank R. Becker, Scottsbluff, Neb.; Julius Becker, Springfield, Ark.; M. H. Forester, Ottaviano, Kan.; R. T. Harville, Ark.; A. A. Kuhne, Troy, Mo.; W. R. Marx, Philadelphia, Miss. and Moss Newburger, Jasper, Ala.

The membership campaign resulted in an increase of 838 members since May. Prizes were awarded as follows: Neal T. Holt, Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., first; 62 new members; J. A. Davies, Rice-Stix, second; G. and O. J. Mudd, Butler Bros., third, 25.

About 1500 persons had registered up to last night. The convention will close tomorrow.

Pieces of Slate Hurlled Through Windows of Homes Across the Street.

Lightning struck the steeple of St. Luke's Evangelical Church, 1532 Alaska avenue, during the storm which swept over St. Louis and the county yesterday afternoon, knocking pieces of slate through the windows of houses across the street and damaging the steeple $500. No one was injured.

A house at 2706 Gamble street was set on fire when lightning struck it, setting the storm. The blaze was quickly extinguished, the damage being placed at $50.

FORMER PRINCE A MONEYMAKER

Friedrich Christian of Saxony Makes Investments for Father.

DRESDEN, Germany, Aug. 10.—Thanks to the rapidly acquired shrewdness and hustle of his son, Prince Friedrich Christian, former King Friedrich August of Saxony is on the road to become even wealthier than before the war.

Friedrich August found, in a second son, Friedrich Christian, an exceptional business counselor, under whose capable management the family fortune has continued to multiply.

On a recent visit to the United States Friedrich invested a large part of his own and his father's capital in stocks, buying them at $45 and selling later at $160. This streak of luck appears to have stuck to the formerly royal house, as the other investments with the tripled capital have also proved profitable.

BANKER DIES ON HONEYMOON

Charles R. Crouch of Erie, Pa., Caught Pneumonia in Ireland.

CONRAD, Ireland, Aug. 10.—The New York Herald Tribune says that Charles R. Crouch, a wealthy mill owner and banker of Erie, Pa., who has been touring Ireland, died yesterday in a nursing home at Belfast. He was 48 years old.

For 48 hours before his death, which was due to pneumonia, his bride remained at his bedside. Some days ago the pair went for a row on the Lakes of Killarney, and was caught in a storm. Crouch, soaked through, caught cold, which led to his fatal illness.

TEST FLIGHT TO SCOTT FIELD

Marine Pilot Trying Out Ship for Cruise to Nicaragua.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Lieut. C. Frank Schilt took off from the naval air station at Anacostia on a test flight to Scott Field, Ill., in the giant tri-motored Fokker transport monoplane he is to fly to Nicaragua in a few days.

A new engine was recently installed in the craft and the test was undertaken to determine its efficiency in a long flight. Lieut. Schilt left here at 8:25 o'clock. He carried a crew of three men with him.

Hospital Association's New Head
By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—Dr. Christopher G. Farnall of Rochester, New York, was elected president of the American Hospital Association at its convention here last night, following a prolonged fight over franchise eligibility. His election was announced after the association voted to throw out 52 proxy votes telegraphed here yesterday in an attempt to elect Dr. Frank T. Chapman of Cleveland. Other officers named include Asa S. Bearson, Chicago, treasurer.

Annual Picnic of Glendale Parish
The sixth annual picnic of the Mary Queen of Peace Parish is being held on the parish grounds in Glendale, today and tomorrow.

For 48 hours before his death, which was due to pneumonia, his bride remained at his bedside. Some days ago the pair went for a row on the Lakes of Killarney, and was caught in a storm. Crouch, soaked through, caught cold, which led to his fatal illness.

TEST FLIGHT TO SCOTT FIELD

Marine Pilot Trying Out Ship for Cruise to Nicaragua.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Lieut. C. Frank Schilt took off today from the naval air station at Anacostia on a fuel test flight to Scott Field, Ill., in the giant tri-motor Fokker transport monoplane he is to fly to Nicaragua in a few days.

A new engine was recently installed in the craft and the test was undertaken to determine its efficiency in a long flight. Lieut. Schilt left here at 8:25 o'clock. He carried a crew of three men with him.

Hospital Association's New Head

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—Dr. Christopher G. Parnall of Rochester, New York, was elected president of the American Hospital Association at its convention here last night, following a prolonged fight over franchise eligibility. His election was announced after the association voted to throw out 52 proxy votes telegraphed here yesterday in an attempt to elect Dr. Frank Chapman of Cleveland. Other officers named include Asa S. Beaton, Chicago, treasurer.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.

THOUGHTS while strolling: The benign old fellows who wear black cloth spats. Rube Goldberg, a San Francisco boy, who made good in the city. The Paramount lighted dome—as cold and distant as a winter star. Ruth Etting, who warbles for the records.

Wish someone would invent a spoon to which caviar wouldn't cling. Young medical students who wear imperial. Those charming elderly ladies wearing dove gray and black velvet neckbands. And driving every afternoon in the park. Sailors at a lunch counter, eating beans.

Patented face lifters—$25. What's become of the grocery cart that used to sleep in the apricot box? A pack of whippets yipping and yapping across town. Who remembers the change from oilcloth to the red table cloth? Nothing so cute as a Chow puppy. I'd just as soon Harry Richman didn't put that stuff on his hair.

The brass rail lunch places have crowded out "ye old inns" with their open fireplaces. And walls lined with rugs. A recital of Indian music. Crazy-to-be glorified girls. No more Cubism exhibits. Ascot ties with turnover collars, despite the heat.

Wonder how many times De Wolf Hopper has recited "Casey at the Bat?" The systematic worldlings who walk at 5 o'clock on the avenue. The impression created by pedestrians who talk to themselves. Most of us do, but regard others who do it as nutty.

That idea of Scandinavian people are mental wool gatherers has exploded. They have walked away with some of the highest honors on the stage, screen, in literature and in the air, the past year. An imported car upholstered in snake skin. Harry Hanson, the book critic.

Sign on a dingy old restaurant: "Good food and dancing do not mix." And there is truth to that. Another fortune-telling craze. It appeals because it is solely about ourselves. Konrad Bercovitch, who writes about gypsies and resembles one. The endless parade of new faces.

There is a tinge of pathos about those brass cash diners who snatch for the check at the finish of a meal. I saw one swoop down on a check the other evening at the Colony restaurant without meeting the expected opposition. The Colony is the sort charging $1.25 for a fruit cocktail. And if you think he didn't look silly, don't be that way.

20,000 AT WEDDING

OF PERCY GRAINGER

Pianist Weds Swedish Poet at Public Ceremony in Hollywood Bowl.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 10.—Ella Viola Strom, Swedish poet and pianist, last night became the bride of Percy Grainger, guest conductor of the Los Angeles symphony orchestra, in a public ceremony under the stars in the Hollywood bowl.

The wedding ceremony was held at 8 o'clock at a nearby mountain peak, served to illuminate the amphitheater.

Twenty-two thousand persons witnessed the service, which followed the orchestra's rendition, under Grainger's direction, of "To a Nordic Princess." The composition was written by the bridegroom in honor of his bride. A choir chanted as the Rev. J. Herman Olson of the Swedish Lutheran Church read the marriage service.

The bride wore a pink tulle gown shaded to deep rose and camellia trimmed. The hem of her skirt reached the floor.

The romance began when the pair met aboard an Australian-bound ship. The honeymoon will be spent in Glacier National Park, followed by a year in Europe. Grainger is a pianist, composer and conductor of note.

POLISH CREDIT INSTITUTION

American Bankers to Aid Farmers in Bond Sales

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Poland, Aug. 10.—American bankers, headed by A. A. Tilney, president of the Bankers' Trust Co. of New York, have offered to open in Warsaw a central credit institution where all existing agrarian credit houses of Poland would place their bonds instead of trying to market them abroad. The central credit institution would offer its own bonds abroad.

The plan has been evolved after several weeks of negotiations between American bankers and the Polish Government. The Government is now considering the proposal. It is aimed toward helping Polish farmers to obtain long term credits.

D. L. CLARK, DENVER, HEADS OSTEOPATHS

National Group Votes to Fight Discrimination by Tax-Supported Hospitals.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 10.—D. L. Clark of Denver was elected president of the American Osteopathic Association here yesterday. First vice president is John A. MacDonald of Boston; second vice president, F. Clay Hopkins of Hannibal, and third vice president, Anna E. Northrup of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

Trustees chosen are Phil R. Russell, Fort Worth, Tex.; Arthur E. Allen, Minneapolis; Ray B. Gilmore, Sioux City, Ia.; Louis C. Chandler, Los Angeles and C. A. Ward, Detroit. The trusteeship was vacated by the election of MacDonald as vice president was filled by the selection of Josephine L. Pearce of Lima, O.

Resolutions adopted protested against alleged discrimination against osteopathic physicians in tax-supported or state-aided hospitals, and expressed disapproval of "such un-American and illegal actions of the organized medical oligarchy."

The resolution ordered that suits be instituted wherever necessary to break down such barriers.

The Osteopathic Women's National Association also elected officers. It re-elected Evelyn R. Bush, Louisville, Ky., president, and elected Anna Mary Mills, Champaign, Ill., first vice president, and Edith Dovesmith, Niagara Falls, N. Y., second vice president.

Akron O. was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Janette H. Boiles of Denver, the first woman osteopath in the world, was chosen honorary president.

Harry L. Collins, president of the Chicago College of Osteopathy was elected president of the American College of Osteopathic Surgeons.

Orel F. Martin, of the Massachusetts Osteopathic Hospital was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Albert Collum Johnson, Cleveland, was elected trustee for three years and appointed chairman of publicity.

Johnson also was chosen chairman for the coming year of the surgical section of the American Osteopathic Association.

E. C. Brann, Wichita, yesterday was re-elected president of the society of divisional secretaries of the American Osteopathic Association, an organization composed of the secretaries of state osteopathic societies. W. C. Dawes, Bozeman, Mont., was re-elected vice president and C. N. Stryker, Sioux City, elected secretary.

The registration of osteopaths at the convention is more than 1700.

Young Mother, Once Thin, Weak, Gains 5 Pounds and New Strength

Don't be "Skinny, Washed-Out, Unattractive"
Gain Pounds of Weight and Pep This New, Quick Way

New Combination of Yeast and Iron Changes Hollows to Curves in 3 Weeks—or pay nothing

"I gained 5 lbs. while taking IRONIZED YEAST. That means quite a bit, as my folks are both thin. What I prize most is the difference in the way I feel and the pep I have. Before I took IRONIZED YEAST I had to hire a girl to help me with my hard work. But now I do all my housecleaning alone and help my mother with hers too. I went through taking care of two cases of whooping cough in which I lost one of my little girls. I am sure I would have been down sick in bed if I had not been taking IRONIZED YEAST at that time, as I was caring for the baby I lost almost night and day for 3 weeks. IRONIZED YEAST I am sure helped me to be here to write this now."

How "Skinny" Lifeless Girls Gain Weight
People who had tried everything else in vain and who did not believe that IRONIZED YEAST could help them, write how they gained 5 to 15 pounds in a few weeks. Think of skinny limbs quickly rounded into graceful, chubby curves. Sallow, pimply skin becoming pink and satiny smooth. Tired feeling vanishing. Loads of new pep that makes you popular and sought after.

Only when Yeast is Ironized is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building and strengthening values of Yeast. That's why IRONIZED YEAST makes a new person of you so quickly. Get these pleasant-tasting tablets in the handy bottle today. Safe for everybody. Never cause gas or bloating, no harmful drugs.

Try It on "Money-Back" Offer
Go to any druggist today and get a full size treatment of IRONIZED YEAST. If after this generous trial you are not delighted with effects, your money back instantly. If inconvenient to buy from druggist, send $1.00 to IRONIZED YEAST CO., Atlanta, Ga. Desk 169-BE

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion and generally weakened condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to gaining weight. Take it regularly if you want the full benefit. And take it long enough so you not only gain but HOLD what you gain. L. Y. Co.

What IRONIZED YEAST has done for all these folks is almost certainly too good for you. Take advantage of our generous trial offer. If not delighted, get your money back.

"Skinny," Weak, Gains 8 Lbs. in 1 Month
"Was so skinny, weak and run-down and after taking IRONIZED YEAST in 1 month I gained 8 lbs. Nerves were better, slept and ate better, and really feel much more alive."—Mildred Newberry, Kahoka, Mo.

Built Strength, Added 5 Lbs.
"After a tonsil operation I lost much weight, was weak, and took IRONIZED YEAST for 3 weeks and gained 5 lbs. But what it did most was

Tired, Nervous, Gains 12 Lbs. and Feels Much Better
"Before I took IRONIZED YEAST, was always tired, nervous and underweight. Now feel better than in some time. Have gained 12 lbs. and complexion is greatly improved."—Mrs. T. G. Polner, Leavenworth, Mo.

Gains 6 Lbs., Clears Complexion
"Would get up with tired feeling and dull headache every morning. Don't seem to have it any more since taking IRONIZED YEAST. Have gained between 6 and 7 lbs. Yellow complexion has cleared up."—Mary Rogers, Richmond, Mo.

LIQUOR CONTROL PLAN OF SWEDEN PRAISED

Norman Haggood Says It Is Good Example for U. S. to Follow.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 10.—The United States has a good example to follow in Sweden in the matter of liquor control and real temperance, Norman Haggood, editor, writer and biographer of Gov. Smith, told the Institute of Politics today.

"Sweden never undertakes to enforce the ideas of a mere majority," Haggood said, "referendums are merely advisory, and if 65 per cent of the Swedish people voted for absolute prohibition tomorrow the Legislature would refuse to act on the ground that the percentage was too low to make enforcement possible."

On the other hand passage of the eighteenth amendment in the United States was described as "an example of the majority's misuse of its power by attempting an impossible control of the minority." "This attempt is made a far more serious blunder than might almost be called a political crime, when the temporary majority puts its views into an instrument almost as hard to change back again as were the laws of the Medes and Persians," Haggood continued. "Practically we have thrown away the essence of free government, which is to keep laws in touch with changing opinion."

The way out of the difficulty, he believed, was for the Federal Government to confine its enforcement activities to distinctly Federal fields and leave to the states either to carry out, or leave undone, the rest.

Liquor Control in Belgium. The economic effects of Belgium's policy of semi-prohibition were told by Dr. Louis Pierard of Brussels, who said that production had increased in some trades, the people were drinking less, and accidents were fewer.

"The Belgian working class is satisfied with the new regime," he said. "The number of cafes has been reduced. Working men drink less, they live more at home, they go with their wives to the movies or to the football grounds. Of course, there is some bootlegging, clandestine production or sale of spirits."

The prohibition question also was discussed yesterday by Warren, Boston lawyer, who assailed the Volstead act, and Prof. C. R. Fay of Toronto, Ont., who described the workings of the liquor control act in his province.

Mexican Oil Despute.
In a discussion yesterday led by Prof. C. W. Hackett of the University of Texas, Prof. Leland H. Jenks of the University of Missouri said he thought the United States had been "fighting shadows" throughout the whole Mexican dispute and that the real injury to American property could reasonably be apprehended, "because the petroleum laws permit the removal of all the oil, and the provisions of the alien land law have been almost unanimously accepted by American land owners in Mexico."

Prof. Hackett thought that the State Department perhaps had been playing up the alien land laws unduly, because Americans own only $16,000,000 worth of Mexican property in Mexico and only a very small fraction of that is remotely affected.

"But it would be easier to go to war to protect the property of thousands of American citizens in Mexico," he said. "Than to look after merely the interests of a few concession-seeking oil companies."

BURSTING BOTTLES OF BEW
INJURE TWO POLICEMEN
Flying Glass Cuts Two of Squad Handling Evidence Seized in Liquor Raid

Exploding bottles of home brew injured two policemen as they were carrying beer seized in a raid on 2901 Morgan street last night.

After finding five bottles of beer on ice in a saloon on the first floor, police searched the building and came upon a cache of 120 bottles of home brew, 17 half-pints and three pints of whisky on the third floor, they reported.

Jerry Quillo, bartender at the saloon, was arrested.

17 SPECIAL TRAINS SCHEDULED FOR SMITH NOTIFICATION DAY
Others Likely to Be Arranged to Bring Crowds to State Capital.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Seventeen special trains already have been arranged to bring visitors to this city for the Smith notification ceremonies Aug. 22. Mayor John Boyd Thatcher's welcoming committee has been informed by the New York Central Railroad.

Other trains, it is thought, will be scheduled before the notification date.

Unusual Diamond Values Tomorrow

CREDIT? Why Certainly!

"Values"—that's the magnet that is drawing hundreds and hundreds of buyers to Aronberg's. And this has been the attraction that has opened thousands of new Charge Accounts since the first of the year. Quality and Low Prices are a combination that brings results. Our policy of exceptional value-giving is based on volume, and we sell merchandise of known worth at low prices to bring new customers to our store. You need but very little cash to buy at Aronberg's—in fact, that's the least. You can open a Long-Time Charge Account on our Most Liberal of All Credit Plans. Just make your selections, take your purchases with you, and pay as you conveniently can. The simplicity of our extending Credit will surprise you.

CALL MONEY UP; STOCKS IRREGULAR

Chrysler Is Outstanding Feature, Soaring 9 3/4 Points to New High of 94 3/4 on Total Turnover of Nearly Half Million Shares.

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES.
30 Index, 20 R. R.

Low, 194.35, 142.48
Total sales, 1,500,000 shares.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Trading in today's stock market was unsettled by the marking up of the call money rate to 5 percent, an increase in bankers' acceptances bids of 1/4 percent for time money and a break of more than 40 cents in wheat futures. With a few conspicuous exceptions, final quotations were generally lower, with numerous declines of 2 to 4 points.

Chrysler was the outstanding feature, soaring 9 3/4 points to a new high record at 94 3/4 on a total turnover of nearly half a million shares, or approximately one-fourth of the day's entire volume of business. Dodge Bros. issues, which are convertible into Chrysler stock, recorded compound gains, the preferred jumping 10 1/2 points to 95 1/2, also a new top. Heavy buying of this issue for the account of interests previously active in General Motors was reported in Wall street, although widely circulated rumors that John J. Raskob would join the Chrysler organization after elections were officially denied.

General Motors sank into heavy selling, closing 1 1/2 points lower at 15 1/2 after having dipped to 15 1/4.

Call Rate 5 Per Cent.
Call money renewed at 7 percent, advanced to 7 1/2 percent, and to 8 percent as banks called $25,000,000 in loans to strengthen their position at the Federal Reserve Bank. This tended to dampen the bullish enthusiasm created by the retention of the 5 percent rate by the New York Federal Reserve Bank and the relatively small increase in brokers' loans last week.

Mystery of 'Earmarked' Gold.
Mystery was created by the report that the Federal Reserve Bank had "earmarked" about $125,000,000 in gold at the Bank of England. While this was characterized as a "drop in the bucket" in view of the exports of more than $500,000,000 of the yellow metal since last September, hope was held out in some quarters that it signaled the possible reversal of the gold movement.

Time money was officially quoted at a flat 6 1/2 percent basis, although bids of 6 1/4 percent are reported to have been made by several brokers for time funds. Bankers' acceptance rates on 150 and 180 day bills were marked up to 8 1/4 percent bid.

Pools Are Active.
A few venturesome pools followed the lead of the Chrysler sponsors in pushing their stocks to new high ground. Eaton, E. A. Montgomery-Ward, Sears-Roebuck, United Biscuit, Grand Stores and others were among the issues to attain new top prices for the year or longer.

Amusement shares, which turned reactionary yesterday on report of official denial of some of the rumors in circulation, received better support today. Warner Bros. closed 3 1/2 points higher and Paramount Famous Lasky 2. U. S. Steel common closed more than a point higher following the announcement of a drop of 60,000 tons in unfilled orders, as compared with earlier estimates of a decline of 100,000 tons.

Lacado Gas Light 35 Points.
Lacado Gas Light of St. Louis sold at 240, or 35 points above last previous sale.

Some of Lower Spots.
Selling pressure was particularly effective against Allied Chemical, American Tobacco, R. City Stores, R. Commonwealth Power and Union Carbide, all off 2 points or more, and the Flak Rubber issues, which touched new low levels for the year.

Cotton rallied $1.50 to nearly $2.50 a bale on indications of a temporarily over-sold position. The decline in wheat followed the publication of a bearish Government crop report, pointing a yield above private estimates.

Foreign exchange held steady in quiet trading, sterling cables ruling around $4.84 1/2.

Unfilled U. S. Steel Orders
Show 66,082 Ton Decrease

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation on July 31 amounted to 3,870,927 tons, a decrease of 66,082 tons compared with the preceding month.

The decline in tonnage follows an increase of 128,127 tons which was reported for June, the first gain the corporation had shown for several months. Decreases of 488,511 tons were reported for May, 449,973 tons for April and 60,883 tons for March.

SHARES SOLD.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Total sales were 1,500,000 shares, compared with 1,464,000 yesterday, 2,302,000 a week ago and 2,910,000 a year ago. Total sales from July 1 to July 31, 1934, were 1,500,000 shares, compared with 3,332,257,000 a year ago.

British Aviators in Mid-Ocean Waiting to Be Rescued

—Photos made by Captain Courtney himself.

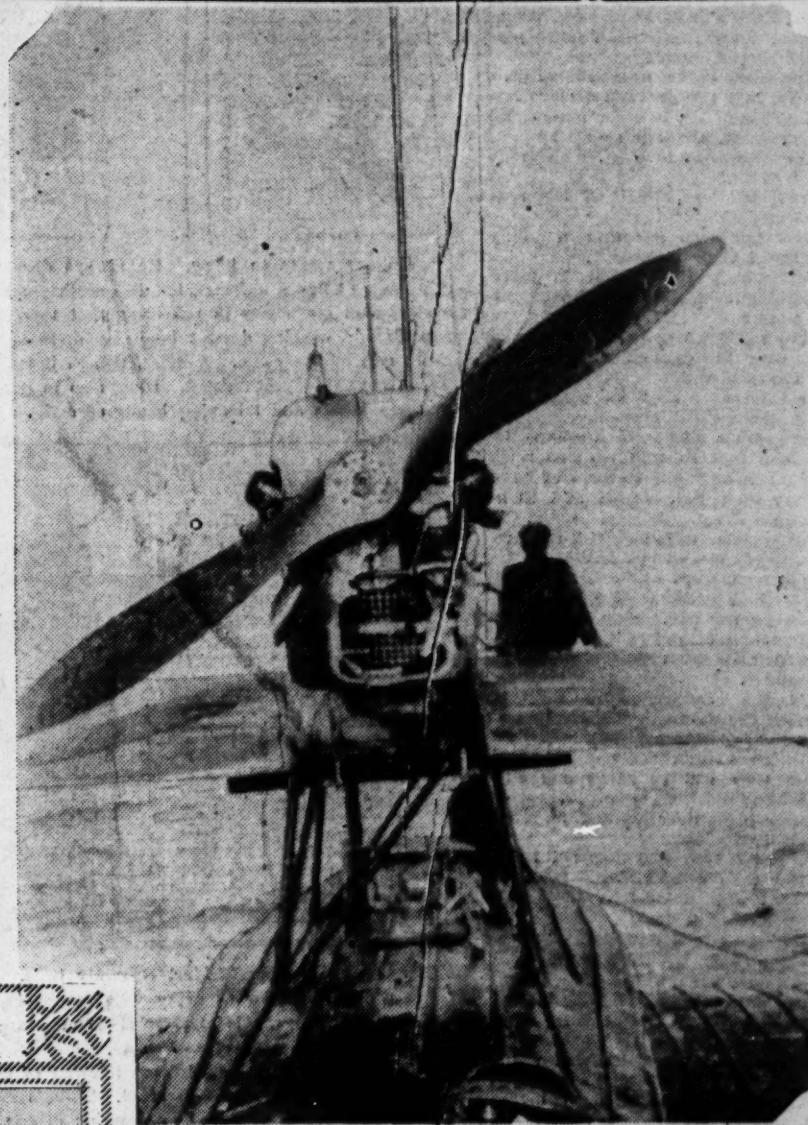

Hugh Gilmore, radio operator of the plane commanded by Captain Courtney, waving a handkerchief attached to a boat hook after the steamship Minnewaska was sighted. The plane, forced down on its flight from the Azores to Newfoundland, had then been on the surface of the Atlantic for 18 hours.

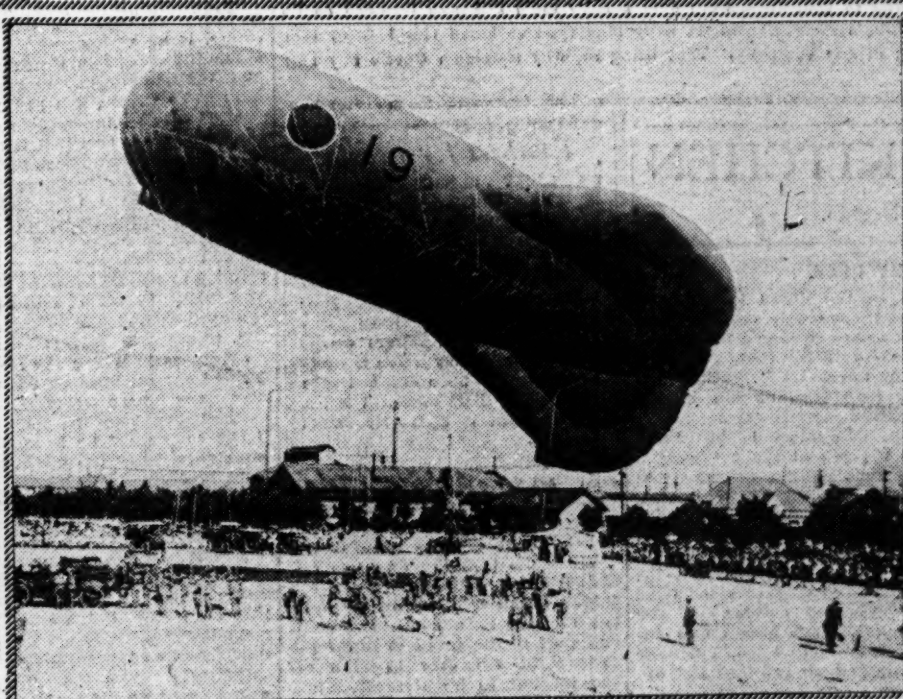

Fred Pierce, mechanic, Hugh Gilmore and Elmer Hosmer, backer of the flight, on the plane before the rescue ship arrived, are seen above. At the right is the engine of the plane which was damaged by fire.

THE WAY —OF— A WOMAN

—By—
Marguerite Moores Marshall

MEN ARE HAPPIER—AND HOW!
THAT men have a happier time of it than women is the interesting discovery just made by Dr. Elizabeth Sloan Chesner, prominent woman physician and psychiatrist of London.

And there isn't a woman alive who, reading the doctor's declaration, won't concede, between a sigh and a shrug, the truth of it! And how—and why—men may wonder.

We'll tell 'em SOME of the reasons:

How few men are ever unhappy about their looks—

Particularly the change in looks brought about by advancing years.

They don't worry over wrinkles.

Or over the accumulation of too, too solid flesh.

Or even over gray hairs and approaching baldness.

They don't starve themselves to keep that schoolboy figure.

Or go through the tortures of having their hair waved and their faces lifted.

Women are unhappy if they are not young and beautiful—

Or cannot seem so.

And their reason, poor dears, is that most men value them only in terms of youthful loveliness.

To the men themselves, women are kinder.

And the compassion of women, plus the natural conceit of men, keeps the latter perfectly happy in the conviction

That they will be loved and admired

However unattractive and middle-aged they look.

Another reason why men are happier than women

Is that men don't take their romances so seriously.

"Men have died and worms have eaten them, but NOT for love!"

A woman, even if her love affair is going well for the time being, asks herself, inevitably, how long it will last.

If the love affair isn't going well, or isn't going at all.

Then, naturally, she's even more unhappy.

She also worries over what her lover eats, drinks, wears, says, does—

She is unhappy about the condition of his bank account—and of his soul.

She suffers unhappiness because of the things he tells her—

And even more unhappiness because of what he doesn't tell.

Oh, a woman in love can find more ways of being unhappy

Than are dreamt of in man's philosophy!

A third reason why men are happier than women

Is because men are less intimately associated with children.

A woman, of course, may find much happiness in her children.

But, if she's honest, she has to admit that they give her times of exceeding unhappiness.

There are her unhappy hours when she is suffering from childish illnesses and accidents—

About which she simply can't be philosophical.

However inevitable and temporary are most cases of measles and of broken collarbones.

There is her anxious unhappiness when the children behave badly, or bring home terrible marks from school—

She can't help feeling that somehow she's to blame.

And she can't help worrying about the future of her bad-tempered or indolent boy or girl.

Finally, adolescence makes any woman interested in them acutely unhappy—

They are so utterly wise in their own conceit.

So utterly unwilling to listen to advice, admonition, argument.

They take everything given them and done for them as a matter of course—

But whenever they are asked to do anything, there's a "no" for answer.

They can be charming, of course. But the fonder a woman is of them, the more unhappiness it gives her—

Their fathers, lucky and sensible men, don't get so wrought up about them!

Finally, women as a sex are frequently rendered unhappy

By the exactions, the rudeness, the sin of omission and commission perpetrated by the men in whose homes and offices women live and work.

They are the buffer, ex—

They are supposed to exist in order to make men comfortable and happy—

But it's nobody's job to make WOMEN happy!

It comes down to this: men only have to live in the world with women.

Whereas WOMEN have to live and PUT UP WITH men—

Can you wonder that men are the happier sex?

Comfort for All.

When buying a home consider the needs of the members of the family who must go out each day, either to school or to work. It is very irritating and quite expensive for the person who must make several changes of cars to arrive at his daily occupation.

Tight Packing.

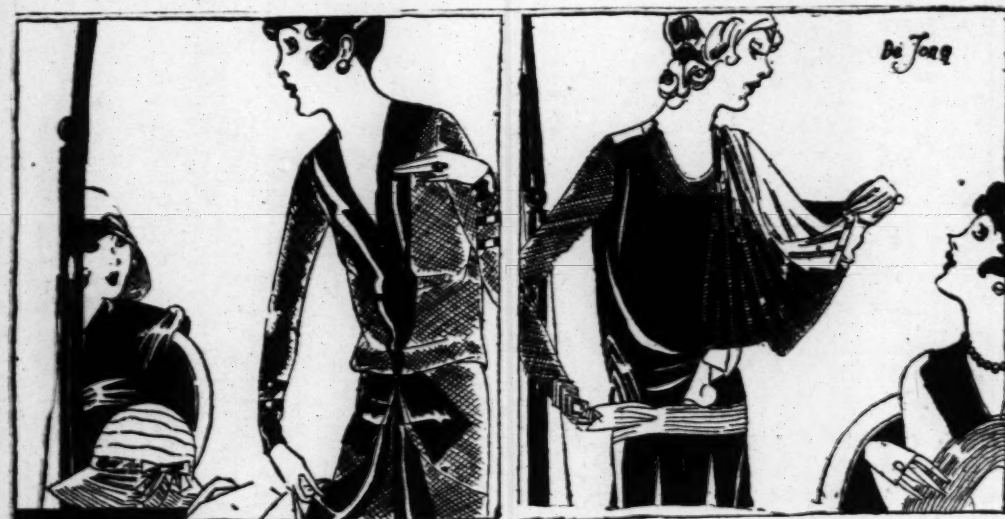

After treating ice cream, draw off all the salt water and repack with ice and salt, using three parts ice to one of salt. A wet, loose packing will mean soft cream.

CHIC CHERIE

The Indispensable Navy Blue Dress

Eustace wants to know. He always does want to know what or why or when. Cherie says she is going to town to buy a uniform, but it's much too hot to explain what she means. Let him worry about it. He will spend hours now in reflecting that there is no accounting for a woman who will buy a uniform when she is already wearing a most becoming dress of navy blue satin with a panel down the front and shirtings on each side of the panel. A dress, though it isn't Eustace who could tell you so, with the new pointed lines of fagoting that Paris created. Dina, also in quest of a uniform, is wearing a frock of navy blue georgette with three jabots and trimming bands of satin.

Is this the uniform? Most certainly it is. Any navy blue dress is a uniform because it's the everyday and emergency wear of every well-dressed woman. At least one navy blue dress belongs in every clothes closet. This one is cleverly made of georgette and satin divided up in the proportions visible. The pepum effect is a new feature of skirts.

Cherie's new navy blue dress is likewise of georgette, worn over a navy satin slip, and trimmed on its jabot, sleeves and belt with cire braid. There's something about navy blue (you've heard this before) that makes one feel well-dressed on any occasion in any company. That being so, why shouldn't Cherie buy half a dozen or so more of them?

IN THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeannette Young Norton.

BE FAT OR BE LEAN BY DIET.

DIET problems are interesting many people these days, the fat and the thin seeking corrective help for their conditions. The former are the more troubled, as to lose weight means the giving up of sweet foods, fats, starches and the things good liver always enjoy. To get fat is frequently as hard as to lose it, but there is usually a reason and once found the plumping process is not difficult.

What must we do to get fat? This question is frequently asked of us, probably because we cook rather well. We suggest they see their doctor and find out why they are thin. If he finds nothing radically wrong, the right feeding process should correct the trouble. Our advice is lots of fresh air, sunshine and pure water, few hot baths and those taken with enough sea salt to make them salty.

We do not favor tea or coffee but milk, cream and occasionally cocoa, and plenty of fresh fruits. We also suggest little pastry and candy, the better sweets being honey, maple sugar and occasionally a good homemade pound cake, or home-made fudge.

Good beef, lamb, fresh vegetables, cereals, white fish, clams and oysters, if liked. We are quite

Feathers for Frocks

VERY animal from the camel to the rabbit has contributed at one time or another to the feminine demand for something new. Now it is the turn of the bird to give her white feathers to fashion. Now woolen materials have tiny flecks of white feathers woven into them. They appear, however, to have been sprayed over the cloth. This material is expensive but is distinctly smart for fall.

with lemon dressings, sweetened stewed fruits with honey or maple sugar. Whole wheat bread or toast is usually allowed in most diets. We allow that the diet has few high lights in it to comfort the full feeder, but it is the price we must pay for past indulgence. The difficulty of the problem is for the overweight not only to take off the fat but to keep it off. To take all the grit we can muster to hold up the straight and narrow path. There is also an economical side to the diet problem that bolsters the budget when the high-priced foods are cut out.

Of course, each case is different, though fat may be fat, and many of the new diet fads work well for some and not for others. This is why it is safer to do the job scientifically, under a doctor's care. We favor exercise, the normal amount of sleep, but not sleeping late mornings. No eating between meals, no ice cream sodas, charged waters, or mayonnaise. Eat salads

ETIQUETTE

By Katherine de Peyster.

USE DOUBLE SHEET.

HOW does a young unmarried woman register at a hotel? When mother and daughter are together, who registers? When mother, father and daughter are together?

2. When combination salad is served in a bowl on a small service plate, but no serving fork and spoon is served, is the salad to be eaten from the bowl in which it was originally served?

3. When soups are served in very small soup bowls placed within seemingly larger soup bowls but with no service plate beside the latter, is it correct to pour the soup into the larger bowl? A waiter performed this service for me in a cafe and since then I have often wondered if that were the correct procedure.

4. When a woman and her escort enter a "booth" in a cafe, does the woman take the seat in the side of the booth nearest the entrance or pass to the second and leave the former for her escort?

5. Is it permissible to use letter-war in sealing letters to personal friends?

6. Will you also please criticize my letter and writing paper? I understand that this use and type of writing paper is replacing the conventional two leaf type and regulation size envelope. Is this correct? L. C.

An unmarried woman, of any age registers thus in the hotel registry: Miss Alice Drake, San Francisco. (She should always write the "Miss" before her name.)

When mother and daughter register at the hotel, either may register for both, or each one may register for the other. The mother's name would be written on the first line, and the daughter's underneath:

Mrs. William Drake, San Francisco.

Miss Alice Drake, San Francisco.

When mother, father and daughter are together, the father registers for himself and his wife, and on the line below, for their daughter:

Mr. and Mrs. William Drake, San Francisco.

Miss Alice Drake, San Francisco.

(He should never register "William Drake and wife.") He may, however, register for each separately, if he wishes:

William Drake, San Francisco.

Mrs. William Drake, San Francisco.

Miss Alice Drake, San Francisco.

When a woman registers in an incomplete and incorrect service, and it is possible to ask for a serving fork and spoon (as it would, for instance, be in a restaurant), then they should be asked for—graciously, of course.

If it would be ungracious to ask for them, then you may use your own utensils to serve yourself. It is inconvenient to eat the salad from the bowl in which it is served.

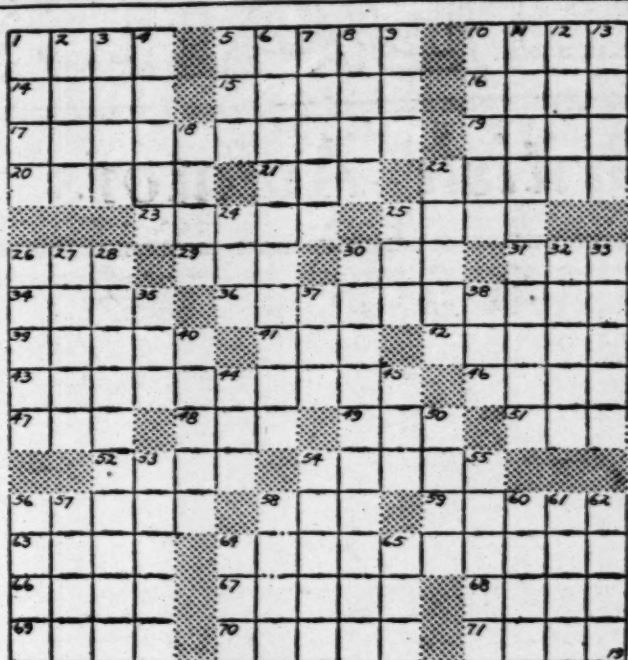

3. Sometimes this is done in restaurants in which the service is carried out on lines that are more utilitarian than correct. This method does keep the soup hotter, if the soup must be brought from a distance. But the method is not to be recommended.

4. She takes seat that is most convenient, farthest from the serving table or from an entrance.

5. Yes, sealing wax is permissible for social letters. But it is so unnecessary and so inconvenient in this busy life that we all lead nowadays that it is not often used now. And so few people put it on artificially. You see, when envelopes had no mudclags on their flaps, it was necessary to use sealing wax, and then it was usually done with artistry. But now main-ly we have lost that art. And it is better not to use the wax at all, than to apply it untidily.

pearance. Four letter-form is splendid (except for a few abbreviations)—and your grammar and punctuation perfect. But you spoil the appearance of your letter—at least to my taste—by using the too-light blue ink that you use and by using the one-sheet letter paper. Your letter gives the appearance of a business letter.

Don't be misled by what you are told by some stationer who finds his stock overloaded with one-sheet letter paper! The best-looking letter paper still is the two-sheet paper, for it gives distinction to the letter background. Observe papers that are used by people whose taste you admire, and then "see what you see." Stationers used to tell us that correspondence cards had "come to stay." Now they must admit that correspondence cards have gone out. And for a good reason. They never give distinction—enough room—to the message written on them. And I hope that the one-sheet letter paper will soon follow—and go out.

A DISH FOR TODAY

English Madeira Cake.

Beat a pound of butter and a pound of sugar to a cream, add the grated rind of one fresh lemon, add six eggs, one at a time, when all are beaten in, sift in slowly one and a half pounds of flour, and beat light and creamy. Divide into three buttered pans, decorate with thin slices of citron and dust thickly with sugar. Bake in a moderate oven about an hour. Line the sides of the pans with thin, buttered paper before putting in the dough. A teaspoonful of vanilla added will improve the cake for American taste.

Mailing Candy.

When mailing homemade candy, wrap each piece in waxed paper before packing it in the box. It is the only way to be certain of its safe arrival.

RISE "PRETTY."

THE FORTUNATE few who have a knack of rolling out of bed in the morning with the fresh, wide-eyed look of a healthy baby, after the rising bell sounds.

Now, whether or not the fortunate lot have a plan or a "trick" of something that they alone know to know and seem never to tire of. Otherwise there would be no such thing as a "trick" of something as a matter of fact, there are no tricks, ideas, perhaps, but nothing so definite as a rule.

Be that as it may, this department has been recording some observations of those whose observations are practical, if not exactly revolutionary—observations which may aid in solving the problem of those whose observation is a fine sort of the middle of the night. After all, who can blame a woman for wanting to look her best in emergency?

One very important general observation which we made on the subject under discussion was that the women who rise fresh and bright-eyed as healthy, happy children give themselves the same healthy, happy children are given the luxury—or the awful, weight—of a midnight supper. Warm milk and a cracker or two in their favorite "snack," or something equally simple and equally easy on the digestive tract.

What else can be the cause of restlessness, sleeplessness, bleary, screwed-up eyes and a face that looks sadly in need of ironing?

Several women we know who rise their offices to bed with them. How do we know? Well, they actually brag about it in some not inspired phrase as this: "Oh, I got a great idea for a new window display just before I fell off to sleep last night!" A tense, strained face was the price.

Daytime worries are not enough on a face without giving it the added burden of nighttime fretting and blotching. The face, only the inefficient work about their jobs—after hours. Also, the practice tends to make them more inefficient.

Then there is the sleeping posture. Haven't you seen babies who like little wrinkled old people? Because of office worries or labor habits of burying their faces into the pillow. And there are grown-ups who never outgrow the habit!

One's face in the morning is usually a fairly good index to one's manner of sleeping.

Baked Hash.

An excellent solution for the end of the roast of beef, veal or pork.

Cut the meat into dice, removing all fat and gristle. Cook on fire-chopped onion in butter until brown. Add two tablespoons of oil and blend. Now add one cup of gravy or bouillon, one tablespoon of catsup, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and when thick add salt and pepper. Cook until meat is heated well and then pour into a baking dish. Cover with a layer of mashed potatoes or a pie crust and bake in a moderate oven until nicely browned. No person can object to hash in this stated state.

The Menace Of Pneumonia

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU probably know that pneumonia, or inflammation of the lungs, is one among the first few causes of death in the United States. Its victims are of all ages, although the extremes of life rank especially high as being susceptible to the disease. It occurs in all seasons, although winter is all season favorable to its development. The disease is caused by germs that very constantly inhabit the upper air passages.

"Then," you ask, "why do not all of us get pneumonia?" The whole question of resistance to pneumonia infection I find so ably presented by Sir James Barr, in the "Practitioner," that I cannot help making a resume of his observations.

A healthy vigorous infant with good lungs from infancy to old age is not liable to any disease, but many are unfortunately unfit for this world. One-fourth of the deaths under five years of age are due to pneumonia. To keep healthy lungs from infancy to old age you must maintain a good vital capacity. This is established at birth when the baby cries, and a good preliminary howl is a fine thing to start life with, for it expands the lungs and establishes a pressure in the chest which should keep them expanded for life. To stimulate this expansion in childhood the child should be rubbed over with a cold, wet sponge after the bath, night and morning, and dried with a coarse towel. The clothing should be warm but not excessive. The child should be out of doors whenever possible and breathe a cool dry air. The plainer the food the better.

Youths should maintain their health, physique and vital capacity by plenty of outdoor exercise. There is no better exercise for developing the vital capacity at all ages than hill-climbing. To test your vital capacity you must take a deep breath and see how many you can count during the single expiration. If you get up to 70 your vital capacity is all right. Of course, you must not begin by rapid deep breathing before the test, or you make it easier.

The vital capacity of women is less than that of men. The percentage of mortality from pneumonia is greater, too. Pneumonia, as I have said, is an infectious disease, but the organism is not very highly infectious, and the determination of pneumonia is almost entirely a matter of environment. It is largely a disease of town life. For and low temperature, when combined for a short period only, is remarkably disastrous to infants and the old. Cold, damp atmosphere seems to be the determining cause. It is less frequent among those who lead a healthy outdoor life than among those who work in ill-ventilated, insanitary buildings. Frequent draughts of alcohol are more potent than draughts of cold air.

The way to prevent pneumonia is to raise the resistance power of the individual. To encourage temperance in all things and the avoidance of all debilitating agencies, such as undue exposure, fatigue and work in insanitary, stagnant, moist atmospheres. There should be an abundant supply of fresh moving air. A cool bath, a dry feet should be an especial feature; they can easily be kept warm by exercise. A fat flabby man has a poor chance if he gets pneumonia, and people should be encouraged to develop muscle rather than fat. A four-mouthed individual is a greater danger to himself than to others, for a septic mouth increases the virulence of the organisms. The mouth, teeth, throat and nose should be kept clean. A cool bath, dry feet, and a good morning improve the vitality and resisting powers of the individual.

YOUR GIFTS.

ALWAYS you came with gifts for me; But not such things as others brought. A bit of gold embroidery, A vase of silver, chastely wrought.

Not these, or books or songs or flowers, The offerings your kindness made: These others passed with flight of hours. Your gifts through changeful years have stayed.

Your gifts: the will to rise above All petty cares, all sordid deeds. The certainty that faith and love Are greatest still of all man's needs.

You came with gifts of honesty, With vision, steadfastness and truth. A portion of yourself to me You gave to aid my groping youth.

Not Always Wise.

A bowl of fruit is very decorative in the dining room, but unless eaten rapidly it will soon decay. Perhaps it is wise, if you are not big fruit eaters, to keep the fruit in the cool pantry and use some other form of decoration.

BLACK FLAG

Liquid... the deadliest known killer of insects—costs only 35 cents for the half-pint size. Then why pay 50 cents—the price of other liquids?

Comfort for All.

When buying a home consider the needs of the members of the family who must go out each day, either to school or to work. It is very irritating and quite expensive for the person who must make several changes of cars to arrive at his daily occupation.

Tight Packing.

After treating ice cream, draw off all the salt water and repack with ice and salt, using three parts ice to one of salt. A wet, loose packing will mean soft cream.

Some prefer Black Flag Liquid to kill flying pests—flies, mosquitoes, etc.—Black Flag Powder to kill crawling pests—roaches, bedbugs, etc.—© 1928, E. I. Co.

Like Muffets?... yes, even you!

Don't like cereals? Ah, but then you don't know Muffets! Why, the minute you lay eyes on one you'll know that here's the dish for you.

Yes, it's whole wheat. But how! Cooked, drawn out to a filmy-thin, open-textured ribbon. Wound round and round to muffin size and shape. Baked. Toasted butternut brown.

Light as a patty shell. Crunchy! Crisp as potato chips. Crumbles in your mouth. A suggestion of fresh pecans.

Break it up. Sprinkle it with sugar. Pour on cream. Here are calories, bran, minerals—all for health.

And here's the downright pleasure of eating good food!

THREE GENERATIONS

by WARWICK DEEPING

AUTHOR OF "SORRELL AND SON"

SYNOPSIS

Old John Pybus, formerly a book-seller in London, is serving as a porter in an inn at Castle Craven when his son, Conrad, sees him there. He's been estranged from both his sons since the beginning of the war and they have lost track of him. Conrad hastens to tell his brother, Probyn, that he has seen their father. Probyn, who has been Pybus's friend since the war, is a doctor and he looks him up at the Saracen's Head, without telling his parents of the meeting. When Lance finishes at Cambridge he takes a room in London, and after gaining his father's reluctant consent and a small allowance he devotes himself to writing. In London Lance meets and is attracted to Olive Gadsden, a mannikin, but when he breaks off his relations with her she burns the completed manuscript of his novel. Lance meets Mary at Castle Craven and falls in love with her. She has devoted her life to taking care of her blind brother.

INSTALLMENT LXVI.

DARKNESS
Lance had brought the little aluminum saucepan from the kitchen and placed it on the hob of the sitting room fire. It contained their coffee, but they were not to drink that coffee. He turned to look at the venerable, who was sitting very erect in his chair with an air of almost grim attentiveness. They could hear the two voices out there in the darkness. Mary had closed the door. "He just wanted to enjoy himself—that's all. Don't look at me like that. Yes, I can feel you looking. How was I to think of such a thing happening? You shut him up, you did, never had any fun. O, dear! O, dear! I just wanted him to have a little fun. O, my God, he's lying down there! No, they didn't stop—blast them! When I saw—I just ran. Yes, up here, I'm about done."

Old Pybus, as though some blind instinct was groping in him, felt in his pocket for his pipe. He looked up as Lance made a sudden movement toward the door. He held up a hand.
"The walling voice began again. 'He was just merry—he was. 'Nelly, I'll race you, I said—just like that. How could I have known he was going to do such a thing? I saw the lights of the car coming, and I shouted to him and ran after him down the road. He didn't seem to hear the car.'"

Said that other voice, Mary's voice: "You say he didn't seem to hear. He could run. You must tell me how he was. It's everything."

"O, Miss, it's cruel."
"No, no—don't you see? Did he know that car was coming?"
"I don't think he knew, Miss. He wouldn't have done it, would he—on purpose?"

The door opened and Mary came. She did not look at either of them, but at the chair on which she had left her hat and coat. Her eyes were like two dark hollows in her white face. She stood there as her white face.

Lance went to her.
"We heard. We couldn't help it. I'll go, dear."
She pointed to her coat.
"No—I must go. Could you send people—a doctor?"

"I'm coming, dear—I must. Where did the girl say?"
"Between the bridge and our lane. On the main road."
They went out together, past the dim, half defiant, half cringing figure of the girl.

"Nelly, you must come."
"No, I couldn't, Miss. It's too horrible—him lying there—on the grass."

"You must. You must show us. Hold my hand."
They took the path by the castle field and down through the hanging beechwoods. Lance first going to the Saracen yard to borrow a hurricane lamp that was used in windy weather.

He found the two women waiting for him where the path turned by the old Sally port of the castle and a winelike ash spreading its bare branches like a sheltering hand. The lamp threw a pool of light, and Lance held that light, their faces were in the shadow. The girl, huddled against the wall beside Mary's erect and waiting figure, was crying into a crumpled handkerchief.

"I'll go first and light the path for you."
He heard Mary say: "I don't blame you, Nelly. Try to be quiet."
They came down to the bridge over the river, and the bracket lamp on the parapet showed an empty curve. Lance paused. He had the calmness of pity. He was inspired.

"Nelly, how far down the road was it?"
"About a quarter of a mile, sir. I should say. Just where there's an oak tree in the hedge."

"I'll go on ahead."
Holding the lamp shoulder high, he came to the place where Morris lay where the car had flung him. The road was empty. There were the hedges and the dim shape of the oak tree and a curve of green grass. Morris lay on his back, with his arms spread. His face was untouched; it expressed sleep, a strange tranquility.

Lance put the lamp on the grass and knelt down. It was the first time that he had seen death, but even in his innocence he seemed to marking from a little distance the sudden vanishing of the light, divined it to be a sign. She stood still; she closed her eyes for a moment, so that the inward darkness of realization matched the outer darkness. She spoke to the girl.

"Nelly, you can go home."
The girl stood and shivered.
"Did you see the light go out, Miss?"
"Yes. You can go home. You need not come with me any farther."

She went on alone, and Lance, hearing her footsteps, stood wondering whether she had seen and understood. His impulse was to go to meet her, and yet he remained motionless, holding the lamp. She was very near.

She was just a dim shape in the darkness, and he was surprised at the stillness of everything, at the strange and almost secret way things happened.

"O, my dear, how I have failed!"
Her cry of distress went through him. He put the lamp down on the grass. She did not resist his arms; she let herself be taken and held; she gave herself up.

"Beloved, what are you saying? You gave everything."
"He's dead! Did you hear what she said to me? That I shut him up, that he was dull, that he wanted to enjoy things."

"O, my dear, and you were gentle to her. 'Wasn't so. You're not to think of it that way.'"
"O, poor girl!"
He took her face between his hands.

"Mary, my Mary, it's not true. You were perfectly wonderful to me. You always will be. What more could you have given? O, don't tremble like this."

Her eyes were closed.
"Hold me, Lance, hold me—don't let me go. It's all dark. I'll hold you, Mary—always. Put your head down, dear."

"O, Miss, it's cruel."
"No, no—don't you see? Did he know that car was coming?"

Examiner, Who Describes Investigation, Thinks Toombs Gave Nothing in Return for the Money.

One of the examiners, who with others from several states, has been investigating the International Life Insurance Co. for nearly three months, gave to the Post-Dispatch today the first connected account of events in the company by which Roy C. Toombs, its president, received $3,652,000 in cash from its treasury. Toombs so far has not replaced the money, although demand for it was made by the examiners on July 24, resulting in the insurance company being thrown into a receivership yesterday.

A conference will be held Monday morning to determine what criminal prosecution, if any, will result from the situation in the International Life. It will be attended by Circuit Attorney Siders, United States District Attorney Brewer, and representatives of the Attorneys-General of Missouri and Illinois. This was decided today, following a conference of Insurance Commissioners with Circuit Attorney Siders and Attorney-General Shartel of Missouri.

Criminal Liability Discussed.
"We have given full consideration to the criminal liability which may attach on account of the $3,650,000 shortage found in the assets of the company, and have been assured by Circuit Attorney Siders that immediate and vigorous action will be taken," the Insurance Commissioner announced in a formal statement this afternoon. "Regardless of legal entanglements which have developed as a result of the institution of receivership proceedings in both Federal and State courts," the statement adds, "we can see no reason for any appreciable delay in effecting the consummation of a contract either of reinsurance or rehabilitation which will afford full protection to policyholders and conserve to the utmost the interests of the stockholders."

In substance, the examiner's account follows:
Last July 6, six examiners, then working on the company's books, came across an unusual entry in the bond department, showing the payment of $7,900,000 to the Toombs & Daily Co. of Chicago, investment brokers. Toombs is head of that company as well as of International Life.

There was no corresponding entry on the books to show what the company had received in exchange for this sum and the employee in charge of the books was asked what, in fact, the company had received.

He replied that the entry was to record "a big deal on which Roy C. Toombs is working." Pressing questions brought no more specific answer.

Toombs' Explanation.
Accordingly, Toombs was asked to come to St. Louis and did. The examiners put him under oath. He told the examiners that there were many real estate mortgages in the company's reserves, to which, from time to time, State examiners had objected as not being worth the amount at which they were carried on the books. He gave as examples mortgages on the Title Guaranty and City Club buildings in St. Louis. Toombs said that he obtained authorization of the board of directors (and the examiners do not doubt that he did) to attempt to convert these mortgages into more satisfactory securities. He said that, at the very time of questioning, he was working on this deal with a man in the East. He gave the name of the man, but subsequently the examiners were unable to find any such man.

Toombs said that he proposed to "sweeten up" the poorer securities with securities of undoubted value. He had not yet removed any of the poorer mortgages, he said, but had transferred about $3,500,000 of the better securities to the vaults of Toombs & Daily in Chicago. Contracts for the deal were about to be signed.

"Oh, of course," Toombs replied.

For the time being, that inquiry
